U. S. Again Offers World Secret of Its Atom Bomb

U. N. Given Hint New Super Weapon Has 10 Times Power Of Hiroshima's

(From Press Dispatches)

Paris, Sept. 30. — The United States today renewed its offer to share the secret of what Canada called new super atomic bombs capable "for the first time" of destroying civilization.

The offer was made by U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin before the United Nations Assembly's political committee. Word of the more powerful atom bombs was given by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada before the same committee.

Austin blamed Russia for blocking international control of the deadly weapon and said his government wants no monopoly on atomic force. Then as October president of the Security Council he set 3 p.m. Monday as the hour for the start of debate on the fateful issue of Berlin, where the Western powers charge the Soviet Union with threatening the peace of the world.

McNaughton indicated the United States has atomic bombs probably 10 times as powerful as those dropped on Japan.

McNaughton guardedly described the bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagaski as "elemental models," which even so were thousands of times more powerful than any other bomb at that time. Only a small amount of the nuclear energy in the bombs was released, he said.

Now, he continued, the degree of efficiency has been "substantially improved.

"It may well be," he said, "that the possibilities in this connection may be represented by a shift in the decimal point.

"It is not too much to say that the U. N. in seeking a method and means of controlling atomic energy is dealing with something that, if it is not controlled and well used, may bring an end to civilization as we know it.

"For the first time in modern history a method for the destruction of civilization is present."

McNaughton said the United States is the only nation now in possession of atomic bombs "at least on any scale which would suffice to make atomic war."

Austin said Russia had blocked global control of the atomic bomb by refusing to sacrifice any of her sovereignty to permit international inspection and control of sources of atomic energy. He noted the Soviet Union vetoed a majority-accepted control plan in the Council.

"Fear has supplanted hope," he said, "because the Soviet Union has insisted on placing its sovereignty athwart security for all." Austin said the United States is willing to submit to international control and inspection because the Americans "want peace for the world, for themselves and for their children."

Austin will be in the chair when the first round in the battle over the explosive Berlin blockade comes up. American sources said that once the agenda (calendar) is

Montgomery To Relinquish British Post

Imperial Staff Chief Will Retire in Order To Command Alliance

London, Sept. 30 (AP).—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery will retire as chief of the British imperial staff in order to head the military command of the Western European Alliance, government sources said today.

An authoritative informant said the cabinet approved the alliance's choice of Montgomery as chief planner for the defense of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Lieut. Gen. Gerard Templer, 50, was believed the likely successor as chief of the imperial staff, a post Montgomery has held since 1946.

Templer commanded a division in Sicily and was the first British military governor in Germany.

The official announcement of Montgomery's selection is expected to be made Friday by the Alliance secretariat in Paris.

The choice did not meet with unqualified approval. The Manchester Guardian commented that Montgomery was "an inspiration to fighting troops," but was not a planner and was "an uneasy co-operator."

"It might have been much better to appoint a not unduly famous Frenchman to act as a 'stand in' and chief of staff to the real—and presumably American—supreme commander to be appointed when and if war should come," said the newspaper.

The cabinet heard from Defense Minister A. V. Alexander a detailed report on decisions reached in Paris earlier this week.

Military experts from the United States and Canada sat in on the meetings.

Truman Plea Opens Nation's Chest Drive

President Harry S. Truman last night urged the Nation to support the annual Community Chests campaign as a "practical demonstration of the democratic faith we profess."

"Throughout the world," he said, "we are striving to prove democracy's worth."

"One way in which we can do this is by example—by showing how the voluntary action of a free people, united by sympathy and understanding, can safeguard the common welfare."

The President's message, broadcast from Louisville, Ky., launched the national 184-million-dollar Community Chest campaign. The Washington phase of the drive got under way last night with a rally at Constitution Hall of local campaign workers.

Volunteer solicitors who will seek $4,566,790 in the Nation's Capital this year heard industrialist Henry Ford 2d praise the Red Feather agency technique of con-

Volcano Reported Building Wall Around Itself

Manila, Sept. 30 (AP).—Hibokhibok volcano is building around itself a gigantic stone wall that already is 1100 feet high, an American volcano expert reported today.

The volcano on little Camiguin island in the southern Philippines began erupting September 1, driving more than 35,000 persons off the island.

Charles B. Reynolds of New York, who was there during the worst of the eruption, said it was quieting down now but still was doing weird things.

Stones pushed out from three or four new craters of the mile-high mountain are building the impressive wall on the slopes, he said. He compared the phenomenon with the Palisades on the Hudson River.

Yugoslavia Hits Reds for Tito Attack

Government and Parliament Back Leader's Stand For Independence

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—The Yugoslav government and Parliament joined today in approving a statement which criticized Russia as well as the Moscow-dominated Cominform for attacking Marshal Tito.

The statement reaffirmed Tito's determination to run this country for its own interests.

It also said, however, that Yugoslavia stood "firmly in the anti-Fascist front . . . closely beside the Soviet Union and the countries of the people's democracies."

Statement Applauded

Vice Premier Blagoje Neshkovich said at a joint session of Parliament that the government approved the statement, made in the form of a resolution by Premier Ptar Stambolich of Serbia and signed by 59 other deputies.

Parliament showed its approval by applauding the statement enthusiastically and chanting "Long Live Tito."

The statement said, in part.:

"In view of Yugoslavia's correctness toward the Cominform countries and Soviet Russia, Yugoslavia is surprised at the campaign which has been conducted by neighboring states and even by Soviet Russia for the last three months," the statement said.

Tito Hailed As Leader

"Our foreign and interior policy (is conducted) in the way most useful for the interest of the country and the people . . .

"Yugoslavia has had, has now and in the future will have the same basic foreign policy the government is conducting, led by Marshal Tito . . .

"The Parliament . . . considers an attack on its Communists as attacks on the government and its foreign policy."

The context of the statement made it plain that Yugoslav foreign policy was friendly toward the Russian bloc.

Pilot Spots Dog, Rescues Girl, 6, Lost for 20 Hours

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 30 (AP).—A 6-year-old girl, missing for 20 hours, was found safe today after an airplane pilot spotted her pet black dog in prairie country northwest of Cheyenne.

The pilot, Jack Strong, landed his plane and found little Janet Federer nearby. She was cut and bruised and suffering from cold.

Girl and dog were stowed into the plane for a quick trip to a Cheyenne hospital. Janet had wandered 10 miles since leaving her ranch home near Cheyenne about 10 a. m. yesterday.

Her two dogs went with her, but one returned to the house last night. The other dog apparently stayed close to the little girl through the night.

FCC Freezes Video Station Applications

Technical Reasons Given; Would-Be Purchasers, Owners Told Not to Worry

The Government froze all applications yesterday for new television stations, but emphasized: If you own a set, don't worry.

Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission announced the order calling a temporary halt on approval of new stations. The order was issued, he explained, to permit technical readjustments in the comparatively infant industry.

Coy told newsmen:

1. It will not affect the usefulness of any television set now on the market or in use.

2. Prospective set-buyers can go ahead with a purchase with confidence.

"Our belief is that television is going to be a terrific service," he said.

"What we are doing is seeking to improve the present service and perhaps obtain a larger service area for stations."

For Possibly Six Months

Coy said the order, effective immediately, will be effective for "possibly six months."

The FCC's action will, however, permit the operation of nearly 90 new stations. A total of 123 stations has already been authorized, with 37 actually on the air. The others have construction permits and are in various stages of development.

The order freezes 302 pending applications.

Coy told reporters that during the interlude before new applications are approved, the commission will consider revising the present engineering standards for television operations.

For example, he said, it will determine whether a change is needed in the rules on distance between stations. At present, stations operating in the same channel must be at least 150 miles apart. Stations operating in nearby channels must be 75 miles apart.

Present Channels Remain

Coy said that under these regulations there has been some "interference" between stations in neighboring cities. It may be necessary, he said, to provide for fewer stations.

Coy discounted any suggestion that the FCC might be planning to move television out of its present channels on the dial. The commission is known to be seeking space for new channels in the ultrahigh frequencies of the radio spectrum, but Coy declined to forecast when they might be opened up.

There are now 12 channels allotted to television. The ultrahigh frequencies are classed as experimental.

Industry sources in New York indicated that yesterday's order would not retard the growth of the booming sight-cast industry greatly because:

1. The construction of new stations already authorized can continue.

2. Some 1,500,000 television sets are expected to be made next year

Dewey Plans to Use ERP to Press Union Of Western Europe

New Great Power Could Help Secure Peace, He Says in Foreign Policy Talk

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 30.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight spelled out a nine-point, nonappeasing foreign policy course for America and served notice on Russia we do not intend to be bullied or bluffed.

In greater detail than ever before he promised to use American aid and influence to build a United States of Europe into a world bulwark for peace.

What is needed, he told an audience in Salt Lake's Tabernacle, is a third great power—a United States of Europe—which will be so strong that no despotic ruler of a totalitarian nation will think the cause of freedom so weak that he dares to wage war.

30,000 in Tabernacle

The low-domed auditorium, which Brigham Young helped build, was simply decorated with four American flags and baskets of flowers. The Tabernacle was filled to its 8000 capacity. An overflow crowd saw and heard him by television in another hall.

Dewey spoke from the pulpit. President Truman stood there just 10 days ago. The famed acoustics of the hall picked up and magnified the loud applause of his warning: "There must not be another Munich."

At the end he received a long, standing ovation. After his speech he requested that he be allowed to hear the organ which has been silent for a year while under repairs. The crowd sat hushed while the organist played "America, the Beautiful," "Lead Kindly Light" and "America."

Except for tone and strong emphasis on a federated Europe Dewey proposed substantially the foreign policy course the United States is pursuing today. His words were all positive. Never did he say what America should do, he said what we will do.

"Remember Munich" Theme

A remember-the-lesson-of-Munich thread ran all through his speech. Appeasement, he said, leads only to war. He promised under his leadership consistent strengthening of our power to wage peace and a firm but even-tempered resistance to the forces of aggression wherever they are.

He spoke in this temple of the Mormon Apostles after cruising all day through Idaho's rich farms. At Idaho Falls and again at Pocatello, Idaho, he plunked for the reelection of Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), who has been riding aboard for three days. Ironically, Dworshak once was a leading exponent of the isolationism Dewey read out in tonight's spech.

Then he outlined this foreign course, and promised to adminis-

'Time to Change' Congress

NAM Spent Millions in Drive To Kill Controls, Truman Says

Louisville, Sept. 30 (AP).—President Truman said tonight the National Association of Manufacturers, with the GOP carrying out its policies, put on a "vicious" three-million-dollar organized campaign to kill price controls.

He said the NAM advertised that prices would adjust themselves and they did—"up and up and up."

Translating that into market basket terms, Mr. Truman told a crowd in Jefferson County Armory that right here in Louisville hamburger that cost 27 cents in June, 1946, brought 56 cents last August.

"Have you benefited from high prices?" he inquired.

"Have you found it easier to make ends meet in the last two years?"

So he picked up the "It's-Time-for-a-Change" slogan Republican nominee Thomas E. Dewey used in his unsuccessful 1944 campaign. The American people, the President said, need and want a change to a Democratic Congress that will act not only against high prices and monopolies but for housing and more social security.

Here in the home State of his vice presidential running mate, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Mr. Truman declared confidently: "We are going to win."

Louisville gave the President a tumultuous welcome. Screaming, whistling, clapping crowds were banked in layers along Broadway and Fourth streets. Police Chief Carl Heustis figured 35,000 people saw the Chief Executive.

Mr. Truman was 2½ hours late getting into town, but the people waited to see him, anyway. Several receptions planned at a downtown (Seelbach) Hotel had to wait, too. The President drove directly to the packed Armory, where people overflowed the 9000 seats.

The Chief Executive spoke in the armory at Louisville after a day of heavy campaigning through

Visits Gunston Hall

Thurmond Here, Expects Help Of Byrd, Tuck in Virginia

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina indicated on a visit to Washington yesterday that he expects help from powerful Virginia political leaders in his States Rights presidential campaign.

At a morning press conference in the Mayflower Hotel, Thurmond was asked whether he had sought or received assurance of support from Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia.

"You'll have to ask them about that," he said. "We're not disturbed over their position."

An aide said later that the general expectation among States Rights people was that Senator Byrd and Governor Tuck by future statements would make clear they would vote against President Truman.

The dominant Virginia Democratic State organization, through its party central committee, has set a course of keeping hands off the presidential election and of letting the voters "go free wheeling" at the polls.

Governor Thurmond, 45, arrived in Washington by train early yesterday with his attractive 22-year-old wife, Jean. After the press conference he met States Rights officials from Virginia and Maryland at lunch in the Mayflower.

In the afternoon he drove past the White House en route to visit historic Gunston Hall, home of George Mason, some 16 miles south of Alexandria.

There Governor Thurmond inspected the photostat of the original manuscript by Mason of the Virginia Declaration of Rights. The Governor told his party it was a great inspiration to be in the room where the declaration was written. He praised Mason as a believer in strong local government.

In the same room were autographed photos of Republican Presidents Hoover, Coolidge and Taft, presented to the present owner, Louis Hertle, 88-year-old retired businessman.

From Gunston Hall the Thurmonds were driven to the historic Arlington home of Gen. Robert E. Lee. There aides recalled that Gov. Thurmond's grandfather,

D. C. Executive Burns to Death In Plane Crash

Business Partner Of Actor Dick Powell Cracks Up on Takeoff

James L. Brown, 60, Washington business executive, was burned to death yesterday when his private plane crashed near the Detroit City Airport.

Brown, who lived at 7813 Old Chester rd., Bethesda, Md., and maintained offices at 1010 Vermont ave. nw., was a vice president and partner with Movie Actor Dick Powell in the National Flight System.

C. V. Burnett, Detroit Airport manager, said an investigation disclosed the crash was caused by a shortage of gasoline in the right fuel tank of the twin-engine plane.

Brown's right motor failed shortly after the take-off, Burnett said, and the craft plunged to the earth from 200 feet, bursting into flames when it struck the ground. Brown was at the controls when the plane crashed.

A native of Cincinnati, Brown came to Washington as a boy and had lived here off and on for about 50 years.

He was educated in the public schools here and studied law at George Washington University.

From 1927 through 1933, he was an executive with the General Motors Corp. During the war he was connected with the Palace Trailer Coach Co. of Flint, Mich., in the production of defense housing. He had been associated with Powell for about three years.

Brown leaves his wife, Mrs. Jessie R. Brown, and a son, Robert W. Brown, of 3616 Greenway dr. se.

Yanks, Sox Win To Keep Alive Last Slim Hopes

The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox staved off impending doom for at least 24 hours yesterday by scoring victories that kept them mathematically still in the American League pennant race.

The Yankees defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 7, in a harrowing game at Philadelphia.

At Boston, the Red Sox came forth with a bristling 15-hit attack that included a home run by Stan Spence, and it gave them a 7-to-3 triumph over the Washington Senators.

The victories enabled each club to advance half a game because the first-place Cleveland Indians were idle.

C. H. Swift, Head Of Meat Firm, Dies

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Charles Henry Swift, 75, pioneer Chicago meat packer, died tonight.

He was chairman of the board of Swift & Co.

Ill two months with a lung infection, he died in his home at 209 Lake Shore dr. on Chicago's gold coast. During World War I he served in the ordnance department in Washington and overseas, attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Including Atomic Information

Red Spies Got 100 U. S. Secrets, McDowell, of Probers, Figures

By The Associated Press

Representative McDowell (R., Pa.) estimated yesterday that a Soviet spy ring has gotten hold of "100 or more" American secrets, including atomic information.

But he also said he "felt sure" the Russians have not obtained complete information on how to make an atomic bomb.

McDowell is a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which has been investigating alleged Communist espionage and has recommended the prosecution of at least four persons.

Claiming "there is direct evidence that secrets have been turned over to the Russians," McDowell declared that Attorney General Clark should be impeached if he doesn't prosecute those against whom the committee has assembled evidence.

The Pennsylvanian said the Russians have acquired American secrets involving atomic information, jet propulsion, radar, gun material, chemicals, State Department policy documents, defense and detection devices, new explosives, and airfield locations.

He said information to that effect had been gathered by his committee, the FBI, and the Royal Canadian Commission.

McDowell made the statement in commenting on a story copyrighted by the Scripps-Howard newspapers which asserted the Russians had picked up and sent home at least 89 top-level secrets from the United States.

The article said those secrets included uranium data and samples, information about the atomic bomb tests in New Mexico, jet plane information and data on new explosives.

McDowell expressed his belief that the four suspects named by the committee, including two atomic scientists, could be tried without disclosing any additional secrets—by proving that classified (secret) information was transferred.

He said that one of the aims of

New York Gang Caught

Recovery of $75,000 in Gems, Arrests Solve Loew Holdup

New York, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—A gang of jewel robbers that operated in exclusive hotels and victimized pretty and wealthy women, was captured by police today and $75,000 in diamonds, rubies and emeralds were recovered.

Detectives solved within 36 hours the hold-up of Mrs. Sonja Loew, beautiful former wife of the theater chain magnate, and arrested three suspects in the recent jewel robbery of Lynne Gilmore, blonde former model.

Police, for a time, believed they had found the men who staged a $350,000 jewel holdup of Mrs. Sari Gabor Hilton, estranged wife of the Hilton Hotel chain owner. The red-haired Hungarian beauty attended the police lineup in vain—she could not identify any of the 10 men brought before her.

"The man who held me up was better looking than any of these," she said and left on the arm of Movie Actor George Sanders.

Charged with assault and robbery were five men, one of them implicated as the leader in both the Loew and Gilmore holdups. He was well-dressed Stephen Bayer, 47, who served a term in Sing Sing for grand larceny.

William Bruley, 29, and William Ostrow, 43, both Broadway bookmakers, also were arrested in the Loew theft. Ostrov's twin brother, Arthur, and Raymond Lussa were held in the Gilmore theft.

Mrs. Loew identified Bayer as the smooth-talking man who stroked her hair and called her "Honey" while they robbed her jewel case in the Madison Hotel shortly after midnight Wednesday. She referred to the trio as "the sentimental one, the pockmarked one and the little flabby guy."

Credit for the arrests went to Detective Lieut. Francis X. Cassidy, who connected the Loew jewel holdup with the flight to California yesterday of a known safe-cracker, who left New York in anger because he wasn't "cut in" on the Loew loot. Police immediately picked up all the men with whom he had been in contact.

They found Bayer in his hotel and found a $27,000 diamond pendant stolen from Mrs. Loew in his laundry hamper. Bayer led them to Bruley and Ostrov. There, detectives found the remainder of the Loew jewelry plus two revolvers and burglars' tools.

Ten men in all were arrested and Mrs. Loew, smartly dressed in a cocktail gown, looked them over in the lineup. She picked out two of the men.

Then Louis Levine, husband of Miss Gilmore, picked out the three men who gagged his wife, child and himself in their Central Park apartment and took $30,000 in jewels.

Mrs. Loew, a former waltz champion in Vienna, and Mrs. Hilton, a Budapest beauty contest winner, renewed an acquaintance at headquarters.

"Hello, Cha-Cha," said Mrs. Loew to Mrs. Hilton.

"Sonjicka!" cried Mrs. Hilton.

Other Interesting Line-ups

Greece Backs Former Enemies In Fund and Bank Election

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Two interesting alignments yesterday marked the election of the executive boards of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the International Monetary Fund.

First, Greece joined with two former enemies, Italy and Austria, in choosing Guido Carli of Italy to the $17,000-a-year Fund post and Constantino Bresciani-Turroni of Italy to the Bank.

Second, Finland and Yugoslavia lined up with Czechoslovakia and Poland to choose Bohumil Sucharda of Czechoslovakia to the Fund and Leon Baranski of Poland to the Bank.

Also Norway forsook its former voting alliance with Canada and Iceland and voted with The Netherlands in electing J. W. Beyen of The Netherlands to both posts.

Venezuela replaced Mexico in the only shift in any nation's membership on the Fund board. Carlos A. D'Ascoli will represent Venezuela. Emilio Toro of Colombia was named to the Bank's board.

Three countries changed their representatives on the board of the Fund. Ernest de Selliers succeeds Hubert Ansiaux for Belgium; Sucharada replaces J. V. Mladek for Czechoslovakia, and Octavio Paranagua takes the Brazil seat on the board succeeding Francisco Alves dos Santos-Filho.

The election of Sucharada was the only one regarded as significant. Mladek, whom he succeeded, had supported the late Czech President Benes.

Siam was elected to membership in both the Fund and the Bank. It is the forty-eighth nation chosen as member. Applications from Pakistan and Liberia were not acted upon, pending further information.

Five nations—Great Britain, China, India, France and the United States—did not participate in the elections to the executive committee. They are entitled to appoint their own members, being the five countries with the largest

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

Henry, 2d., Ousted Ford's Old Guard

Henry Ford 2d doesn't look different from any other likable 31-year-old head of a billion-dollar-in-the-family corporation.

He's tall and not unhandsome; large around the shoulders and waistline; chubby around the jowls. His hair is sandy and close-cut; eyes light blue; nose straight and long. He laughs a cackley sort of chuckle from between chest and throat. His apparel is neat and subdued.

He appears to be an easy-going guy, who takes in stride his tasks as industrial magnate or as national chairman of the Community Chests of America. Young Henry, who appeared here last night in connection with the local Chest campaign, simply is not the impressive type.

Reorganized Company

Fact is until three years ago Henry 2d appeared to be satisfied with just being, as inconspicuously as possible, the grandson of the fabulous auto king and watching the Fords go by. And when he was elected president of the Ford Motor Co. in December, 1945, the wiseacres said that Henry I was merely keeping the crown in the family.

Six weeks later, though, Henry 2d electrified the industrial world by firing Harry Bennett and some 1000 other officials in a revolutionary reorganization of the company. Bennett had been the chief adviser and strong right arm of the octogenarian motor monarch, and it was generally assumed that he had acquired a vested interest in that position.

Young Henry made it clear that the Ford Co. was no longer a one-man show, but instead a team performance with himself as indisputable leader of the team.

The original Henry Ford, that mass production genius who spread Model Ts, highways and gas stations all over this wonderful land of ours, had but one son, Edsel, who, until the day of his death in 1943, took a back seat while the illustrious parent held the wheel.

Henry 2d is the eldest of Edsel's three sons and a daughter. By reason of age he was heir apparent to the Ford empire.

Young Henry attended Hotchkiss and Yale, was a poor student and so-so athlete. He liked being manager of the crew, and racing around in a shiny car, but he wasn't a hell-raiser.

In 1940, Henry 2d showed his first keen interest—in Anne McDonnell. Methodist-reared Ford converted to Catholicism and married Anne. They've two girls.

As was to be expected, young Henry joined the Ford Co., puttering around in various low-level jobs to get the feel of the business. Came the war, and he was commissioned in the Navy. When his father, Edsel, died suddenly in 1943, young Henry was placed on inactive duty so he could help his aged grandfather push war production in the Ford plants.

Henry 2d Takes Over

During the next two years Henry the Second kept getting bigger and bigger assignments, but all the time, insiders insisted, he was under the arm of Harry Bennett. When young Henry explosively removed that arm in the winter of '45 he came of industrial age. He was already filling the elder Ford's boots when the latter died in 1947 at the age of 83.

In three years at the head of the Ford domain, young Henry has set out to restore Ford in front of the Big Three. Ford emergeed from World War I doing 60 per cent of the Nation's auto business; entered World War II doing less than 20 per cent. Henry I, for all his production wizardry, was a poor salesman, lost ground to the General Motors' Chevrolet and Chrysler's Plymouth.

Not only has Young Henry turned out a streamlined futuristic auto, but he's also cast aside some of his grandfather's Model-T ideas.

Most important, young Henry regards his 100,000 employes not as cogs on the assembly line but as human beings who must be treated as such. It's an idea that many believe is the key to management-labor peace.

Polishing Community Chest Apples . . .

solidating fund-raising drives as assembly-line efficiency.

"In uniting many appeals in one, we substitute order for the confusion of conflicting solicitations," said the youthful Ford, chairman of the Community Chests of America.

"Were it not for the once-a-year Red Feather campaign, each organization in every community would have to conduct its own drive for funds. Such actions would be expensive, make too great a call on volunteer effort and result in unbalanced community services."

The head of Ford Motor Co. said that campaign goals in Washington as elsewhere were higher this year because of the "cost of living."

"Last year's dollars simply cannot meet this year's needs," he said.

Departing from his prepared text, Ford remarked that he understood "here in Washington you have reached your goal only three times in 20 years—and that's not an outstanding achievement."

"However, with good organization and hard work," he said, "I know you will meet, even exceed, your goal." He added:

"Everything we do voluntarily through the Red Feather organization is living evidence of our good neighborliness—our concern for the welfare of all people in this world."

The Constitution Hall meeting was sponsored by the Washington Board of Trade to "rededicate the business community to the Community Chest idea and to the American ideals that make such an organization possible," Board President Leon Chatelain, jr., declared.

"With 90 per cent of our business community giving," he said, "business units in the drive here have an opportunity to give the campaign a lift that will assure victory."

At Crossroads, Says Chairman

A warning that "the Community Chest idea in the National Capital area is at the crossroads," was made by Chauncey G. Parker, Red Feather area chairman.

Recalling the unsatisfactory results from business units last year, he predicted that the coming campaign "will reveal whether we are headed down the road to disintegration—back to the chaos of separate, competing campaigns by 104 individual agencies."

"If agencies cannot secure adequate budgets through federating their financing, in other words the chest Federation," he said, "they will be forced to put on separate campaigns."

Stating that "recent criticisms of the Washington unit of the Chest Federation were a strong factor in last year's campaign failure," he said he was convinced that recent reorganization has developed "an adequate base for correction of faults."

After the meeting here, Ford responded in a brief broadcast to the coast-to-coast broadcast of the President's address. Both speeches were part of a program featuring stars of the entertainment world.

Russian Biologist Honored on Birthday

Moscow, Sept. 30 (AP).—Today was a big day in the life of Prof. Trofim D. Lysenko, Soviet biologist.

On his 50th birthday, Lysenko:

1. Was awarded the Order of Lenin by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

2. Had an institute at Odessa named after him by order of the Soviet Council of Ministers.

3. Was praised in all Russian papers, which published accounts of his work in genetics.

Turkey Orders Training In Antiaircraft Duty

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 30 (AP).—Informed sources in Ankara said tonight all Turkish men outside military age have been ordered to report at once for nine days' training in antiaircraft precaution duty.

Areas bordering the Black Sea, which Turkey shares with Russia, were instructed also to train the men in anti-invasion practice.

Romania Cuts Prices

Bucharest, Romania, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Romanian government announced today cuts ranging from 20 to 50 per cent in the prices of food, shoes and clothing through the nationalization program.

4 Leaders Visit Chest Agency

Unity was the keynote at four top leaders of labor and management got together yesterday at Friendship House, one of Washington's 104 Chest agencies, to mark the opening in October of 1200 Community Chest drives throughout the Nation.

Friendship House, recreation and day care center at 619 D st. se., furnished a happy setting as National Community Chest Chairman Henry Ford 2d greeted his three vice chairmen, Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; and H. J. Heinz 2d, president of the H. J. Heinz Co. Ford is president of the Ford Motor Co.

The four Chest leaders grinned amiably as they watched 3-to-10-year-olds devouring a lunch of macaroni, cole slaw, peas, bread and butter, milk and apples under the center's day-care program. About 80 youngsters whose mothers must work to support them, are served by the program, which is available free or for a small fee.

After lunch, the visitors moved outdoors to watch children scramble over a jungle gym and balance precariously on stilts in a brief play period before afternoon school sessions. Heinz, chairman of last year's National Community Chest Campaign, got in a quick round of "catch" with several boys.

"You're doing a remarkable work here," Miss Lydia Bucklin, director of the center, was told by Murray at the conclusion of the tour. Murray summed up the attitude of the group, whose visit was one of many being made throughout the Nation to demonstrate the invaluable community services performed by Red Feather agencies.

WE'LL NEVER REST ON OUR LAURELS, BUT WE CAN'T HELP FEELING A LITTLE SELF-SATISFIED

TEN years ago today, we came to Washington and opened a modest little shop on M Street. No fanfare, no advance publicity, just youngsters, as clothiers go, determined to "build a better mousetrap." Corcoran Thom, Jr., of the Riggs National Bank, gave us a helping hand with a $400 line of credit, and back in those days it looked as big as Gibraltar.

In that first year, the world didn't exactly break its neck to "beat a path to our door," but we are rather proud of this one fact: despite the high rate of population turn-over in our city, of the four hundred customers we made that year, nearly two hundred of them are still regular and consistent Farnsworth patrons in addition to the many thousands we've made since then.

Today we ship our suits and haberdashery to men in almost every major capital in the world. We have made suits for heads of foreign governments, sufficiently satisfactory to retain their business, year after year.

As we start our second decade, we are more determined than ever to build that "mousetrap" still better and merit the continued patronage of thousands of customers, anyone of whom will tell you that a Farnsworth suit is the best suit he has ever owned and he paid no more than a fair price for what he bought.

Red Fires Into Crowd in Berlin's U. S. Sector, Forces American Army Police to Take Cover

Berlin, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—A Russian lieutenant fired into a group of Germans in the American sector of Berlin today wounding a German girl and forcing American military police to take cover.

Level-headed American soldiers prevented a possible serious outbreak by holding their fire as the excited Russian, accompanied by two others who had entered the American sector, retreated into the Russian zone.

The incident was touched off when Germans spotted the Russian entering the home of a German woman about five blocks from the Russo-American border, and called military police. The Russian left the house and backed slowly toward woods which marked the Soviet zonal border, followed by a group of Germans.

Fires Three Shots

When two military police patrols arrived at the scene, the Russian fired three times. One German fell and the others dashed for cover behind walls and in ditches.

Pfc. Unis G. Lowe, Norma, Tenn.; Pvt. William A. Maddox, Dallas, Tex, and Corpl. Stanley C. Brown, Hornell, N. Y., ducked under their jeep. They emerged almost immediately, pistols drawn, and saw the Russian heading toward the woods. They did not fire.

About 10 minutes later, the Russian came back into the American zone, followed by another soldier brandishing a submachine gun. New York Times correspondent Edward Morrow, who arrived on the scene with United Press correspondent John B. McDermott, went down a back street and approached the Russians. Speaking quietly in Russian, Morrow advised them to keep down their guns and talk things over with American military police.

The Russian said he had come back for his motorcycle, confiscated by the Americans. He did not get it.

The Russians, the correspondents and Lieut. Col. Thomas Lancer, Madison, Wis., United States provost marshal in Berlin, conferred briefly.

"I'm very sorry it happened," said the Russian who fired, "I would never shoot at an American. Why, I could have shot down all the Americans around there, like shooting crows, if I wanted to. I was just trying to scare off the German mob."

As he talked, his companion stood a few paces away, his submachine gun cocked.

"I'm a very good shot," the Russian continued. "If I wanted to hit you, I could have. I don't know why there is so much excitement about one German girl."

As the Russians stalked back into their zone, photographers were warned by American officers not to snap them because "those boys are too trigger-happy."

Capt. James A. Dixon, Altoona, Pa., of the military police, said a formal protests would be filed with Russian authorities.

The Russians so far have not replied t oa written protest yesterday over the buzzing of two American transport planes by nine Yak fighters. United States Military Governor Gen. Lucius D. Clay, denying reports that he planned to use fighter escorts on the Berlin airlift, said that Russian buzzing tactics were "just another effort to frighten us, and it will take a lot more than buzzing before we get worried about the airlift."

U. S. Renews A-Bomb Offer

adopted. Austin will turn the gavel over to Argentina, the next Council member alphabetically. Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia is expected to sit for Argentina for the crucial debate.

There also were these developments in U. N. circles:

1. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told the Assembly's 58-nation Social Committee that the United States would accept a proposed world bill of human rights without amendment if all other nations follow suit. There seemed little chance of acceptance of her offer due to opposition from the Soviet bloc and other quarters.

2. France's Communists joined those of Britain in backing Russia's United Nations proposals for a one-third reduction in the armaments of the world's five big powers. The item comes up for debate in the Political Committee after a decision is taken on atomic energy. That discussion continues Friday with Russia expected to answer Austin.

Action in the Political Committee on atomic control today was blocked by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky. He opposed a move to vote immediately on a Canadian proposal for adoption of the American plan—first laid down by Bernard M. Baruch on June 14, 1946—by saying he did not have the Russian text. Debate will be resumed Friday.

Middle East Bloc Planned Within U. N.

Paris, Sept. 30 (AP).—Diplomats from 12 countries on three continents will meet Saturday to form a Middle Eastern bloc within the United Nations, a well-informed source said today.

The dozen countries are located on or near the crossroads of Asia, Europe and Africa. Generally they oppose Soviet policies.

Countries listed by the source were Afghanistan, Egypt, Ethiopia, Greece, Iraq, Iran, Lebanon, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Turkey and Yemen.

A meeting yesterday between Greek Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Khashaba Pasha was said to have cleared the way.

The dozen nations were understood to have hopes of extending their group outside the United Nations into a regional pact similar to the Benelux group of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Israel was believed to be excluded.

U. N. Gets U. S. Tip on Rights

Paris, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told a United Nations committee today that the United States will not support any declaration on human rights which compels it to employ persons with "subversive" beliefs.

In the social committee, Mrs. Roosevelt objected to an article would provide:

"Everyone has the right of access to public employment in his country."

"This provision cannot be accepted by my government without limitations in the interests of public safety and welfare," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

She explained that persons with subversive beliefs would not be employed by the government.

Mrs. Roosevelt also opposed an article prescribing that "men and women of full age have the right to marry and to found a family and are entitled to equal rights as to marriage."

The United States does not believe that the subject of marriage belongs in the declaration, she said.

Australians Criticize U. S.

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 30 (AP). Opposition leaders declared in the House of Representatives today the United States had refused to exchange atomic information with Australia because of fear of leakages to Russia through Australian Communists.

The opposition also said the British government is disturbed by alleged weakness of defense and security precautions in Australia.

Arthur Fadden, Country Party leader, said this question had been discussed by Prime Minister Joseph B. Chifley with the British cabinet in July.

Key Officers in Koch Case Put Under Gag by Superior

By Carl Levin

Copyright, 1948, N. Y. Herald Tribune

An Army public relations officer clamped a gag on key officers connected with the Ilse Koch case and at the same time disclosed that Gen. Lucius D. Clay, military governor in Germany, has been asked for any documentary justification which can be found for the commutation of her life sentence.

The Senate Investigations Subcommittee, which has asked that the Army explain the reduction of Mrs. Koch's sentence to four years, expiring next October, sought vainly yesterday for legal support of the Army's contention that the commutation cannot be rescinded.

Mrs. Koch, wife of the Buchenwald camp commander, was convicted of "encouraging, aiding and participating" in the systematic killing of more than 53,000 political and religious prisoners at Buchenwald.

As the committee proceeded with its inquiry behind closed doors, Lyall T. Beggs, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, denounced the Army action in the case as "arbitrary and unwarranted."

The Army gag on key officers who might throw light on the affair was admitted by an Army spokesman yesterday when this reporter sought permission to interview the two men intimately involved in the case.

Lieut. Col. Clio E. Straight, now at headquarters here, who made the first favorable decision in Mrs. Koch's favor, recommending the commutation (he was then deputy judge advocate in charge of war crimes in Germany) later approved by General Clay.

Major Carl E. Whitney, who was Mrs. Koch's chief defense attorney and who was considered in Germany to have turned a miracle when he saved her from the death sentence. He is now also at headquarters here.

Both officers said they were not at liberty for interviews without authorization from their superiors.

Col. George S. Eyster, director of public relations for Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall, said he would be glad to grant authorization if the congressional committee approved.

The committee then informed Eyster it was agreeable to interviews but he refused to change the no-interview ruling.

"I have advised the officers," he said, "that it is the policy of this office that they should not speak to reporters while the investigation is pending."

"Getting advice from you is the same as an order not to talk, isn't it?" this reporter asked.

"Yes," Colonel Eyster replied.

Sentence Reduction Defended by Clay

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 30 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today the evidence in the trial of Mrs. Ilse Koch did not warrant a life sentence for her role at the Buchenwald Concentration Camp.

The United States Military Governor on June 8 approved a reviewing board's recommendation and reduced her sentence to four years. This led to a controversy. Yesterday Clay was instructed by the War Department to determine whether Mrs. Koch may be tried on other charges.

Today the general said that before he reduced her sentence he reviewed the case "very carefully."

Clay said Mrs. Koch, wife of the camp commander, was a "very despicable and very low woman—which would have justified shooting her on the spot just on those grounds. Unfortunately that is not the way we administer the law."

He said the evidence did not implicate Mrs. Koch, as it did others originally tried by a war crimes court, in deaths which occurred at the concentration camp.

Bernadotte Slaying Suspect Captured

Tel Aviv, Israel, Sept. 30 (AP).—The capture of Nathan Friedman-Yellin, chief of the Stern Gang which has been blamed by the Israeli government for the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte, was disclosed today by reliable sources.

The informants said Friedman-Yellin, a former Polish surveyor, and a lieutenant, Matityahu Shmuelewitz, were caught by Israeli police in a house crammed with guns and ammunition at Haifa Wednesday night. Yellin's wife was questioned for two hours and then released.

The two Sternists had $7000 on them, along with incriminating documents and forged papers purporting to give them leave from the army. The offered no resistance.

Informed sources said the documents "throw new light" on the Bernadotte case, and the forged papers were designed to permit Friedman-Yellin to elude the government's order for all members of the outlawed Stern band to join the army or be hunted down as deserters.

(Informed in Geneva of the reported arrest, the Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok commented, "it cuts off the head of the snake." Shertok was en route to the U. N. meeting in Paris.)

Friedman-Yellin had been a fugitive since the night of September 17 when Count Bernadotte, the U. N. mediator, and his French assistant, Col. Andre Serot, were shot down in Jerusalem.

The United Press said Dr. Chaim Weizmann, 73, took over today as President of the State of Israel—the state for which he has worked during most of his life.

[With tears in his eyes, Weizmann told the 37-member Israel council: "This is a great and sacred moment for me."]

Reds Up Iran Propaganda

Moscow's propoganda guns are hammering so hard at Iran that American diplomatic authorities are wondering whether Russia is considering a new move in that part of the world.

Four Moscow radiobroadcasts assailing the Iranian government and criticizing conditions in the oil-rich Middle Eastern land were recorded in a single day this week by U. S. Government monitors. A secret "Azerbaijan democratic station" joined in the anvil chorus with two additional verbal attacks.

The campaign has been going on for months, but it appears now to be increasing in intensity. In Iran itself there have been other signs of livelier Soviet interest. Hence the official speculation that Russia may try pressure in that area to divert attention from the Berlin crisis.

Iran was the scene of a misfired Russian adventure of two years ago. Soviet occupation troops finally were pulled out of Iran's Azerbaijan province under pressure from the United Nations Security Council in a crisis somewhat similar to the present Berlin dispute.

5000 Demonstrators Break Up Iran Trial

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 30 (U.P.)—Five thousand shouting demonstrators today broke up a court hearing which the editor of the newspaper Atesh was being tried for insulting Premier Abdul Hajir Hossein in an editorial.

The demonstrators marched to the ministry of justice shouting "Down with dictatorship, down with British agents, death to Hajir!"

Indonesians Take Red City

Batavia, Java., Sept. 30 (AP).—Indonesian republican troops have recaptured Madioen, th Communist copital, and are moving against the Communists south of the city, a government spokesman said today.

Col. Gatot Subroto, military governor of Madioen, said the towns of Wonogiri, Ngawi and Macetan also had been taken and that government forces now were sweeping toward Ponogoro, 20 miles south of Madioen.

The military governor said only unconditional surrender would be accepted. Captured snipers were ordered treated as guerillas, without the status of prisoners of war.

Radio Madioen, now back in government hands, charged the Communists had murdered religous leaders, teachers, non-Communist political leaders and civil servants before leaving the adjacent village of Gereng, which fell Tuesday.

Brazil to Buy 2 Refineries

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 30 (U.P.)—President Eurico Gaspar Dutra today authorized the purchase of two oil refineries, one from France and the other from Czechoslovakia. They will be bought and operated with Brazilian capital, both private and state.

Dutra also authorized the purchase of 90 French locomotives and other equipment and materials to enlarge and service the existing refinery at Bahia.

The larger of the two new refineries will come from France, the smaller from Czechoslovakia.

Dutra announced he will ask Congress for special appropriations to buy a fleet of oil tankers from Spain, Belgium and Holland.

This program was seen as an indication that Brazil is determined to have its own national oil refining industry.

250,000 French Miners Vote Strike

Paris, Sept. 30 (U.P.)—France's new elections through which he hopes to sweep into power.

250,000 coal miners voted overwhelmingly today to strike Monday, and other workers planned protest demonstrations against the shaky coalition government of Premier Henri Queuille.

The Communists, also bidding for power, issued a statement declaring: "The French people will not make war, and they will never make war against the Soviet Union." The statement said Foreign Minister Robert Schuman "does in no way represent France."

Gen. Charles de Gaulle scheduled an important press conference for Friday in which he will call again for an end to "weak" centrist government rule, and for Gas and electrical workers in Paris announced a four-hour protest strike Friday which may deprive the capital of light and heat.

Albania Denies Aiding Fugitive Greek Rebels

London, Sept. 30 (AP).—Albania has denied western power charges of illegally harboring fugitive Greek rebels, the official Albanian news agency said today in a dispatch broadcast from Tirana.

The agency said the reply to an American-British-French note was that any attempt to set up an international committee to investigate the situation would not facilitate settlement of the Albanian-Greek dispute.

Gurney Favors U. S. Envoy At Madrid

Madrid, Sept. 30 (AP).—Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, advocated today the re-establishment of "complete relations between Spain and the other great powers," including the United States.

Gurney made this statement after an hour's talk at El Pardo palace with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The United States, Britain and many other nations withdrew Ambassadors from Spain after the United Nations adopted a resolution in 1946 condemning Franco's regime.

Gurney arrived here Wednesday from Paris on the last leg of a tour of Europe. On his visit to Franco he was accompanied by Maj. Gen. W. B. Persons, representing the United States Department of Defense; Maj. Gen. Bryant Boatner of the United States Air Force; Rear Admiral E. T. Wooldridge, United States Charge D'Affaires Paul Culbertson and Robert Devany, Gurney's administration assistant.

In Barcelona, former Postmaster General James A. Farley told reporters that, should he reenter politics, he would work for strengthening of relations between Spain and the United States. He said he expected Spain soon would be taken into the Marshall Plan. He is in Spain on business.

U. S. Rebuffs Russia On Korea Proposal

The United States has rebuffed a Soviet proposal for withdrawal of Russian and American troops from Korea by the end of the year. The Soviets were told the troop issue will be discussed before the United Nations along with other Korean questions.

This was revealed by the State Department yesterday with publication of an extraordinarily brief note which the American Embassy in Moscow delivered to Foreign Minister Molotov Tuesday.

The note was in response to a written statement from Molotov to the Embassy September 18 saying the Russians intend to get their troops out of Korea by the end of the year. Molotov expressed "hope" the United States would agree to do the same.

The American reply contained only three sentences. The first acknowledged the Russian note. The second said the note had been sent to Washington. The third commented:

"The Embassy has been . . . instructed to state that the United States Government regards the question of troop withdrawal as part of the larger question of Korean unity and independence, concerning which its views will be presented at the appropriate time by the United States delegate to the General Assembly of the United Nations."

Soviet troops have occupied northern Korea since the end of the war. American forces hold the southern part of the country.

On September 19, the Soviets announced they would withdraw their troops from Korea entirely by next January 1.

Chinese Reds Near Chinhsien

Peiping, Sept. 30 (AP).—Chinese Communists have fought into the suburbs of Chinhsien, vital terminus of the airlift to Mukden, pro-government press dispatches said today.

The accounts said the Communists also had reached a point only 6 miles east of Chinhsien, which is in southern Manchuria 125 miles from isolated Mukden.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek flew from Nanking to Peiping, presumably for conferences with his generals.

A government spokesman in Nanking estimated 120,000 Communists were attacking the garrison of 60,000 men, but Peiping reports said 300,000 Communists were in the immediate area.

The spokesman acknowledged that more Communists were moving to the scene and predicted hotter fighting.

Greece's Bank Vote Backs Former Foes

number of shares in the Bank's capital stock and the largest quotas in the Fund.

Yugoslavia's alignment with Polish and Czech members in the voting, was a reflection of its solidarity with those two eastern nations in the United Nations in Paris.

However, the difference between the eastern European bloc's performance in the meetings here and at Paris was pointed up by Bank President John J. McCloy. He stressed to reporters that their criticism was "not rasping—it was in good temper." They had joined Wednesday in criticizing praise of the Marshall Plan contained in the Bank's report.

Problems Pointed Out

Some of the problems facing Austria in her recovery from war were pointed out by Austrian Minister of Finance, Dr. George Zimmerman, at a luncheon at the Wardman Park Hotel.

"Three times in a single generation the Austrian economy has been forced into an entirely new pattern and forced to adapt itself to radically changed situations," he said.

"In 1918, with the crumbling of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, Austria's hitherto almost autarchic economy with 50 million inhabitants, had to be geared to the requirements of a small Alpine country with a population of seven million.

"Again in 1938, when Austria was occupied by the German Army and the Austrian economy forced into a pattern of the so-called Greater German Reich, a complete change in the foundations of Austria's production apparatus was brought about.

"The war, the collapse of the German Reich, and the aftermath of war again left liberated Austria with a disorganized and largely destroyed production apparatus.

Further Loss Each Time

"Not only did each of these catastrophes result in a complete turnover of the entire organizational structure, but each time Austria suffered a further loss in resources.

"Yet Austria showed a remarkable extent of adaptability and inner strength. In 1937, barely 20 years after the First World War had shaken her economy to its very foundations, the country achieved a balanced budget and a sound and stable currency.

"Austria has proved that her national existence rests on solid economical foundations and there is reason to believe that once the atmosphere of political security has returned to Central Europe and the shortage of capital overcome, Austria will become an asset rather than a liability in world economics.

"For Austria, ERP, as did UNRRA and congressional aid before it, means the assurance of food for our people and in turn their ability to work.

"As it becomes possible more and more to use the means provided by ERP for the procurement of raw materials and machine equipment for our industrial plants so badly battered by the war and the war's aftermath—in the same degree will it become increasingly possible by the proceeds from our increased exports to provide the means for paying for our imports. Thus the goal set by the Marshall Plan will be attained."

17 Injured as Bus Plows Into Tractor

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP).—Seventeen passengers were injured early today as a Greyhound express bus plowed into a tractor trailer that had jacknifed and overturned in its path.

Four of the injured were detained at Bryn Mawr Hospital. The others were treated at the scene just west of suburban Berwyn.

Sees No Serious Effect

James Dawson, information chief of the National Association of Broadcasters, said the industry had been "jittery" that the FCC might decide to abandon the present channels and "move upstairs" to the ultra-high frequencies.

"The consensus among television engineers is that it will take five to 10 years before we can begin operating up there," he told a reporter.

Dawson said he expects the FCC's order to have "no serious effect" on the industry, and he added:

"As a matter of fact, television has developed so fast that we need a breathing spell. Things have been breaking too fast for everybody."

Expert Sees No Rocket Speed Past 25,000 MPH

London, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—A British government expert said today that people cannot expect commercial aircraft to fly more than 25,000 miles an hour in the foreseeable future.

Further, he said, this speed will be attainable only between the world and other planets.

The highest foreseeable speed between points on this earth, he said, would be 18,000 miles an houi.

The prophet is P. G. Masefield, of the Civil Aviation Ministry. The speeds he cited, he said, would be attained by rocket craft.

'Equality' Plus

Cripps Calls 'Democracy' Abused Word

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared yesterday that some nations misuse the term "democracy" to describe their political systems.

He said this is particularly true in eastern Europe.

Addressing a luncheon of the United States Federal Bar Association at the Department of Justice, Sir Stafford declared: "The term 'democracy' has become a slogan, used very often to denote something that we certainly should never recognize as such. It is one of those often much-misused words—misused to trap the unwary and the ignorant into a surrender of those very rights which are in fact the foundations of true democracy.'"

Cripps said: "Democracy as we understand it denotes a control by a freely ascertained majority of the people over what would otherwise become the irresponsible acts of their leaders."

"And as a principle of government and of political organization it is a thousand times more important today than ever it was before," he continued, "because the power of those leaders in terms of life and death for millions of people has been so vastly magnified."

Cripps said, "There is quite another sense in which the term democracy has been used, particularly in eastern Europe, and that is to denote a certain equalization of economic advantage and opportunity imposed upon a people by a minority who quite genuinely believe it to be good for a nation."

100 Secrets Thought Obtained by Soviet the committee's espionage investigations was to find out what the Russians know, "so that in case of a conflict we may know how to proceed."

Earlier, McDowell had accused the Justice Department of preparing its charges against 12 Communist leaders "in such a way that they won't stick." A Federal grand jury in New York indicted them July 20 on charges of conspiring to overthrow the Government by force. Their trial is scheduled to begin October 15.

The Congressman said the indictments were drawn in such a manner that the 12 are "practically certain of not being punished for their crimes."

The Un-American Activities Committee has no more public hearings scheduled before the elections. Some time after November 2 the committee is expected to open hearings on the West Coast on reports of Communist influences in Hollywood.

Koral, an assistant engineer, was notified in a letter by Dr. William Jansen, superintendent of schools.

The House Committee questioned Koral last August on charges that he served as a paid courier for a war-time Russian espionage ring. He declined to answer on the ground that his reply might incriminate him. He also refused to tell the committee whether he ever had been a member of the Communist party.

Plan Hollywood Session

The House Un-American Activities Committee said yesterday it will hold hearings on the West Coast on alleged communism in the Hollywood movie industry.

Representative McDowell (R., Pa.), acting committee chairman, told reporters the hearings will be open to the public and will begin "some time after the election."

Mayo Specialist Called

Milwaukee, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dr. Arthur G. Steinberg, a specialist in genetics at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., was subpenaed today as a witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Dr. Steinberg will appear tomorrow before a subcommittee headed by Reepresentative Vail (R., Ill.), which is probing spying on atomic secrets.

Vail declined to indicate the nature of Dr. Steinberg's expected testimony but said the specialist was "in no sense a suspect." Vail added the testimony would be along "informational" lines.

School Board Fires Koral, Who Defied Red-Probers

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Alexander Koral, who refused to answer questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee, was fired today by the city board of education.

Longshoremen Demonstrate Against Army

San Francisco, Sept. 30 (AP).—Striking maritime workers demonstrated against the Army today, protesting the use of civil service longshoremen in the loading of military supplies.

Five police squad cars were sent to Fort Mason, but there was no violence. About 100 members of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Maritime Unions' joint action committee were at the Fort's dock entrance.

The unions object to the employment of the longshoremen outside of union hiring halls. However, ILYU headquarters said "there is no immediate plan to cancel" its contracts for Army loading.

Meanwhile, as the Pacific Coast martime strike entered its fifth week, the effect on other industries was becoming more critical. The California & Hawaiian Sugar refinery, the world's largest, announced it would shut down tomorrow. It is unable to get raw sugar from strikebound ships.

C. & H. officials said 1500 employes would be laid off.

Harry Bridges, chief of the striking longshoremen, said his union would contract to unload sugar "if we can get anybody to deal with us."

The Waterfront Employes' Association is refusing to negotiate with the union unless, and until, its leaders sign affidavits as required by the Taft-Hartley law saying whether they are Communists.

Ship Officer Strike Averted

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—A threatened strike of some 12,000 Atlantic and Gulf Coast ships' officers was called off tonight, a few hours before its midnight deadline.

Federal Mediator Bernard J. Forman, who made the announcement, said employers' representatives and the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots Association had reached agreement on wages and hiring procedures.

The agreement, Forman said, gives the union a 6 per cent across-the-board wage increase and provides for a compromise hiring clause.

Union officials announced that the agreement would be submitted to the union membership and that the voting process on it would take about 30 days. In the meantime, Forman said, there will be no strike.

Forman said the agreement also provides for a wage review at the option of either party next April 1, and "several changes in working conditions" from those of the last contract which expired tonight. He did not amplify.

The union had asked for a 10 per cent increase for mates and a "substantial" increase for masters. Present rates range from $646 to $712 monthly.

Three CIO Union Leaders Noncommittal When Questioned on Communist Connections

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Congressional probers put the "Are-you-or-were-you a Communist" question to three more CIO officials today and again got noncommittal answers.

Vottis

But the House Labor Subcommittee looking for Communist infiltration in unions heard witnesses testify that:

1. Leo Jandreau, business agent of Local 301, United Electrical Workers Union, was a dues-paying Communist Party member in the late 1930s.

2. Andrew Peterson, president of the local, was a "willing tool" of the party.

3. The Communists have a "stranglehold" on Local 301.

Claim 15,000 Members

The local claims 15,000 workers at the General Electric Co.'s big parent plant here. Yesterday the Atomic Energy Commission blacklisted the United Electrical Workers from the atomic power plant GE will operate near Schenectady.

The three officers of Local 301 who declined to answer whether they were or had been Communists were Peterson, Milo Lathrop, the union's district legislative representative, and William Mastriani, chief shop steward of Local 301.

They said they were within their constitutional rights in refusing to answer questions from the subcommittee chairman, Representative Kersten (R., Wis.).

The committee's first witness at its hearing here was Salvatore Vottis, former financial secretary of Local 301, who described himself as a former Communist.

Tells of Dues Collections

Vottis testified that he had collected Jandreau's dues for two or three years after December, 1936. He also was the witness to list Peterson as a willing Communist party tool.

Another witness, Thomas Riggi, said the Communists have "a complete stranglehold on this (Local 301) union."

Riggi said he was a member of the Communist Party from 1932 until "four or five years ago" and during some of that time he worked at General Electric.

Vottis said the party had considered it very important to "organize" General Electric workers and that "Jandreau was considered a good man for union office by the Communist Party even before he joined the party."

Chairman Kersten opened the Local 301 probe today after two days of committee hearings in Washington on the Electrical Workers Union generally. The Schenectady organization claims a membership of 15,000 GE employes.

Vottis, who said he was a Communist Party member from 1935 until 1939, testified that the party had engineered "the beginning of the nomination" in 1942 of Representative Bernard W. Kearney of Gloversville, a Republican from the Thirty-first Congressional District.

Valued Military Tie

The Communists at the time valued Kearnel's military background, he said, and used the District CIO Council as a contact with the Schenectady County Republican organization.

But Kearney knew nothing about the Communist string-pulling, he added, in response to a question.

The Congressman could not be reached for comment.

Vottis said that during 1936 while he was an officer of the local he "met regularly" with Communist Party members in Schenectady.

"Once in awhile," he said, "Earl Browder would come up from New York to pep us up."

Vottis said that at the meetings party members were told by leaders that "it is of the utmost importance to the party to organize General Electric."

He said that in the eyes of the Communist Party General Electric represented "the strongest bulwark of capitalism."

Vottis also testified that he made frequent trips to Communist Party headquarters in New York City and that "that was the first place I met Mike Quill."

Quill is head of the CIO Transport Workers Union.

Vottis, now a retail store operator, said he attended a "secret school" for Communists near Beacon, N. Y. He said he attended for six weeks during April and June of 1936, while financial secretary of Local 301, and that expenses were paid by the Communist Party.

"My excuse in the union for leaving for six weeks was that I was attending a labor school," Vottis said.

NLRB Uses New Jurisdictional Dispute Power

The National Labor Relations Board put to use yesterday its new power to umpire jurisdictional disputes between unions.

The board held a hearing on the first case to reach it under the Taft-Hartley law provision and announced its decision will be given later.

Involved is a fight betwen the Independent International Association of Machinists and the CIO Steel Workers. Each wants the right to represent ship repair and construction workers of the Moore Drydock Co. in San Francisco Bay.

Richard Ernst, company attorney, argued that the work should go to the CIO union because Moore for years has employed CIO workers.

However, IAM attorneys Merle Ryder and A. C. McGraw said their union, as well as the CIO union, has contracts with the Moore Co. to represent workers. They asked for dismissal of the case.

93 More Latecomers Sign for Draft Here

Ninety-three more youths of draft age, 18 through 25, registered tardily yesterday. These raised to about 1200 the total of youths who have signed up since registration officially ended September 18.

Such late registrants will not be penalized—if they have "reasonable" explanations for their belatedness, according to Lieut. Col. Walter S. Welsh, chief of the District draft's manpower.

"But flagrant cases of late registration—youths lacking valid excuses," he said "will probably be declared delinquent and moved to the top of the inductios list."

However, he pointed out that many late registrants are draft-deferrable because of marriage or previous military service.

Meanwhile, names of 30 medical advisers to local boards and three proposed replacements in the District draft organization were submitted to the Commisisoners for approval yesterday by William E. Leahy, District Selective Service director.

Today the draft staff will begin classification of the District's 52,788 registrants, and determine assignment of each registrant to a local board. The oldest will head the list—and be called first.

Monday, the first 10 men will face physical examination at the Army recruiting office, 403 10th st. nw. An additional 10 will report daily during the week. Thereafter, during October, 18 a day will be called for physicals, five days a week.

The Army will shuttle the young men from the recruiting office to Fort Leslie McNair and the Pentagon, for physicals, Colonel Welsh said.

At the same time, he warned youths who have become 18 since registration ended that they must register on their birthday, or within five days. Eight such "current" eligibles registered yesterday, he reported.

Nominated to Boards

Nominated to local boards yesterday, to fill vacancies created by resignations, were:

Note Cached By Adm. Peary Is Published

A note cached by Admiral Robert E. Peary 450 miles from the North Pole on an Arctic expedition 43 years ago was published yesterday by the State Department.

The short note, dated September 5, 1905, was recovered last summer by a three-ship United States Navy expedition on which Canada was represented.

Longer Record Found

Also recovered was a copy of a longer record left there July 25, 1876, by Capt. G. S. Nares, who headed a British expedition aboard HMS Alert and Discovery. Peary took Nares' original note and left a copy in the cairn with his own record.

The State Department and the Canadian government arranged for simultaneous publication of texts of the two notes.

Peary's note said:

"Cape Sheridan, September 5th, 1905.

"The Peary Arctic Club's ship Roosevelt arrived here from New York at 7 a. m. and made fast to the icefoot under the point of the cape awaiting the turn of the tide to procede to Cape Hecla.

"The Roosevelt left New York July 16, Sidney, Cape Breton, July 26, arrived Cape York August 7 and left Etah August 17. Her last stopping place was the icefoot south of Cape Union, which she left at 3:30 this morning.

Took Records

"Personally visited the Albert's cairn at Floberg Beach, and took therefrom Alsert's record, copy of which accompanies this. Roster of the Roosevelt's company is also enclosed.

"R. E. Peary, USN.

"Commanding the expedition."

The copy of Nares' record which Peary left said:

"HMS 'Alert' wintered off this coast: Inside the grounded ice 1875-76. HMS 'Discovery,' her consort, passed the same winter in a well-sheltered harbour in lat. 81 degrees, 44 minutes north, long. 65 degrees, five minutes west.

"The sledge crews after a severe journey over the ice succeeding in attaining lat. 83 degrees, 20 minutes, 30 seconds N. No land has been sighted to the north. Another division explored the coast line to the northward and westward to lat. 82 degrees, 23 minutes N., long. 84 degrees, 56 minutes W. Cape Columbia, the northernmost cape, being in lat. 83 degrees, 7 minutes N., long. 70 degrees, 30 minutes west.

"Sledge parties from the 'Discovery' have explored the Greenland shore for some distance to the northward and eastward, but the result of the examination is not yet known to me.

"Scurvy attacked nearly all the men employed in sledge traveling. Two deaths have occurred: Neils C. Peterson from the effects of a severe frost bite (which necessitated a part of each foot being amputated) followed by exhaustion and scorbutic taint:—and George Porter, gunner R.M.A., who died from scurvy and general debility when absent on a sledge journey; and was buried on the floe in lat. 82 degrees, 41 minutes N.

"The ice in the polar sea broke up on the 20th July, when it permits us to move, the 'alert' will proceed south and join company with the 'Discovery'; both ships will then sail for Port Folke, and most probably thence to England.

"G. S. Nares,

"Captain R. N.

"Commanding Arctic Exposition."

Jury Frees Girl, 16, In Slaying of Father

Wheaton, Ill., Sept. 30 (U.P.)—Frances Korbelik, 16, gained a directed verdict of acquittal today from a circuit court jury on charges of murdering her father. Her confession was ruled out.

The body of her father, William Korbelik, 40, a CIO union official, was found last May 3 in the basement of his home. He was shot to death January 10.

In a statement to police, Frances said her father came home intoxicated and raped her after accusing her of "running around" with boys.

Lane Names Committees To Place DPs

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—Governor Lane announced today the formation of state and county committees to help weld displaced persons into Maryland farm life.

He said about 1500 homeless Europeans will come to Maryland and be placed primarily in agricultural work.

The Department of Employment Security, headed by Russell S. Davis, will have overall responsibility for finding jobs for them.

The committees, representing nationalities of the displaced persons and farmers throughout the State, will work at both ends to insure "proper allocation of this personnel," the Governor said.

Nationality groups will acquaint "DPs" with their new situations and serve as translators, he said. The local committees will work with farmers, help arrange a "wise selection" for each farm and assist the newcomers after they arrive.

William F. Laukatis of Baltimore, supreme president of the Lithuanian Alliance of America, was named chairman of the nationality committees.

The displaced persons will be among thousands admitted to the United States under new quotas

A Statehouse spokesman said Maryland is the first to organize a State-wide program to integrate the DPs into its farm or industrial life.

Chiefs of local employment offices and county agents serve on each of the county groups.

Among the local committee:

Montgomery: S. Gilbert Brown, O. W. Anderson, Wilson C. Poole, James B. King, Kenneth Windham.

Prince Georges: Mrs. Marguerite R. Miller, P. E. Clark, Harry W. Townsend, Rogers Naylor, Harold C. Townshend.

Parents Reconciled In Baby Operations

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—The reconciliation of Fred and Irene Lamphere, estranged by a dispute over whether their baby should be operated upon, became official today.

Judge Walter R. O'Malley of Superior Court dismissed Mrs. Lamphere's suit for divorce. Their daughter, Pamela, 23 months, was born with her bladder outside her body.

Opposition Party In Canada Meets To Select Leader

Ottawa, Sept. 30 (AP).—John Bracken, retiring chief of Canada's Progressive-Conservative Party, said today Communism must be smothered wherever it appears.

Laying aside six years as leader of the chief opposition party, Bracken warned the 1300 delegates they must turn neither t the left toward Communism nor to the right.

The delegates will begin voting Saturday on a new leader. Observers agree George Drew, 54-year-old premier of Ontario and a foe of communism, is likely win.

Rated second was John Diefenbaker, member of parliament

Whoever is selected will be in positio nto become prime minister of Canada should the opposition defeat the dominant National Liberal Party in the 1949-1950 election.

Homes Started On Land Cited In School Suit

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

A steamshovel was digging foundations for homes yesterday in land behind Arlington's Walter Reed School, despite an Arlington School Board suit to condemn the land for playground use.

The property owned by the George A. Snell Construction Corp., is at N. 18th and McKinley rd.

Snell said he planned to build individual GI homes there.

The condemnation action was taken by Alfred W. Trueax, who was retained by the school board. Trueax said he will ask a Circuit Court injunction to stop the digging.

Suit Before Supreme Court

In December Porter represented the old board in a suit contesting the legality of the present, elected group. The old board had been appointed by the Circuit Court.

The old board's suit was lost in Arlington Circuit Court. An appeal now is before the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Porter said last night he was unaware that excavation was under way on the Snell property. But he said he had first been notified of the impending condemnation action August 18, and "we just got tired of the delay."

The subpena, Porter said, is returnable October 11.

Agrees to Buy 14 Lots

Arlington School Board Chairman Barnard Joy said the board had agreed to purchase the 14 lots owned by Snell at its July 19 meeting. He said a future planned expansion of the Walter Reed School would gobble up nearly all of the present play space, and that the land is "badly needed."

One source yesterday said Snell had asked approximately $8000 more for the property than the school board was willing to pay. The condemnation suit then was filed.

U. S. and Britain May Standardize Nuts and Bolts

By The Associated Press

American and British nuts and bolts may be standardized soon to help industry and the armed forces of both countries.

A formal pact may be signed in about two weeks, ending decades of negotiations.

The standardized thread is described as being of tremendous value to industry, and vital to speeding up standardization of arms by the two friendly powers.

The new thread will be a compromise between the American 60 degree angle and several characteristics of threads used by Britain.

A standardized thread, officials said, is almost as important as standardizing arms and ammunition. They said it would make possible quick repairs of arms and equipment on any front or port jointly used.

Seven Are Arrested In Numbers Raids

Mud on Clothing

Young Man Quizzed in Dual Killing

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—A young man dressed in dungarees and wearing sideburns was brought to police headquarters here today for questioning about the 13-day-old mystery of the Mahlan-Kline killings.

Later, Chief John H. Souers, jr., of the Anne Arundel County police disclosed the man was taken into custody by two county policemen "somewhere in the Ferndale-Glen Burnie area."

He declined to comment further.

Questioned by Officials

The man, who appeared to be about 23, was spirited into police headquarters by a basement door and taken to the detective bureau by way of the commissioner's private elevator. His hair was disheveled and he had traces of mud on his clothing.

He was questioned behind locked doors by top Baltimore City and Anne Arundel County police officials. About an hour later he was taken by police to an undisclosed location.

Meanwhile investigators expressed doubt that a rejected suitor had anything to do with the slaying of pretty Mary Kline and her favorite date, John H. Mahlan, 25-year-old postal worker.

James C. Morton, jr., Anne Arundel State's attorney, put a "fantastic" label on reports that county authorities have been keeping a close watch on a college student who once courted the 18-year-old, red-haired typist.

Souers said: "If we had such a suspect he would be brought in for questioning . . . even if he was my own brother."

Grocer Released

These were other developments:

A young Negro was held for questioning at county police headquarters in nearby Ferndale. Officers refused to discuss his connection with the case.

A 48-year-old grocer picked up two days ago near the intersection of Defense and Generals highways west of Annapolis was released.

Two filling station attendants were brought in, questioned, and released in a few minutes.

The entire Metropolitan Police vice squad, with 18 men in five cars, made four simultaneous raids on a flourishing numbers ring yesterday afternoon.

Five men and two women were arrested on charges of operating a lottery and possessing lottery slips. They were released in $1500 bond for appearance today at a United States commissioner's hearing.

The raids, which came off at 4:15 p. m., were directed by Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad.

Some of the raiders converged on headquarters of the ring which, police said, occupied an entire house at 910 10th st. ne. The basement was lavishly furnished and had a blue leather-upholstered bar with seating room for 14 persons.

Arrested there were Ralph N. MacKnight, 56, of 836 Divison ave. ne.; Charles King, 29, of 1343 Q st. nw., and Othello Washington, 38, of 2029 Flagler pl. nw. The last-named gave his occupation as salesman. Police said he had $400 on his person.

A second group of raiders arrested Mrs. Nancy Buxton, 50, in her basement apartment at 1711 Euclid st. nw. Police said they had visited there previously and placed bets.

A laundry at 2510 14th st. nw. was a third place visited by police. They arrested there Carrie Haskins, 27, of 804 G st. ne. Police said undercover men previously had made plays at the laundry, also.

In the vicinity of the 10th st. headquarters, at the corner of 9th and K sts. ne., police arrested two men in a parked car. They are Connie Pitts, 45, of 719 L st. ne., and Ben Curry Jackson, 51, of 612 Kenilworth ave. ne. MacKnight had just alighted from the car to enter the headquarters, police said.

The car had been followed by detectives, who said its occupants appeared to have picked up bets at the Euclid and 14th sts. addresses.

Confiscated in the raid were a book which listed 40 pick-up stops for numbers operators and 14 grocery bags filled with lottery slips, police said.

False Credit Data Costs Salesman Year at Lorton

A 41-year-old clothing salesman, who asked for probation to make restitution for the $80 worth of articles he charged under false pretenses at a ladies apparel store here, yesterday was sentenced instead to serve 360 days at Lorton Reformatory.

The plea for prboation was made by Paul Jamison Garrahan, no fixed address, who explained that he had been on a drinking bout when the offenses occurred. He offered to join Alcoholics Anonymous.

He was charged with false pretenses after he reopened his sister's unused charge account at the Philipsborn Store, 608 11th st. nw., charged wearing apparel and then failed to settle the account.

After learning that he had been sentenced Monday to serve 60 days for petit larceny, involving the theft of two coats from another store, Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell denied his request and imposed the heavy sentence. Garrahan was released from Lorton last June after serving 19 months for grand larceny, it was learned.

Condon to Represent U. S. at Paris Parley

The State Department announced yesterday that Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, will be one of this country's delegates to the ninth conference of the International Bureau of Weights and Measures at Paris October 12 to 21.

The other representative will be Dr. Eugene C. Critfenden, associate director of the bureau.

The conference will consider such matters as standardization of the use of wave lengths of light as a means of precision measurement and revision of the international temperature scale.

Eye Trouble Hospitalizes Sterile Bull

Ames, Iowa, Sept. 30 (AP).—T. Royal Rupert 99th, the $38,000 Hereford bull, who hasn't produced a penny's worth of offspring, is in the hospital again.

This time it's eye trouble.

The bull—worth only its weight in hamburger until ability to become a father is shown—still is being given careful treatment for he shows signs of promise.

Last July an operation was performed in which a pituitary gland from another bull was transplanted in Rupert's flank in hopes of correcting his sterility.

Dr. M. A. Emmerson of the Iowa State College Veterinary Department performed the transplant, but he said today he wouldn't know until about the first of the year whether the operation was a success.

Rupert is back at the college temporarily for treatment of an eye injury suffered at the farm near Colfax, Iowa, where the bull was taken after the operation.

At Colfax, where Rupert was given into the care of a feed firm by Gov. Roy Turner of Oklahoma, who owns him, hopeful signs have been noted. Rupert has been showing a genuine interest in courtship since recovering from his operation, whereas before he was lackadaisical.

But his sponsors still are awaiting definite results.

U. S. and Bolivia Sign Air Transport Pact

The United States and Bolivia have signed an air transport agreement, the State Department announced yesterday.

City News in Brief

Dairies Won't Cut School Milk Price

Readvertising for bids to supply half pints of milk in the penny milk program proved futile, District Purchasing Agent Roland M. Brennan said yesterday in awarding contracts at previously submitted figures.

The original bids were rejected as too high, but the new ones submitted were almost identical, so that he had no alternative but to make awards, Brennan said.

The Embassy Dairy will supply milk at $.0575 a half pint to 73 schools; the Richfield Dairy will furnish milk to 22 schools at $.056 and the Thompson Dairy will serve 20 schools at $.052.

Under the program, children in the 115 elementary schools pay a penny for the milk, the Agriculture Department pays 2 cents and the District pays the rest. The program begins Monday.

Deaf Flier Honored

Rhulin Thomas, a former Missourian, yesterday was awarded a gold medal in a White House ceremony for being the first deaf man to fly an airplane across the United States.

Now a linotype operator for the Washington Evening Star, Thomas, who lives at 1140 Oates st. ne., was given the medal by Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's military aide. The presentation was made in behalf of the National Association of the Deaf and the Missouri State Association of the Deaf.

Thomas flew from Washington to Los Angeles last October in a small airplane. He made the flight in 11 days.

Cleared on Assault Charge

Pierre A. Gadol, 32, of 4704 Drummond ave., Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday was acquitted in Rockville police court of a charge of assaulting a minor last May at a Chevy Chase playground. Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee ruled there was insufficient evidence to support complaints by parents that Gadol molested a 10-year-old girl.

Driving Test Holiday

No examinations for drivers' permits will be given during the week beginning November 15, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said yesterday.

An in-service training school for driver permit examiners will be held at that time instead of the week of October 4 as originally announced, he said.

New Plumbing Examiner

Frank Bentley, a representative of the District's master plumbers, was appointed to the Plumbing Examination Board yesterday by the District Commissioners for a two-year term. He fills the vacancy created by the death of Elmon J. Ewing.

Honored by GAR Ladies

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, 515 East Clifton ter. nw., yesterday was elected senior vice president of Ladies of the GAR during a convention of GAR groups in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mother Faints, Kills Baby

Reading, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP).—Four-week-old Dolores Helga Lake was found dead beneath her mother, Mrs. Alfred Lake, jr., who had fainted while holding the child, police reported.

A 4-acre tract in Virginia, the final parcel needed for the erection of the Virginia approaches to the East Highway Bridge, will be turned over to the District government today, it was learned last night.

The area will be purchased from the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad for $162,500. Officials of the railroad are expected to deliver a deed to the tract and collect payment today, according to District Property Survey Officer Paul Chalupsky.

Negotiations for purchase of the land were made by the District's Real Estate Committee, headed by Lieut. Col. Kenneth E. Madsen, assistant engineer commissioner. Other members are Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent, Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler, Director of Construction Archie G. Hutson, Surveyor Francis F. Healy and Chalupsky.

The purchase of the tract was approved by the District Commissioners after preliminary negotiations were made by Healy and Chalupsky. Other land required for the Virginia end of the crossing and cloverleaf junctions there has previously been acquired.

The 4 acres are located between the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, the Hot Shoppe located on U. S. Highway No. 1 and the railroad bridge.

Work on the superstructure of the bridge is expected to begin December 1. A contract was awarded May 5 to the Bethlehem Steel Co. to fabricate the steel. The superstructure completion date is November, 1949.

Director of Highways J. N. Robertson said contracts for laying of a concrete roadbed on the bridge, as well as for erection of approaches on both the District and Virginia sides will be let later. Upon completion the present highway bridge will be torn down and replaced by a modern structure while the new bridge carries all traffic.

Eventually, the four-lane twin spans will each carry one-way traffic on the No. 1 highway.

Man, 24, Accused Of Molesting Boy, To Be Examined

A 24-year-old plumber's helper was ordered in Municipal Court to undergo examination at Gallinger Hospital to determine if he is a sexual psychopath.

He is John Anthony Antonelli, of 828 49th ave., Capitol Heights, Md., who has been under $500 bond on a charge of simple assault for allegedl asking a 5-year-old boy to commit an indecent and obscene act with him.

Antonelli was originally charged with a sex offense under the MRiller Act but the charge was changed and the United States attorney's office filed a petition yesterday asking for the sexual psycopathic examination. Antonelli, who has a record prior arrest for sex offenses, asked the United States attorney's office to be hospitalized, it was learned.

Charges Unjust, U. S. Asks to Drop Safeway Trail Suit

The Labor Department yesterday asked District Court to dismiss a suit, filed against Safeway Trail, Inc., charging the company with violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938.

The original suit, filed August 10, charged that the motor company had failed to pay overtime to some 36 employes and had failed to keep accurate wage and hour records. It asked for a judgment enjoining the company from such violations.

Chiefs Urge Educating of Pedestrians

Old Point Comfort, Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—The idea of educating the pedestrian was the main theme in a panel discussion of a safety program at the thirty-third annual Virginia Chiefs of Police convention here today.

Led by Maj. John Hanna of the Richmond Traffic Bureau, the discussion included the following: Capt. J. A. Mayo of the Norfolk police department; Robert O. Brooks, Lynchburg police captain, and Lieut. S. A. Bruce, head of the Roanoke traffic bureau.

Mayo said the pedestrian does not understand the driver's problems and these solutions were of-

Engineering advancements, including the improvement of physical facilities; law enforcement and stronger legislation, and education, the most important of the three.

Brooks said he, too, thought pedestrian education was a prime factor in a safety program, but also stressed the need for stronger laws governing the habits of pedestrians. He said any safety program must revolve around school and education in close harmony with traffic policemen.

8700 Bills For Taxes Paid At Deadline

More than 8700 bills for real estate and personal property taxes were paid at the District tax collector's office yesterday. The deadline for payment of the first half of each bill was last midnight.

Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson said the final day was "average." The two heaviest days were August 30, when the bills arrived in District homes, and September 7, following the Labor Day weekend.

Pearson estimated that about 60 per cent of the $31,884,875 payable in real estate taxes has been received, and from 60 to 70 per cent of the $5,556,291 in personal property levies.

Six cashiers were on duty yesterday, and the average wait was less than 10 minutes, Pearson said. Most of the bills have been paid in person, rather than by mail, which Pearson attributed to the recent pleasant weather. Mail payments postmarked up to last midnight will be accepted without penalty, he said.

Prince Georges Kindergarten Opens Next Week

A kindergarten for Prince Georges County children living in the vicinity of Takoma Park, Md., will open next week in a city-owned building at 8 Columbia ave., Takoma Park.

According to Mrs. Ellery Denison, chairman of the kindergarten committee for the J. Enos Ray Elementary School, which is sponsoring the kindergarten, a definite opening date has now been set pending completion of alterations to a room allotted by Takoma Park officials to the school. However, 50 children already have been enrolled, Mrs. Denison said yesterday.

Classes at the new site will be directed by Miss Ruth Ivers, who has been in charge for the past four years.

Own Roof Over Head Called Baldness Cure

London, Sept. 30 (AP).—The case of a man whose baldness was cured by acquiring a house was reported today in the Practitioner, a British medical journal.

Dr. F. F. Hellier, dermatologist, wrote that "the essential cause of alopecia areata (patchy baldness) is psychological.

"A patient of mine revealed . . . that he was 'fed up' at living in his mother-in-law's house. No doubt there were deeper conflicts lurking in his subconscious, but the acquisition of a new house cured his depression and his alopecia."

TRY THIS FAMILIAR FAVORITE TETLEY TEA The Sign of Quality SINCE 1837

Today! Begin getting Triple-prize cakes with NEW Emulsorized SNOWDRIFT!

GIVES YOU SPECIAL BLENDING AID FOR NEW "QUICK-MIXED" CAKES!

Yes, New Emulsorized Snowdrift gives you a special blending aid. And oh! how this helps with the new "quick-mixed" cakes. They call for more sugar, more milk. New Snowdrift "blends in" these extra quantities...gives satin-smooth batters...lighter, richer, moister cakes. Your family will rave about them! Try New Snowdrift, too, for pie crust. M-m! so flaky and light! And for fried foods so crisp and digestible!

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY THE WESSON OIL PEOPLE

RECIPE

DELICATE GINGER CAKE WITH FRESH ORANGE ICING

Quick-mixing with New Snowdrift. And quick-vanishing when folks taste it!

Sift together in a large bowl:
2 cups sifted cake flour
¼ teaspoon soda
1¾ teaspoons double-action baking powder (2 teaspoons single-action)
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup sugar

Add: ½ cup Snowdrift, ½ cup milk, ¼ cup molasses

Mix until flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. If you beat by hand and take "rests," count beating time only. (If you use electric mixer, set at "low speed"; scrape bowl and beaters frequently.)

Add: ½ cup milk, 2 eggs

Beat 1 minute. Turn into 2 greased 8-inch layer pans with bottoms lined with waxed paper. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 30 minutes. Cool on racks 5 minutes; turn out of pans, invert and cool.

Frost with—FRESH ORANGE ICING

4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
6 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon (soft) butter
1 tablespoon Snowdrift
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Combine ingredients in the top of double boiler; stand over hot water about 10 minutes. Remove from hot water. Beat until cool and creamy. Spread on cake. Decorate top with sections of orange.

For crisp fried foods... so digestible! For light, flaky pie crust, too!

Try New SNOWDRIFT Today!

Garden Food Stores Celebrates First Anniversary

Washington, D. C.—The local division of the Garden Food Stores with a membership of 114 friendly independent retail food merchants, located in every section of Washington, D. C., and in nearby communities of Maryland and Virginia are now celebrating their first full year of service to the families in these communities. This local division of the Garden Food Stores is a voluntary cooperative retail grocers association, affiliated with branch warehouses located in Washington, D. C.; Richmond, Va.; Chester, Pa.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Shenandoah, Pa., bringing to the housewives in these communities the benefits of their tremendously large purchasing powers of foodstuffs.

This enables each Garden Food Store to offer Mrs. Consumer greater values and savings toward their family food budget. The outstanding First Anniversary Offer of the Garden Food Stores selling top quality ball-bearing roller skates for only $1.98 (a $3.95 value) is an example of the vast cooperative purchasing power of the organization. Garden Food Stores feature PERLO FANCY FOODS, finest nature provides. This high quality line of food products is always sold with a money-back guarantee. Lucky Dutchman Brand is another quality brand featured in all Garden Food Stores.

Listed below are the addresses of all friendly Garden Food Stores so that "thrifty housewives" may conveniently locate their nearest savings headquarters.

Committee Criticizes Official Connections Between County Farm Bureaus, U. S. Services

Sharp criticism of official connections between county farm bureaus in several States and the Government Extension Service has been made by a national committee reporting on extension programs, policies and goals.

The committee was made up of 10 members, 5 named by the Department of Agriculture and 5 by the Association of Land-Grant Colleges, which directs the extension work. The committee has studied the extension service since October, 1946.

Although the connections under criticism affect only about 10 States, they include 6 States in which the American Farm Bureau has its greatest strength. These are Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, New York, Alabama and Indiana. It is from these States that leadership of the farm bureau has come in recent years.

In these States the farm bureau is favored over other farm organizations through its connections with the extension service. In Iowa, the strongest farm bureau State, with a membership of 135,000, the bureau has virtually crowded out other farm organizations. In the last election it took an active part in defeating Gov. Robert Blue, Republican, for re-election. Blue had challenged the bureau on several issues before the Legislature.

In Iowa the county bureaus get their income from Federal funds, allocated for extension work, from membership dues and from appropriations by the counties.

The Iowa law does not mention the farm bureau, but the requirements it sets up for county aid associations virtually describe the farm bureau setup.

Similar situations exist in the other States. None of the States with such a setup favoring the farm bureau is near Washington.

The close association between the Federal extension service, the State and county governments with the farm bureaus in these States has been under fire from industry sources for years. Many county extension agents, whose salaries are paid from public funds, have been active in conducting membership campaigns for the bureau, editing bureau publications, and managing cooperative businesses.

In one State, Michigan, several years ago the county newspapers boycotted farm bureau news until the State bureau agreed to stop publication of county farm bureau newspapers.

The committee report declared: "This committee expresses its conviction that it is not sound public policy for extension to give preferred service to any farm organization or to be in position of being charged with such actions.

"The committee is further convinced that it would be in the public interest for any formal operating relationships between the extension service and any general farm organization such as the farm bureau to be discontinued at the earliest possible moment.

"It is appreciated that this is a matter involved in the field of States rights. However, this committee is convinced that the best interests of extension work, the farm bureau and the farmers themselves will be served when all legal connections and exclusive operating arrangements between farm bureaus and the extension service are discontinued.

"The extension service can function most effectively only when it is recognized as a public agency and operating in the interests of all on an equal basis."

The committee members are:

Appointed by former Secretary of Agriculture Anderson: Edmund de S. Brunner, professor of rural sociology, Columbia University; P. V. Cardon, United States Bureau of Plant Industry; David Meeker, educational director Dearborn Motors Corp., Detroit; W. A. Minor, assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture and Thomas E. Wilson, chairman, Wilson and Co., Chicago.

Appointed by the Land-Grant Colleges: Walter C. Coffey, president emeritus, University of Minnesota; Herman L. Donovan, president, University of Kentucky; Roy M. Green, president, Colorado A. & M.; John A. Hannah, president, Michigan State College; John R. Hutchinson, chancellor, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and H. P. Rusk, dean and director, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

'Nubbins' Is Growing Up

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FOREST HOFFMAN, the "early Christmas boy" of 1944, now weighs 40 pounds, is 43 inches tall and is going to kindergarten in his home town, Cheyenne, Wyo. Four years ago, when "Nubbins" was 3, his parents despaired of his living. They fixed an early Christmas tree for him because they thought his kidney infection would never let him live until December 25. Persons from over the Nation mailed him presents. This year, however, the boy expects a normal Christmas at home, thanks to daily injections of 2½ milligrams of male hormones in oil, decided on by physicians to save his life

P-TA to Study Comic Books

A study of comic books, radio shows and motion pictures to determine their effect on children will be undertaken this year by the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The survey will be part of a Nation-wide program initiated by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in an effort to raise the standard of entertainment for children.

P-TA groups throughout the city will be asked to evaluate books and programs and to refer to the local congress materials found to be objectionable. An effort will be made, the P-TA said, to have these materials removed from the market. A review also will be made of local laws governing the sale and distribution of books and films and recommendations will be made for strengthening them, it was said.

3 From Area to Work for Army in Germany

Three Greater Washingtonians are among five persons appointed to positions with the Office of Military Government for Germany (U. S.), the Department of the Army has announced.

Those from this area and their positions include:

Melvin L. Alter, 2500 Q st. nw., associate staff secretary of the Secretariat General, OMGUS. He recently served with the State Department and the Economic Cooperation Administration concerning problems in Korea. He will serve as a liaison official with the French and British elements of military government.

Miss Sadie B. Arbuthnot, 2124 I st. nw., prosecutor with the Legal Division of OMGUS in Wuerttemberg-Baden at Stuttgart. She has been an attorney with the Department of Justice since leaving this year as trial attorney in the Office of Chief Counsel for War Crimes at Nuernberg.

Frank B. Lane, 217 Lexington dr., Silver Spring, Md., airways engineer with the Civil Aviation Armed Forces Division of OMGUS. A graduate of Cornell University, Lane has been the chief engineer of the Engineering and Research Corp. of Riverdale, Md., since 1945.

Others appointed to OMGUS in the Army's announcement are James A. Crutchfield of El Cerrito, Calif., price economist, and Charles D. Daily, Kansas City, Mo., administrative officer for the Munich-Reims Airport.

*Recipes below

Blue Plate Mayonnaise
Made by the WESSON OIL PEOPLE using FINEST SALAD OIL
TUNA-CUCUMBER PARTY LOAF
Airy-light jellied salad—topped with FRESH, FRESH Blue Plate Mayonnaise!
12-16 servings. For family supper, use ½ recipe.
3 envelopes plain gelatin
¾ cup cold water
4½ cups tomato juice
3 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tbsp. grated onion
¾ tsp. salt
Dash cayenne
1½ tsp. dry mustard
2 cups tuna, flaked
3 egg whites (use yolks in Strawberry Cream recipe)
½ cup finely chopped, drained cucumber
⅔ cup Blue Plate Mayonnaise
Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat tomato and lemon juice, onion, salt, cayenne, mustard. Add hot tomato juice mixture to gelatin, stirring until gelatin dissolves. When cool, refrigerate until thick. Fold in tuna, and egg whites beaten stiff. Pour into loaf pan, refrigerate. Unmold, spread top with Blue Plate Mayonnaise, blended with chopped cucumber. Garnish with slices of unpeeled cucumber.

Blue Plate Peanut Butter
SMOOTH—TO THE BOTTOM OF THE JAR! DOES NOT SEPARATE PARTY APPETIZERS
All 3 easy-to-make, and delicious, with Blue Plate's "fresh-roasted" peanut flavor
½ cup Blue Plate Peanut Butter
¼ cup chili sauce
¼ cup Blue Plate Mayonnaise
4 slices crumbled crisp bacon
Mix together, spread on crackers, and garnish with sliced olives.
1 cup Blue Plate Peanut Butter
Grated rind 1 lemon
½ cup lemon juice
Blend; spread on toast triangles or crackers.
½ cup Blue Plate Peanut Butter
2 tbsp. olive juice
½ cup finely chopped olives
Blend together and serve on toast rounds or crackers.
(Blue Plate Peanut Butter is thrifty energy food—rich in vitamins and protein too)

Blue Plate Preserves and Jellies
OLD-FASHIONED FLAVOR!
STRAWBERRY CREAM
12-16 party servings. For a family meal, use ½ recipe, and serve larger portions
Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves
¼ cup Blue Plate Margarine
16 crushed graham crackers (2 cups)
¼ cup sugar
Melt Blue Plate Margarine and blend thoroughly with sugar and crushed graham crackers. Press into bottom and part way up sides of sherbet glasses or fluted paper baking cups. Put 3 tablespoons Cream Filling in each, chill until serving time. Top with Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves. (The Blue Plate People use choicest fruits, handle them with the same care you'd give in your kitchen.)
Cream Filling: Scald 2 cups milk. Mix ¼ cup sugar, 2 tbsp. flour, ¼ tsp. salt, and blend with milk. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly, until thick. Cover, cook 10 min. Blend a little into 3 beaten egg yolks, add yolks to hot mixture, and cook 2 min., stirring. Cool, add 1 tsp. vanilla.

Charles Mazey Retires From Secret Service

Charles Mazey, who has spent 28 years rounding up counterfeiters and forgers as a Secret Service agent for the United States Treasury Department, retired yesterday as supervising agent of the Washington District of the United States Secret Service.

Mazey

Mazey, of 19 Brookdale rd., Brookdale, Md., is the first member of the Secret Service to retire under a recently passed law permitting Federal employes engaged in hazardous work to leave after 20 years' service at a minimum age of 50. He has been in charge of the Washington district, including Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

Mazey, who is 57, has ferreted out scores of criminals since he entered the Secret Service back in 1920 in Indianapolis, Ind. In 1926 he became agent in charge of the Indianapolis office, transferring in 1937 as supervising agent of the Secret Service office at St. Paul, Minn.

Plans Florida Vacation

Mazey, who plans a vacation in Florida and then several months in Minnesota, says that in his experience women counterfeiters are "much more dangerous" than men.

Ten other Treasury Department employes retired yesterday:

Frederick G. Tansill, 1520 Newton st. ne., Secret Service Budget and Finance officer, after 13 years in Government, 28 of them in Treasury.

Miss Caroline Perkins, Bowie, Md., accounting clerk, in the Bureau of Public Debt, after 30 years.

Mrs. Margaret F. Brashear, 2700 4th st. ne., accountant auditor in the Income Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, after 30 years.

Mrs. Margaret T. Hoagland, 5923 Wilson lane, Bethesda, Md., technical clerk (administrative assistant) in the Income Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, after 30 years.

Miss Lula F. Hall, 1701 16th st. nw., administrative assistant in Income Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, after 30 years.

Clarence O. McCullough, 7019 Georgia ave. nw., claims examiner in the Alcohol Tax Unit, after 32 years.

Albert C. Blaisdell, 66 Connecticut ave., Kensington, Md., chemist in the Alcohol Tax Unit, after 30 years in the Government, 28 of them in the Treasury.

Miss Mabel B. Hiatt, 3401 Macomb st. nw., chief technical clerk in the Bonds and Claims section of the Miscellaneous Tax Unit, after 45 years.

Theodore G. Hoffman, 2523 N. Florida st., Arlington, Va., cryptographic clerk in the Office of the Treasurer, after 30 years.

Mrs. Alma F. Hammond, 3028 Porter st. nw., fiscal accounting clerk supervisor in the Office of the Treasurer, after 30 years.

Red Cross Aides Honored

Nine retiring American National Red Cross workers were honored yesterday in ceremonies at the national headquarters building, 17th and D sts. nw.

Included in the group were Henry M. Baker, assistant administrator of the Disaster Service, and Albert Evans, assistant director of the Disaster Service.

Baker of 5305 R st., Coral Hills, Md., has been a Red Cross staff member since 1918 when the former minister was broken in as a rescue squad worker on a hurricane which ripped up Corpus Christi, Tex.

Evans of 3011 N. Third st., Arlington, Va., first joined the Red Cross 26 years as liaison representative with the Veterans' Bureau following World War I.

Evans

His baptism in relief work came during the Pueblo Flood of 1921 in Colorado. His most harrowing experience was during the Mississippi flood of 1927, Evans says, recalling there was 12 inches of water on the floor of the railroad coach he traveled in bearing food and medicine to the scene of the disaster.

Other Red Cross employes retiring in September are:

Mrs. Martha Ann Johnson, 500 Irving st. nw., custodial worker for 20 years.

Florence Parker, 2601 16th st. nw., assistant director of the hospital service, after 25 years.

Violet M. Savage, 5430 Connecticut ave. nw., administrative assistant in Personnel Service, after 30 years.

Alfred L. Schafer, 1745 Kilbourne pl. nw., director of the Convention office, after 27 years. From 1931 to 1943 he was manager of the Red Cross Pacific area, with headquarters in San Francisco and was special delegate in the Southwest Pacific during World War II.

Edith Spray, 1840 Mintwood pl. nw., assistant director Office of the Reference Information, after 30 years.

Miss Doretta Taylor, 1812 K st. nw., secretary, after 30 years.

Mrs. Mattie V. Whitney, 1217 B st. ne., assistant field director of Service to Veterans, after 30 years.

Our Share of U. N. Cost Cut to 33% in Ballot

3 Air Guardsmen Die in Keysville Bomber Crackup

Atlanta, Sept. 30 (AP).—Three Georgia Air National Guardsmen were killed yesterday in the crash of an attack bomber near Keysville, Va.

Air National Guard headquarters here identified the victims as Capt. Jerome A. Klausman of Atlanta, First Lieut. William Fred Scarborough, a Georgia Tech student, and Second Lieut. William Oscar Coley of Elberton, Ga.

The plane left the Marietta (Ga.) Airbase at 2:30 p. m. yesterday en route to New York. It was a B-26, formerly known as an attack bomber.

Falls Church Sets Early Date For Water Bond Issue Bids

Falls Church, Va., has tentatively set October 19 as the date it will receive bids to sell a one million dollar bond issue to construct a new water supply system.

City Manager Roy F. Dunn said the City Council will meet "early next week" to study the prospectus describing the bond issue and to approve its release.

The prospectus is being prepared by the B. J. Van Ingen & Co., Inc., of New York, which is advising the city on the bond issue. The company also will evaluate the bids received, Dunn said.

According to the city manager, the engineering specifications for the water supply system should be completed by October 7 by the Lynchburg firm of Wylie & Wilson.

Dunn said if the bond sale proceeds normally, construction work on the new system could probably begin next spring, with completion of the main water supply line to follow within three months.

A pumping station at Chesterbrook would send water through a 20-inch main to a proposed one-million-gallon reservoir in Falls Church, and a system of 12-inch mains would connect the reservoir with existing lines.

Liners Reach N. Y. After Stormy Trips

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The liners Queen Mary and America arrived from Europe hours late today after being buffeted by stormy seas.

The British vessel was 24 hours late while the America docked 12 hours behind schedule.

FBI Charges Kansan Sent Obscene Records

Omaha, Sept. 30 (AP).—The FBI today arrested a Kansas man on a charge of illegally transporting obscene phonograph records between States.

Special Agent James L. Dalton of the Omaha FBI office said it was the first case of its kind handled by the bureau, although there have been several prosecutions for interstate transportation of obscene literature and photographs.

Boy Plane Victim Improving, but 'Lonely'

Edmonton, Alberta, Sept. 30 (AP). Doctors said tonight Michael Lintner, 11, is improving from severe injuries sustained in a plane crash in which his mother, the pilot, was killed.

The plane crashed into Steamboat Mountain, 650 air miles northwest of Edmonton, Monday night. The boy's father, Lieut. Col. A. L. Lintner of Washington, said Michael told him the plane encountered heavy fog after making a wrong turn while following the Alaska highway from Watson Lake, Yukon Territory, toward Fort Nelson, British Columbia.

Mrs. Lintner's body will be taken for burial to Norton, Kans., where both she and Colonel Lintner were born.

The boy has a fractured skull, broken arm and frozen feet.

His doctor said the boy is "not yet out of the woods" but his condition is "surprisingly good." He had been wedged head downward in the plane for 42 hours before an RCAF search party rescued him. There was a blizzard for several hours.

Lintner said his son, commenting on his mother's death, said: "It's going to be lonesome, isn't it?"

Mrs. Lintner, an experienced pilot, was flying the boy to Washington for a short schooling after which the family planned to move to China.

Pardon Signed For 'Satira'

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 30 (AP).—President Grau San Martin signed tonight a decree pardoning Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, dancer convicted of the murder of John Lester Mee of Chicago.

The Toledo, Ohio, girl had been serving a 15-year sentence. She shot her lover, an attorney and Pacific war veteran, while his yacht was in Havana Harbor in April, 1947.

Patricia admitted she fired the fatal shot but pleaded self-defense during an argument when she discovered Mee was married. Patricia admitted she had been intimate with Mee

Miss Schmidt dubbed herself Satira in the dances she did at night spots throughout the Caribbean area.

Real Estate Board Elects Taylor Head

Raymond M. Taylor, vice president of Shannon & Luchs Co., was elected president of the Washington Real Estate Board at its twenty-seventh annual meeting last night in the Hotel Mayflower.

Taylor

Taylor succeeds F. Moran McConihe.

J. Garrett Beitzell was elected first vice president and Oliver M. Walker second vice president. New directors chosen for two-year terms are: Edward H. Brent, J. Wesley Buchanan, Edward R. Carr, L. Cass Leigh, F. M. McConihe, James E. Schwab.

Following the elections about 250 members heard an address by Charles E. Hoover, regional vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Hoover, of Huntington, W. Va., spoke on "The Constitution and What It Means," as part of the group's belated observance of Constitution Day on September 17.

Other speakers were Alvin K. Snyder, director of the Realtors' Washington Committee, and William E. Leahy, counsel for the real estate board.

National Airlines Reelects Officers And Directors

Miami, Fla., Sept. 30 (AP).—All officers and directors of National Airlines were reelected today at the annual meeting of stockholders and directors.

A unanimous vote of confidence in management and appreciation of the manner in which the business has been handled during the eight months' strike by Airline Pilots Association members was passed.

Officers reelected were: G. T. Baker, president; H. C. Dobbs, vice president, traffic; E. J. Kershaw, vice president, operations; J. D. Crane, vice president, engineering; J. C. Brawner, treasurer; R. P. Foreman, secretary; T. A. Prevost, assistant vice president in charge of the New York region, and F. E. Howe, assistant secretary-treasurer.

W. F. Johnston, former chief accountant, was elected assistant treasurer. He formerly was with Pan American Airways.

State Takes Over Disputed 'Voice' Programs Today

The State Department will take over today "Voice of America" programs in nine languages which two commercial networks have been broadcasting overseas.

The networks, the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System, withdrew from the arrangement after a program to Latin America came under criticism in Congress.

They will continue to provide short wave transmitting facilities.

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said today that the State Department is ready to resume preparation of the programs for broadcasts in English, Spanish, Portuguese, French, Italian, German, Annamese, Malay and Siamese. The Department will continue to broadcast programs in other languages, including Russian and Chinese, as it has in the past.

Methodists Create New District In Tennessee

Johnson City, Tenn., Sept. 30. (AP). The Holston Conference of the Methodist Church created a new district and adopted a world-service budget of $237,500 at the opening day's session of the 125th annual session here today.

Some 600 ministers and laymen gathered for the opening sessions of the meeting which closes Sunday night with announcement of ministerial appointments for the next year.

New England Dry Spell Sets 130-Year Record

Boston, Sept. 30 (AP).—The two months ending tonight were the driest New England has experienced in the 130 years that Weather Bureau records have been kept.

District Forecaster Lyndon Rodgers said 1.67 inches of rain fell in New England during August and September as compared to an average rainfall or 6 to 7 inches for those two months.

Finn Premier Rebukes 'Back-Stabbing' Reds

Helsinki, Finland, Sept. 30 (AP). Premier Karl August Fagerholm today accused Finnish Communists of stabbing their own country in the back in their efforts to throw suspicion on the Government.

Speaking in Parliament, Fagerholm enumerated cases where he said the Communist Press had published false reports with the aim of inciting the Russians against his regime.

C. & S. Plans New Buildings For 3 Branches

By S. Oliver Goodman

Bank of Commerce and Savings, entering its forty-second year, plans three new branch buildings.

Construction is under way on one unit and sites have been acquired for two others, President Thomas J. Groom reported to stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday. Two of the new buildings will replace present branches in the same localities, while one will be an additional branch.

Groom

Groom pointed out the institution, whose main office is at 7th and E sts. nw., showed further progress during the last year. Net operating earnings this year, he said, "will possibly be slightly more than last year's record $36.63 a share."

Deposits totaled $13,734,982 as of August 31, 1948, a gain of $367,943 over the same date last year, Groom said. Commercial deposits were up about $500,000, but time deposits dipped approximately $200,000.

Loans aggregated $5,779,346, a gain of $718,241.

The new Brightwood Branch, on which construction started on June 21 this year, is expected to be completed about January 1, he said.

Sites for new branch buildings at North Capitol and H sts., and Fourth and Rhode Island ave. ne., have been acquired. Groom hopes that construction on the North Capitol site "will be under way in the not too distant futbre" but said that a new building on Rhode Island ave. may be delayed.

All directors were reelected and will meet October 5 for election of officers.

EXTRA! EXTRA! For the first time in many moons, Washington bank clearings show an unfavorable comparison with last year. The September total was $298,873,990, compared with $311,804,948 in the same 1947 month. The drop was attributed to "an exceptionally large aggregate in September, 1947," while last month's figure was "more in line with the normal September total." For the first nine months this year local clearings amounted to $2,686,273,752, against $2,498,729,392 in the corresponding 1947 period.

RISING RAIL COSTS: Fred Carpi, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said yesterday rising costs are forcing the railroads to ask for further freight rate increases. He said the carriers' expenses have gone up 77 per cent during the last eight years, while freight rates have risen 46 per cent. The result, he asserted, is a return inadequate to provide the type of service demanded by the public or to keep the railroads "properly prepared for a national emergency." Carpi addressed a joint luncheon of the Washington Traffic Club and the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board in the Mayflower.

OPEN SATURDAYS: The Washington Stock Exchange, starting tomorrow, will inaugurate trading on Saturdays. The move will affect only the eight dually listed issues, those traded here and in New York. The local market has been on a five-day week since September, 1942. Saturday hours will be from 10 a. m. until noon and will provide local investors with service parallel to that of the New York markets.

NAMES CHAIRMEN: B. Bruce Frantz, chairman of Fiduciaries Section of District Bankers Association, yesterday announced appointment of committeemen as follows (first named is chairman): Program—E. A. Dent, Herman G. Lauten, F. E. Davis and E. G. Jonascher; bulletin, A. E. Menge and William S. French; publicity, Warren Nussbaum and Karl F. Heinsman; nominating, E. B. Shaw, B. L. Amiss, W. G. McGraw, W. V. Simmons and Bruce Fretz; taxation, J. L. Sheldon, Miss Mildred E. Foy, Miss Mary Chadwick, J. E. Sumpter, Henry W. Branson and J. Edward White. Also, trust investment, F. M. Perley, Bernard L. Amiss, F. L. Church, Jr., W. V. Simmons, Max Quigley, W. C. Dieter and Nelson J. Foster; standardization, Lester A. Lawrence, H. P. Hild, M. W. Stuart, G. M. McLearen, J. L. Whyte, J. M. De Marco; trust law and legislation, Henry M. Lefferts, Willard G. McGraw, Lester A. Lawrence, E. B. Shaw, T. H. Reynolds and J. Wesley Ciampitt, Jr.

EARNINGS: Pennsylvania Railroad reported August net income of $3,535,930 over the same 1947 month. Eight months' net totaled $10,706,283, up $15,372,972 over same period last lear. Other earnings reports:

	Eight Months to August 31
	1948.	1947.
Atlantic Coast RR.	$7,447,737	$4,488,537

Otis Co. Asks SEC To Compel Bids On Utility Issues

Otis & Co., Cleveland investment bankers, asked the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday to turn down a proposal for the negotiated sale of 13 million dollars in public utility securities.

Thurman Arnold, Otis attorney, told an SEC trial examiner that approval of the transaction would reverse previous SEC action and would "destroy competitive bidding by underwriters."

The statement came at a hearing on the proposed sale of 400,000 shares of common stock in the Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co. of Oklahoma City. Standard Gas & Electric Co. New York holding company has asked permission to dispose of the securities through negotiated sale to an underwriting syndicate.

Counsel for Standard Gas counsel said arrangements for the sale have not been completed.

The First Boston Corp. and Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Beane, both firms of New York, were identified by Standard Gas counsel as the underwriters in the negotiations.

Lee Rubber Declares Extra $1.50 Dividend

Directors of Lee Rubber & Tire Corp. declared an extra dividend of $1.50 a share and the regular quarterly of 50 cents on the capital stock, both payable October 28 to stock of record October 15. The company paid an extra of $1 and a 5 per cent stock dividend in October, 1947.

D. C. Opposes Griffith on Police Pay Hearing

The Corporation Counsel's office yesterday asked District Court to deny a motion, filed by Clark Griffith, asking for a three-judge tribunal to hear the "police protection fees" controversy.

Griffith has asked for an injunction restraining the District government from collecting fees for police protection at public events in private establishments.

The Corporation Counsel's office declared the controversy involves only a municipal ordinance, and not a constitutional issue, which may be decided by a three-judge tribunal.

"The case is in the Federal Courts solely by reason of the fact that the Federal Courts serve a dual capacity in the District," the corporation counsel's office stated.

The dispute arose after the District government billed six organizations for police services since July and they refused to pay. Clark Griffith, head of the Washington American League Baseball Club, is the only organization thus far to bring the controversy to court. He contends the law passed by Congress last June requiring the fee payments is unconstitutional.

Martin 2-O-2 Airliners Put Back in Service

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30 (AP).—Croil Hunter, president and general manager of Northwest Airlines, announced today that the company is putting its 24 Martin 2-O-2 passenger planes back in service immediately.

The Martin 2-O-2s were voluntarily withdrawn from flight for inspection after the crash of one of them during a storm near Winona, Minn., August 29. Thirty-seven persons died in the crash.

Hunter said that tests "demonstratted the Martin 2-O-2 more than meets requirements of the civil air regulations concerning structural strength and could withstand much heavier loads."

Atomic Unions

The blacklisting of two CIO unions by the Atomic Energy Commission is an unorthodox procedure, justified only on grounds of security in the broad sense. The question is not so much one of access to secret information as of the paramount necessity for operation of atomic energy installations without the threat of capricious interruption. The evidence is strong that the two unions in question—the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and the United Public Workers—are Communist-dominated. It would be possible for the commission to clear individual workers for sensitive tasks, but a risk would remain so long as the members were under the disciplinary control of officers suspected of taking orders from Moscow. Hence it is hard to see how the commission could do otherwise than to instruct two of its contractors, the General Electric Co. and the University of Chicago, not to bargain with these groups.

This determination has not been lightly arrived at. The fact that leaders of the two unions have refused to sign anti-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley Act is not in itself evidence of subversive influence. It is the sum of many factors that warrants the conclusion. These unions are in disfavor with the national CIO because of their condemnations of United States foreign policy and their slavish support of Henry Wallace. Various officers of both have been repeatedly identified before congressional committees as members of the Communist Party.

When doubt exists as to the loyalty of any one in a position to sabotage atomic energy projects, that doubt must be resolved in the interest of security. That the Atomic Energy Commission is not embarking on an antilabor policy is shown by the concurrent announcement opening all atomic energy plants to ordinary National Labor Relations Board procedure. No question of union loyalty has arisen at Oak Ridge, where workers have been organized for some time, though the right of atomic employes to strike remains a thorny issue yet to be settled.

There is, of course, danger that the AEC blacklisting will give rise to attempts to prove disloyalty by association among members of the two unions. Such assumptions would be grossly unfair; it is obviously preposterous to think that all rank-and-file members of these unions are Communists or Communist-liners. Yet the union members have invited suspicions upon themselves. The refusal of their officers to sign anti-Communist affidavits prevents recourse to the NLRB, and by returning the same men to office by large majorities, the union members have demonstrated either satisfaction with their present leadership or unawareness of the issue. Perhaps the stigma under which the UE and UPW have thus been cast will at last convince the members that a change of leaders is long overdue.

Efficiency In The Air

Despite the opportunity for scavenging presented by the Civil Aeronautics Board's inquiry into the affairs of National Airlines, it is probable that many old-line carriers will view the probe with some qualms. The reason is that these hearings may hold implications for further surveys of efficiency within the air route system, and possibly for a realignment of the system itself. Irrespective of any uneasiness which the board's action may be causing, however, the move is a good one. It will be the first time that an inquiry into the fitness of an airline to continue to hold certificates of public convenience and necessity has been undertaken. But such inquiries always have been a legitimate function of the CAB.

The board proposes to determine, after public hearings, whether National's routes and equipment would serve better if they were parceled out to other airlines. Several factors constitute grounds for such inquiry. National has been a high-cost operator in that its mail pay, an indirect subsidy, is substantially above the service rate. Recently it filed a petition for an increase in mail pay. There is also considerable turbulence in National's labor relations, as evidenced by the fact that its pilots have been on strike since February and the airline is operating with nonunion flyers. A negative CAB finding could only be in the form of a recommendation that National sell its routes and equipment at a fair price—though in fact the CAB has the power to compel adherence to its recommendations by reducing or canceling mail pay. Before any conclusions are reached, however, National must be given an opportunity to defend itself.

What is important in the present announcement is that the Civil Aeronautics Board is now asserting its prerogative of reviewing the air transport picture with the object of improving the weak spots. This has long been needed. A route certificate, once granted, is not a permanent patent; it is justified only so long as the airline in question serves the public economically and efficiently. We hope that the CAB will expand the scope of its scrutiny. There are plenty of inconsistencies in the helter-skelter pattern which domestic air routes have taken to warrant a general overhauling.

The Scientific Blues

At the centenary meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science two eminent scientists, the botanist, Prof. Stanley A. Cain, and Dr. Fairfield Osborn, president of the New York Zoological Society, gave warning of something like universal famine within the predictable future. This prospect results from two simultaneously operating factors: the rapid increase of the earth's population and the continued spoliation of its natural resources, especially topsoil. The destruction of arable land has been proceeding from almost the beginning of history, but the main growth of population has occurred within the last two centuries. If the present rate of increase is continued, said Dr. Osborn, the earth will have a population of about three billions by the end of the century.

Now the remaining arable or potentially arable areas of the earth have been estimated at about four billion acres, and at the rate at which soil is being ruined by erosion and other factors, they are likely to be a good deal smaller by the year 2000. On the assumption that 2½ acres are required to keep one person alive and reasonably well nourished, it is difficult not to conclude that our grandchildren and great-grandchildren will be in a rather awkward mess, economically speaking.

Thus Messrs. Osborn and Cain are agreed that the only hope of averting a universal catastrophe lies in having fewer grandchildren and meanwhile jealously conserving what natural resources remain. This, however, is more easily recommended than accomplished. Reproduction of the species is an old and apparently incurable habit of humanity; many persons would be loath to abandon it, even on the best scientific advice. Indeed, even scientists are known to have yielded to the temptation to have offspring; the autobiographical notice in Who's Who in America, for example, shows that Dr. Osborn himself has three children, all married. Any State control of reproduction which goes further than the physical examinations to which applicants for marriage licenses are now subjected in some jurisdictions would probably be resisted as an intolerable tyranny and widely evaded. Moreover, power politics being what they are, it is the tendency of modern states to favor rather than to discourage the rearing of families by the citizens, and this is especially true under dictatorships, as we may see from the examples of Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin.

It will be noted that the argument of Messrs. Cain and Osborn follows pretty much the lines set down about 150 years ago by the Rev. Thomas Malthus in the famous Essay on Population, in which he called attention to the tendency of humanity to increase beyond the means of subsistence. As we now know, there were many developments, such as the increase in the means for transporting food from one part of the world to another, the cultivation of new food crops and new and more productive farming methods that Malthus could not foresee, and which therefore did not enter into his calculations. It may or may not be true that, as many conservationists now tell us, these developments, so far from actually increasing the productivity of the earth, have hurried on the processes of exhaustion. But before we resign ourselves to despair, we might at least consider the possibility of mitigating factors that Messrs. Cain and Osborn have neglected to take into account.

It is possible, for example, that there may be an error in their statistics. Any estimate of what the total population of the earth was three hundred, a thousand or ten thousand years ago can be little more than a glorified guess, if only for the reason that a great part of the world was then unknown to anyone able to leave us a record of it. But, even assuming that the statistics are correct, it does not follow that the deductions from them are necessarily accurate.

It seems pretty generally agreed that the greatest factor in the increase in the population of the Western world since the industrial revolution has not been the rising birth rate but the steadily declining death rate, and in particular the infant mortality rate. After a certain stage of the progressive urbanization of society under industrial conditions, however, the birth rate tends to decline with such rapidity that it presently overtakes the decline in the death rate. The population becomes for a time static, then gradually declines as the proportion of persons in the reproductive age groups becomes progressively smaller. This development has already occurred in many countries of western Europe. According to most actuarial calculations, the population of the United States will become static at about 200 millions by the end of the century, and —given the continuation of present tendencies—a decline of population will have set in by the middle of the twenty-first century.

This, of course, does not prove that, as the whole world becomes mechanized and industrialized, it will follow the same pattern; it merely suggests such a possibility. Nor can we entirely obviate the possibility of great plagues like those of antiquity and the Middle Ages. Then we have Professor Toynbee's assurance that the most probable survivors of an atomic war would be the African pygmies, not a very numerous tribe, who could doubtless keep going for a long time on four billion acres.

Still the prospect opened by the scientists is frightening enough and we dare say real enough to show that every person who has any concern for the continuity or survival of the race must take a vital interest in the problem to which these last 12 months we ourselves have repeatedly drawn attention, viz: the problem of conservation.

Loyalty And Politics

President Truman is not alone in his concern over the unfortunate impact of politics upon the Government's loyalty program. Many sober-minded men of both parties are worried over the grave injustice that may be done to individual Government employes and the disintegration that may hit the loyalty-check system. Jerry Kluttz pointed out the other day in "The Federal Diary" that members of some of the agency loyalty boards regard the pressure upon them as unbearable. Proposals to abolish these agency boards to "take their members off the spot" are being considered. These developments coincide with reports that the Department of Justice is hastening the suspension and indictment of employes under suspicion so as to make an impression before election day. Such pathetic interweaving of politics into the loyalty program necessarily has a demoralizing effect upon the whole body of Government employes.

The primary cause of this deplorable state of affairs is, of course, the propaganda from the Thomas Committee and other political sources which has created the impression that the Federal service is honeycombed by Communist agents. Grasping any stick to beat a dog, many Republican campaign orators are repeating this absurd idea either by direct statement or innuendo. Even Governor Dewey has accused the Administration of "giving aid and comfort to the enemies of our system." President Truman has even more heatedly flung the charge back again at the G. O. P. But he only adds flame to the controversy. And by repeating his red herring charge he exposes himself to fresh attacks, because, of course, if the whole thing were only a red herring there would be no need of the loyalty program which he has put into effect by executive order.

It is clear, therefore, that the fault does not lie wholly on one side or the other. But both sides ought to realize the tragic consequences of injecting politics into the delicate business of screening out the comparative handful of disloyal employes who have gotten onto the Federal payroll. Should Governor Dewey be elected, the success of his Administration will depend in no small measure upon the loyal efforts of civil service workers who will continue on with their jobs. Surely Republicans as well as Democrats ought to see the importance of protecting these men and women against irresponsible smearing or the risk of suspensions merely to satisfy the exigencies of politics.

Governor Dewey for his part could recognize that only a negligible number of Government employes are under any suspicion as to their loyalty; that the Administration has set up an elaborate system for checking employe loyalty, with able and fair-minded Republicans occupying a majority of the positions on the Loyalty Review Board; and that President Truman has no more sympathy with the Communists than he does. President Truman for his part could withdraw his flimsy red herring statement and offer to cooperate in a fair exposure of Fifth Column activity in this country. Of course, political tradition runs strongly against such candor and common sense. Yet frankness and unity of effort in dealing with the Communist menace at home can be justified on the same ground as unity in our foreign policy. And there is the added incentive of avoiding grave repercussions within the civil service system.

Musical Chairs

Not Toscanini, not Kousevitsky, not Olin Downes or Virgil Thomson or Deems Taylor is this country's foremost musical authority. Not even Milton Cross. The man whose words carry most weight in matters musical is a plump ex-trumpeter named Petrillo. What James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, AFL, says about music goes, and he pretty much decides who plays and hears what music where.

Some time back Mr. Petrillo announced that in his considered opinion a harmonica was not a musical instrument, a decision we have sometimes thought should also be applied to the saxophone owned and abused by a neighbor lad. Our opinion never had any noticeable effect, but Mr. Petrillo's did. It barred such mouth-organ virtuosos as Larry Adler from membership in Mr. Petrillo's union and thereby permitted Mr. Adler and some other harmonica experts to make phonograph recordings. This secondary result, perhaps unforeseen by Mr. Petrillo, has now caused him to change his mind. Harmonicas are musical instruments after all, the experts are in the union, and there will be no more mouth organ recordings to compete with the recordings the other musicians are not making either.

Which of Mr. Petrillo's two decisions is esthetically correct we leave to the musicologists. They are equipped to handle these delicate matters by long years of training and experience in such questions as whether Schubert's Seventh Symphony is really his Ninth or vice versa. But in the matter of policy we should like to exercise our own prerogative of pointing out that Mr. Petrillo is getting into deep water. Has he considered the question of the ocarina, the jew's-harp and the musical saw? What will he say when some specialist at making music on a set of bottles comes through with a recording of the Anvil Chorus? These are problems just over the horizon. Mr. Petrillo should be giving some thought, also, to the inevitable need of a decision on musical chairs.

Polio Carriers

Your September 25 edition carries a chart of the District area's infantile paralysis cases and, to a layman, it is very interesting.

Examination reveals more than haphazard incidence, I should say. There were 11 cases along Rhode Island ave. but none within several square miles north of it or in a large area south of it. There were a dozen cases just north and east of the Navy Yard, clustering around Pennsylvania ave. se. There is a line of seven or eight cases nearly in line with the direction of New Hampshire ave.

On the other hand principal thoroughfares feeding to and from the District but lying outside the District show little if any greater incidence of cases than does the general area taken as a whole.

Further, the fact that in a good many of the scattered cases there may be two or three close together suggests transmission from person to person. If the carrier agency were flies or other insects why should they be so "snooty" about some areas and leave so much ground uncovered in good flying weather?

I should like to see an investigation of the door-to-door tradesmen who served Rhode Island ave. and the other two areas first mentioned. Perhaps here and there we had a human carrier.

"Foreign Policy

I notice that every time The Washington Post refers to the late President Franklin Roosevelt it is in a disparaging sense. Your constant harping on the alleged mistakes he made at Tehran and Yalta would lead one to suspect that he did nothing right during the war. I wish you would explain, sometime, how we happened to win the war in spite of his blundering.

But what prompts this letter is your attack in your editorial of September 26, "Foreign Policy." You say that Prof. Thomas A. Bailey admits that "Mr. Roosevelt repeatedly deceived the American people during the period before Pearl Harbor." Presumably, since you do not say otherwise, you support this view. Well, then, how about some facts in substantiation of it.

Your use of the word "admits," implying that the truth of Mr. Roosevelt's deceit has been established beyond doubt, is an insult to your readers' intelligence. Make out your own case, if you want to, but don't try to pass off Professors Bailey and Beard as the final judges of Mr. Roosevelt's character.

Supervised Play

An old saying is "Times change and we change with them." Yes, but perhaps an old lady of 94 may be pardoned for saying that the changes are not always for the better.

In my childhood, in the old country, England and abroad, such a thing as public playgrounds for the indiscriminate use of youngsters, as we have them today in America, would have been unthinkable. I don't suppose we suffered much for lack of them. We played in our own dooryards or gardens, and so were under the care and supervision of our elders.

We had parks and played there but children never went there alone. Of course, we had no roller skates or bicycles on which to be allowed to take nice rides into woodsy places in the suburbs into which we might be followed by evil men and killed.

There is a great deal of talk about freedom, so much that even children are rebelling against any restraint. Yet parents are responsible; and things like the brutal murder of the two 11-year-old girls should never have happened. There should have been no opportunity for their murderer to reach them. Exercise is a good thing but to be allowed to enjoy her life in safety is certainly what any innocent little girl should be assured of.

Price Fixing

A long time ago I read that price-fixing agreements were a form of restraint of trade which, I have the impression, is illegal. But here this past summer, as if with one consent, the price of cigarettes jumped a cent because one of the big companies claimed to be losing money.

I am a bit old-fashioned, but I would think the other companies would, in order to get the business, lower theirs, or at least not raise the price. There could not be a gentleman's agreement that if one company had to raise prices the others would not take advantage of the situation by keeping theirs the same, could there?

I have seen this peculiar phenomenon happen in the case of bakeries, dairies, gas stations, and even the price of white shirts. It is strangely similar all over town. I have not checked too closely, but even the price of television sets is almost the same and even the newspapers, which allegedly are supposed to be against such practices, raised their prices at the same time.

Psychiatry

I read with extreme interest Dr. McGregor's letter of September 27. Since psychiatry occupies a very necessary place in rebuilding mental health and quieting nervous disorders, it would be very stupid indeed not to recognize the tremendous results successfully achieved in this field.

Members of any honorable profession must certainly resent having that profession invaded by unscrupulous members. The very nature of the illness of his patients demands that the psychiatrist be above reproach. Many patients are straddling a very narrow line and the one to whom they look for guidance can either push them over the line into a dark abyss or draw them gently back with a firm and understanding hand.

A recent best-seller gave a harrowing account of one woman's actual experience. It would be well for thoughtful people interested in their fellowmen to realize that this particular field of endeavor (viz., psychiatry) should be kept above reproach. As an individual, I realize I can do little to improve the situation which entails so much human misery, but I believe that anything brought out in the open is more apt to force itself upon the attention of those who might take corrective measures.

Lippmann's Laugh

By what is nothing less than a stroke of sheer genius, Walter Lippmann turns propaganda into a sparkling comic in your issue of September 27.

In some 700 words, he "proves" our President unfit, because the latter can be away from Washington for a short while without bringing all Government business to a stop.

And with a merry twinkle in his eye, Mr. Lippmann calmly ignores the fact that New York State seems to remain in business even while the Governor of that State is traveling far and fast.

Chemurgy's Promise

It was an agreeable surprise to read the splendid letter by Edward W. Russell in the September 27 Washington Post. If Sir Stafford Cripps acquires the understanding of chemurgy which Mr. Russell, the brilliant former managing editor of the London Post, has displayed, he will command a set of tools which can be made highly useful to the British Empire.

The ideas of chemurgy were first conceived when Americans viewed agricultural "surpluses" as a problem. It was thought that nonfood utilization of farm products would be helpful. When unemployment became a major national concern, it was seen that new industries based on farm-grown raw materials would help to make jobs. When war came, it was discovered that no ship, gun or airplane could be made without using farm products in the course of manufacture. Now that the world is trying to wage peace, the validity of the chemurgic concept continues to expand.

When mineral resources are consumed they are not replaced. Plant materials, on the other hand, are annually renewable. The human race need not stay poor if it will exploit the earth's resources of vegetation. Of some 300,000 species of plants known to botanists, a paltry few hundred are yet turned to human account. Only after modern organic chemistry and modern engineering tools were developed did it become possible to use plants or parts of plants beyond those from which muscle power or primitive tools could extract foods or fiber. Even now, of the few hundred plants cultivated as crops, only about half of the substance is utilized. Stalks, straw, rinds, hulls and other inedible parts, and culls, mostly go to waste.

This latter fact brings out the point that industrial utilization of crops not only does not tend to lessen total food production, but either adds to the producers' inceptives or tends to benefit the consumer pricewise.

The United States investment in chemurgic industries, such as cellulose, starch, vegetable oils and others, now totals hundreds of millions, makes thousands of jobs, creates new markets for farmers, and provides people with hundreds of useful new commodities.

Ideas know no national boundaries. The National Farm Chemurgic Council, while organized in the United States with domestic objectives in mind, has attracted members in more than 30 foreign countries. We believe that whenever our information or facilities can be helpful to other countries their progress will benefit Americans.

Thank you for giving Mr. Russell's letter such generous space.

President, National Farm Chemurgic Council.

Truman's Game

ABOARD the Truman Train.—Against the background of the darkening world crisis this crusade, as the President persistently refers to it, has at times an "Alice in Wonderland" quality. It is the mixture of earthy courthouse politics with world-shaking issues that gives the performance an eerie, unreal quality.

Nothing illustrated this better than the sudden and unexpected visit to the train of Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith. Smith came by way of Moscow, Berlin and Paris, where he has been directly involved in the long and savage wrangle with the Russians over the ruins of Berlin.

The President may have felt that it was essential to have an immediate, firsthand report from his Ambassador to Moscow. It is hard to understand, however, why he could not have waited a few days until his return to Washington when Smith would still have been available.

It was what happened after the conference between the President and his Ambassador in the last car that made the whole thing seem out of focus. Smith was escorted to the press car and, at first, it was understood that he would talk off the record about the world situation. After a little pressure from the reporters, however, he agreed that his remarks could be on the record.

SO IN A noisy, crowded car, with half those present unable to hear, one of the principals in the critical Berlin negotiations talked about the danger of war and the perilous state of relations between East and West. Such offhand remarks, even though they were transmitted with complete accuracy, could obviously add to the peril. This, as one of the reporters remarked later, is a hell of way to run a railroad.

Seen from Mr. Truman's viewpoint, however, it was a different look. The President is indignant at those who take the attitude that in the light of Dewey's sizable and seemingly unbeatable lead he should fold his hands and resign himself to his fate.

That is asking too much of human nature. He means to go on to the end making the most vigorous campaign possible on the issues as he sees them. And, on balance, it seems to me a good thing that he is making every effort of which he is capable to dramatize not merely the current issues but the differences between the two parties as he sees them.

Often this has a crude and violent sound. Often it is pure political corn. But often, too, Mr. Truman says things that need saying. They need saying in the political vacuum that is created by Candidate Dewey's bland assurance that he will take over in January and that he will tell the people as much as is good for them to know.

THE PRESIDENT'S speech at Oklahoma City was a clear, hard-hitting presentation of the clouded and ugly business of communism in the United States. He spoke some vigorous truths that have long needed underscoring and he spoke them with more earnestness and force than he customarily brings to the reading of a prepared text.

The speech was a solemn pledge that the Government is doing everything possible to resist communism abroad and at home, and Mr. Truman could provide convincing documentation that this is so. And he went on to say that in a healthy democracy where the vast majority of people are attaining rewards and satisfaction, communism can never take hold. That cannot be repeated often enough as a reply and a rebuke to those who are deliberately fostering a scare campaign. The motives of this scare campaign are quite clear. It is intended to intimidate and repress all ideas that are even slightly on the progressive or liberal side.

The political motive is also obvious in the so-called investigations that seek to link the Truman Administration to communism. They have frightened some people. They also have prejudices of the type that set race against race.

There was partisanship in the speech as is certainly to be expected in a political campaign. Mr. Truman seemed to tread on the bipartisan foreign policy when he attacked rank-and-file Republicans for blocking measures to check communism abroad. But the deliberate obstruction of Representative John Taber and others justified this criticism.

These quadrennial contests that occur under our political system are full of hazard in times of crisis like the present. Recent in memory is the Roosevelt-Willkie campaign of 1940 when both candidates made such futile promises at a moment when half the world had fallen away. The rules of this political game have been laid down in a simpler and safer past. Mr. Truman is playing by those rules and playing hard.

Justice Holmes

In the September 26 Washington Post Sterling North refers to "Chief Justice Holmes."

This mistake has been made many times before, but any informed person should know that Holmes was never Chief Justice.

Matter Of Fact

The Hard Road Ahead

WILL THE United States make the great effort necessary to help fill the military vacuum in western Europe? It is now clear that this is likely to be the gravest issue to face the next President, the next Congress and the country as a whole.

The issue has, of course, been brought to a head by the mounting crisis in Berlin. The five nations of the Western European Union—England, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—have responded with almost desperate urgency to this crisis. Compromises have been made, disagreements which earlier seemed insurmountable have been overcome. The five nations have agreed on common strategy and on the pooling of their forces under a unified command. But until or unless the United States decides to infuse life into it, this agreement will remain a mere paper pact without real meaning.

This is so simply because the Western Union countries do not now have either the arms or the capacity to make the arms to equip a force capable of halting an onslaught by the huge Red army. This does not mean, as is commonly supposed, that the Red army could, if ordered into action tomorrow, sweep on to the Atlantic in a few days or weeks. There are no more than 350,000 Russian troops in Europe. These are scattered throughout eastern Europe, and moreover by no means all are combat troops.

Before the Red army in Europe could attack to the west it would have to be reinforced and reequipped, stockpiles would have to be built up, and units would have to be deployed for an attack. All this would require weeks, perhaps even months, and would certainly become known to the west. The western nations would thus have at least some weeks of warning.

YET THE fact remains that the Kremlin so willed, the preliminary measures could at any time be taken. The Red army could then invade western Europe, with the western military forces fighting no more than a delaying action. This fact is the Kremlin's trump card, for the sense of helplessness in case of Russian aggression hangs like a dark cloud over every western European capital.

The cloud can be dissolved only by placing western Europe in a posture of defense. The experts of the Military Staff Committee of the Western European Union have estimated what will be required to do this job. This estimate, with which the American experts largely agree, is believed to call for a western European army of 40 or 45 first-class divisions. The expert assessment is that, given decisive air superiority, such an army could hold the Russians on a narrow front until the whole weight of the non-Soviet world could be organized for the counterattack.

The soldiers to man such an army are already available in western Europe—indeed, France alone already has more than half a million men under arms. But the bulk of the equipment necessary to bring existing divisions up to the high standard required, and to arm new divisions, must be supplied by the United States if it is to be supplied at all. So must the bulk of the necessary air power. For the inescapable fact is that the western European economies cannot now possibly do the job alone.

EVEN WITH American help, the job cannot be done easily or overnight. In fact, it cannot be done at all without some degree of sacrifice in this country. In a recent statement, which has not received the attention it deserved, Secretary of Defense James Forrestal issued a blunt warning.

Forrestal warned that even the 15-billion-dollar military appropriations already in prospect might require some form of economic controls. "But it seems almost certain," Forrestal said, "that any level substantially beyond that figure would inevitably demand the creation of controls, priorities and allocations."

In short, if the vacuum in western Europe is to be filled, some of the unpleasant restrictions of wartime will have to be revived, although in milder form. But it must be emphasized that the project for restoring the balance of military power in Europe is a plan not for war but for peace.

Vishinsky's thunders that the armament of Western Union is the prelude to aggression against the Soviet Union will certainly be echoed here by Henry Wallace and his Communist supporters. This charge is, of course, demonstrably a lie. It would be military idiocy to throw a mere 40 divisions into the vast maw of the Soviet Union. The only role which such a force could play would be the strictly defensive one of a holding operation on a narrow front.

Yet this would be enough to dissipate the fears which are paralyzing the Continent, and to remove the temptations which an undefended western Europe offer to the cynical realists in the Kremlin. With the balance of power in Europe restored, it would at last be possible to achieve a real settlement in Europe. The question remains whether the next President will have the courage to lead, and the next Congress the courage to follow, down the hard road ahead.

DIXIECRATS IN VIRGINIA—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Mrs. Thurmond dip a drink of water from a well at historic Gunston Hall, Fairfax County, Va. The States Rights Democratic candidate for President and his wife visited the mansion yesterday

Democratic Turnout to Hail Truman

Democrats will give a rousing reception to President Truman when he returns to Washington aboard his special train Saturday at 10 a. m.

The welcome is being sponsored jointly by the National Truman-Barkley Club and the Democratic Central Committee of the District.

In preparation for the arrival of the Presidential train at Union Station and a motor cavalcade to the White House, the police department yesterday assigned 220 officers and men to special duty Saturday morning.

Assistant Superintendent Floyd A. Truscott will have general supervision of police arrangements.

Assigned to strategic spots in charge of details will be Inspectors Robert C. Pearce, Clarence H. Lutz, Arthur E. Miller and George R. Wallrodt.

When the presidential train arrives, Mr. Truman will be welcomed home by a special committee headed by Commissioner Guy Mason. Six girls will greet the President at the station with a huge banner reading: "Truman Our Man."

The motorcade to the White House will consist of five official cars, followed by a double file of 250 automobiles.

It will proceed south on Delaware ave., west on Constitution ave., north on 15th st., west on E st., north on E. Executive ave. and will enter the White House at the southeast gate.

Gov. Thurmond Is Optimistic

George Washington Thurmond, was with Lee at Appomattox as one of six surviving members of his company.

The Thurmonds were the overnight guests of C. C. Carlin, editor and publisher of the Alexandria Gazette, and of Mrs. Carlin, who is Virginia women's chairman for the States Rights Party.

The Thurmonds will visit Mount Vernon this morning. He is scheduled to speak at a State Rights dinner in Baltimore and at a rally in the Lyric Theater there at 8:30 tonight. He will crown the queen of the tobacco festival at La Plata, Md., Saturday. Tentative plans for his appearance at an Arlington rally Monday have been canceled. He will be in North Carolina Monday and Tuesday, on Wednesday he will speak at an Overseas Writers Club luncheon in New York and a Roanoke, Va., night rally. He will be in Norfolk Thursday, at Richmond Friday, at Charlottesville October 9, and Lynchburg October 11.

Thurmond told newsmen "It now appears probable that we shall go into the electoral college with over 100 electoral votes."

He listed Virginia's 11 electoral votes in the "probable" Thurmond column, adding: "I think our chances are just as good of carrying Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia as the chances of any other candidate."

He said that in Maryland "we stand a chance to get on the ballot; a pending court action will determine that." Some leading Maryland Democrats concede privately that the States Rights Party might show considerable strength in some parts of the State if the party gets on the ballot.

Administration Would Crack Under Crisis, Warren Believes

New York, Sept. 30 (U.P.)—Gov. Earl Warren, Republican vice presidential candidate, said tonight that "the adhesive tape and baling wire" holding the Truman Administration together no longer can withstand the strain of a foreign crisis and pressing domestic problems.

In a speech at a party rally in Manhattan Center, the California Governor made the severest attack of his transcontinental trip on the Democratic Party.

He called it a "splinter party" abandoned by the Henry Wallace supporters who are "discrediting our position with the nations of the world" and by the Southern Democrats who refuse to recognize "the fundamental American principle that all men are created equal."

He labeled the national Administration a "tired, rickety party team" that "can no longer figure out winning plays" and consistently fumbles the ball. He said the Truman group quarrels with those on the inside and accuses those on the outside.

"It is of little use to blame and condemn any one individual, any one party," he said." That will not help solve our problems. We merely say that solution of our problems is being delayed because the present Administration at this particular time does not seem to know where it is going or what it will do if it gets there."

Lists U. S. Paradoxes

Warren listed these paradoxical conditions:

1—An America stronger than any nation in history, yet fearful of assault at any time.

2—More people at work at higher wages than ever before, yet a "nightmare" of the prospect of inflation always before us.

3—The greatest productive capacity on earth, yet large segments of our population without housing.

4—The highest of medical standards, yet proper medical treatment outside the reach of many people.

5—Full employment yet the constant fear of mass unemployment.

6—The greatest education system in the world, yet three million illiterates over the age of 14.

Texas Voters 63% for Truman Before 3-Day Stumping Tour

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 30.—President Truman, who earlier this week vigorously carried his election campaign into Texas, has a safe lead there over the Dewey-Warren ticket.

However, the substantial reduction in his support compared to Roosevelt's following in the last four elections indicates why Democratic strategists thought it necessary for the party's candidate to stump the State for the first time in modern election history.

Not only has the Republican vote increased about 5 points in this traditionally strong Democratic State but the combined support of Henry A. Wallace, Progressive candidate, and J. Strom Thurmond, States' Rights nominee, amounts to 1 of 10 Lone Star voters.

"If the presidential election were being held today for whom would you vote—for Dewey, for Truman, for Wallace, or for Thurmond?"

TEXAS
(23 Electoral Votes)

Truman	63%
Dewey	23
Thurmond	6
Wallace	3
No opinion	5

While the rank and file voters in the State thus give Mr. Truman an overwhelming advantage in the popular vote, State Democratic leaders are split in bitter rivalry.

One sign of disagreement in the top Democratic leadership of the State was the recent announcement by the Houston Chronicle that it would support Governor Dewey. The Chronicle is published by Jesse H. Jones, who served 12 years in the Roosevelt Administration as RFC chairman and Secretary of Commerce.

Support for the Democratic candidate in Texas is today at a lower ebb than in any election since 1900 except for 1924, when Alfred E. Smith lost the State to Herbert Hoover. Roosevelt carried Texas with pluralities of better than 80 per cent in each of his four campaigns.

Today's survey, however, was taken before the Truman campaign train rolled into Texas. Later polls will reflect any changes in sentiment caused by his three-day tour of the State.

The small vote for Governor Thurmond in face of the fact that

Progressives Withdraw in 13 House Races

By The Associated Press

Henry Wallace's Progressive Party is withdrawing its candidates for 13 House seats in five States, Campaign Manager C. B. Baldwin said yesterday.

He said the action was taken because, among other reasons, the Democratic nominees "have now turned to a much more constructive liberal path."

The Wallace Party still plans to run 100 candidates for the House and 11 for the Senate. Wallace, candidate for President, is definitely on the ballot in 20 States and expects to be on at least 40, Baldwin said.

Mrs. Douglas Included

Withdrawal of Progressive Party candidates announced yesterday include opponents for Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas and Chet Holifield of California Chester Bowles, former OPA chief running for Governor of Connecticut; four House candidates in Pennsylvania, four in New Jersey and one in Massachusetts.

Baldwin said the party is supporting outstanding Democrats with "liberal" records in the Eighteith Congress.

Withdrawals in the congressional races did not mean any change in party policy, Baldwin told a news conference.

As for Mrs. Douglas, he said she opposed the draft and the Mundt-Nixon anti-subversives bill and she deserves to be reelected. Negotiations are under way, he said, to withdraw opposition to another Canifornia Democrat, Representative Frank Havenner.

Wallaceites Slipping, PAC Says

Jack Kroll, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, said today Wallace's Progressive Party is slipping and "we no longer regard it as a factor to be taken seriously."

Kroll said the "sound liberal people who at one time might have given voting strength to the third party movement are no longer behind it."

He said in State after State across the country record numbers of voters are registering for the November presidential election, and added that the CIO-PAC is "confident" of a 60,000,000 vote.

With that number voting, Kroll said, President Truman will beat Governor Dewey and the Democrats also will regain majorities in both houses of Congress.

Commenting of Baldwin's announcement that 13 Progressive Party congressional candidates were withdrawing, Kroll said:

Racial Cause Holds Wallace

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 30 (AP).—Henry Wallace, 24 hours after being egged in Houston, pledged here tonight he will carry the fight against racial segregation and poll taxes "so long as I live."

In a speech before a mixed audience, including Latin Americans and Negroes, the Progressive Party candidate for President:

Promised his party will end the unfair treatment of Spanish-speaking Americans and what he said was their use by big corporations as a pool of cheap labor.

Charged El Paso has no secrecy of the ballot and demanded the Justice Department and the House Committee on Un-American Activities should investigate all interferences with free and secret balloting. He called such interferences "true subversion."

Compared the four freedoms of Franklin D. Roosevelt with what he called the four freedoms of Dewey and Truman and Thurmond.

Wallace said he is afraid the Dewey-Truman-Thurmond "four freedoms" are: 1—Freedom for big business to pursue super profits at the expense of people. 2—Freedom from taxes that should be paid. 3 and 4—Freedom from labor's rightful demands for good jobs and security.

ter it with competence, decision and courage.

1. Unstinting support of the United Nations and firm, patient efforts to perfect it to mobilize and give backing to the decent opinion of mankind.

2. Wholehearted support of the European Recovery Program and all reasonable aid to restore the shattered economies of friendly and like-minded nations. He praised Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's notable contribution to the program.

3. Instead of a program of relief he will use ERP for pushing, prodding and encouraging the nations of western Europe toward the goal of a European union. He called ERP "a step along the road" toward a third great power "devoted to the cause of peace."

4. Development of a two-ocean foreign policy by ending the tragic neglect of our ancient friend and ally China and making our peace efforts world-wide.

Says He'll Avert Depression

5. Air, land and sea forces capable of protecting us "in this Atomic Age" and "so strong that no nation will again risk attacking us."

6. Domestic policies that will back up our ability to wage peace by encouraging "an abundant, increasingly productive nation." He promised to "see to it" that the Communist-predicted depression will "never return to blight our land."

7. Strengthening of our Western Hemisphere policies to make Latin Americans "not simply good neighbors but . . . full partners" in standing together against external aggression and developing "our material and spiritual resources."

8. A reiterated pledge to tell America's "unparalleled" story to the people of all lands and "to make our influence felt in the world."

9. Leadership in "a great moral awakening" of the "spiritual forces of mankind" to wage the peace with "such uncompromising devotion to the right that mankind will take heart again."

Statesmen "Look Forward"

Governor Dewey hit only incidentally at our foreign policy course. He said there is no point in recalling how "failure of statesmanship" permitted Russia to conquer millions in a "series of East victories," concessions that he said pushed freedom ever back and back in the Baltic countries, the Balkans, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Manchuria and Northern China.

"The business of statesmanship," he said, "is to anticipate and solve international problems before they become crises and to solve crises before they become wars."

He and others, he said, had "repeatedly warned" that a crisis would follow continued appeasement.

Then he asserted it is not too late now to make the Soviet understand we will not be browbeaten—that we will deal squarely with others and others "must deal fairly and honestly with us."

Russians Our "Strong Equals"

The best way to get along with the Russian leaders, and to restore their respect for us, he said, is to "deal with them as strong equals."

Governor Dewey, who stopped briefly in Idaho's panhandle en route to Montana two days ago, coasted down through the southwest corner of the State with Dworshak still in tow. With a Wallace Party candidate in the race, Dworshak is generally conceded the edge over the Democratic nominee, State Supreme Court Justice Bert C. Miller.

Some 2500 persons and a band turned out to greet Dewey at Idaho Falls. He was presented with a ton truckload of big Idaho potatoes but couldn't find room enough to load it on.

Gifts Showered on Dewey

There were more than 1500 to meet him at Pocatello and again he and Mrs. Dewey were showered with gifts. Five-year-old Indian "Princess" Belma Trochat from nearby Fort Hall Reservation handed Mrs. Dewey a pair of Indian moccasins, but seemed more interested in a chunk of gum in her mouth. Other gifts included a pair of buckskin gloves and an Indian chief's headdress. The crowd wanted him to try on the headdress but Dewey was satisfied to admire it at arm's length.

southern Illinois and Indiana and more flings at the GOP and Congress.

The President said he didn't think the people will be fooled again by "that tommyrot" that the Democratic Administration was wrong in wanting to keep price controls, that prices would take care of themselves.

Contending the Republican Party is "willing and eager to listen to the voice of big business and special privilege," Mr. Truman said:

"That's the only conclusion that can be drawn from an honest look at the record.

"And that's why I say it's time for a change—a change from the Republican Congress we've been suffering under these last two years.

"Give us a Democratic Congress and we will get action against high prices. That will be a change.

"Give us a Democratic Congress and we will get action for more housing at lower prices. That will be a change.

"Give us a Democratic Congress and we will take action against monopoly. That will be a change.

"Give us a Democratic Congress and we will move forward for the benefit of all the people, toward better housing, better medical care, better education—all the things that mean a happier and more secure life for the average American family.

"That is the sort of change which we Democrats propose. That is the kind of change the American people need and want.

"The reason the NAM set out to destroy price controls," Mr. Truman said, was "that, in their greed, the leaders of big business wanted to make even higher profits."

He said the NAM public relations director had told in an interview of spending three million dollars in 1945 to destroy OPA.

Bids For Miners' Votes

Earlier, the President said the Southern Illinois coal mining country "must make every vote count" against "puppet-of-big business Republicans who used the Taft-Hartley law to hack workers' rights."

Votes, he said, also can stop big business Republicans who have started to "nail the American consumer to the wall with spikes of greed . . ."

He said Republicans began "lining their pockets with a rich man's tax bill."

Mr. Truman punched the labor act and the GOP all along the route of a 141-mile town-through-town run by car. He cut through territory where the Republicans repeatedly have shown strength and where John Lewis' coal miners are a powerful voting force.

And in the big speech of the forenoon at Carbondale, Mr. Truman said the voters had this choice:

"Is it to be another era of fear under the Republican reactionaries, or another era of hope with liberal democracy?"

Reactionaries, he said, are traveling a road that nearly led to ruin in 1930.

"You cannot," he said, "afford to let these reactionaries have their way. Already the big business Republicans have begun to nail the American consumer to the wall with spikes of greed.

"Are you going to let them get away with it? There's one way to stop them. That's to get out on election day and vote. Make every vote count."

The President stumped downstate Illinois from Mount Vernon to Carmi. Then he climbed back on his special train and headed for Louisville, Ky., for a major speech at 10 p. m. EST on such problems as housing and prices.

Mr. Truman was the first Chief Executive to campaign in southern Illinois and the people turned out by the thousands, breaking through police lines, swarming around and through the procession of cars and yelling a noisy greeting.

The stumping tour went from Mount Vernon to Benton, West Frankfort, Herrin, Carterville, Carbondale, Marion, Eldorado and Carmi. There was a brief look-in at a Veterans' Administration hospital.

Here and there some of Lewis' United Mine Workers were in evidence, but the followers of the man the Administration has licked in the courts didn't make any demonstration that indicated their sentiments.

Mr. Truman hopped off his campaign special at Mount Vernon and gave a preview of what he said is coming.

He said the people can't afford to stay home in this election year and let nature take its course.

Dixiecrats Late for Md. Ballot

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—Petitions purporting to bear 2339 signatures and asking that the States' Rights Democratic presidential ticket be placed on the Maryland ballot were forwarded today by Secretary of State Bertram L. Boone to the State legal department in Baltimore.

Attorney General Hall Hammond said he will inform Boone the petitions are invalid because they were not filed before the April 12 legal deadline. They were filed yesterday by E. Steuart Vaughan, temporary chairman of the States' Rights Democrats of Maryland.

Hammond issued a similar opinion several weeks ago. At that time States' Rights spokesmen said they would gather the petitions anyway, present them, and—if they were rejected—appeal to the courts.

Marylanders who wish to vote for the States' Rights candidates for President and Vice President—if Hammond's ruling stands, Governors J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Fielding Wright of Mississippi—would have to write in the names of eight presidential electors pledged to them.

They have asked Hammond for an opinion as to whether printed names of an electoral slate would be valid if voters were to paste them to the ballots.

Mother of 6 Guilty In Bad Check Case

Mrs. Isabel Marion Lebling, 48, a former Bethesda, Md., divorcee, yesterday pleaded guilty to charges of writing and cashing 10 worthless checks totaling $350 in a week's time here.

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell continued the case to October 20, pending a report from the probation officer. Bond was set at $500.

Mrs. Lebling, who gave her home address as 675 Park ave., New York, at the time of her arrest here, appeared in court, clutching a brown paper bag, which contained the lunch provided her by the District Jail. She was originally ordered held under $1000 bond at a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court September 10. Unable to make bond, she has been held at the jail since then.

Detective Sergt. John Laskey of the check and fraud squad testified yesterday that Mrs. Lebling had cashed the checks at four local banks after signing them with the names of various prominent Washington women, none of whom khew her.

When she was arrested September 8 at the Shoreham Hotel, where she had registered under another name, three checks, blank except for the signatures of three other women, were found in her room, he said.

Following Luskey's teestimony, Assistant United States Attorney Robert Short recommended Mrs. Lebling be placed on probation since this was her first offense. He said he understood restitution of the money would be made.

The former wife of a Bethesda real estate man, Mrs. Lebling is the mother of six children.

Rayburn Held By Grand Jury

Ernest C. Rayburn, restaurant owner, of 1727 N. Capitol st., yesterday was ordered held for grand jury action on a charge of assault with intent to kill his former fiancee.

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell continued bond at $10,000, despite a heated argument from defense counsel Lester Wood that the charge should be reduced to assault with a dangerous weapon, because the defendant meant only to scare and not to kill.

Rayburn is accused of entering the office of his former fiancee, Miss Elsie Wavalene Samson, 22, a typist at the office of Pillsbury Mills, Inc., 1244 5th st. ne., on September 16, and firing a gun at her point-blank range. He missed.

Heard Woman Scream

Milton Fisher, a fellow employe of Miss Samson, testified yesterday that just before the shooting occurred he heard her scream and, looking up, saw Rayburn in the doorway with a gun in his hand.

"Rayburn's face and hair were plastered with something white. I ran over to him and told him not to be a fool, but he shot at Miss Samson who had crouched down on the floor behind her desk. The bullet struck the desk near her head," Fisher said.

Under cross-examination, he admitted, that Rayburn then left the room without attempting to fire another shot. Wood then asked that the charge be reduced, declaring that Rayburn had meant only to scare Miss Samson and not kill her.

Mother Testifies

The prosecution, however, brought the girl's mother, Mrs. Ada Samson, with whom she resides at 3300 17th st. ne., to the stand. Mrs. Samson testified that about five months ago, Rayburn came to her home, demanding to see her daughter, who was not at home at the time.

"He was pacing on the front porch with a gun. When I asked him what he was going to do, he said if "Wavey" came home with a man, he'd kill them both," she said.

She was unable to name the day, week or month of the alleged visit, despite a barrage of questions from Wood.

Spotlight Club Auction Leaves D. C. Sh y $500 in Taxes

The District government, which thought it would be able to satisfy its claims against Vincent Grillo, manager of the now closed Spotlight Club, 17th and M sts. nw., and the club, learned yesterday that about $500 is still uncollected.

The situation was explained by Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson thus:

Grillo owed the District $580 in personal property taxes for a two-year period. When Pearson announced his intention to sell the club's furnishings to satisfy the claim, the District's corporation income tax division declared the club owed $900 and asked for a share in the proceeds.

The furnishings of the after-hours establishments were auctioned yesterday by Adam Wecshler & Son, Inc., and brought $1140. After deduction of the auctioneer's fee, about $500 will still be owed to the District, Pearson said.

A collection of 55 opened bottles of liquor cannot be sold to satisfy the claim because of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board rules prohibiting the sale of opened bottles. Pearson said there is inadequate identification on the bottles to permit return to individual owners, so he plans to turn them over to Grillo.

The club was one of three after-hours places closed in a police raid.

Democrats Charge Dewey Threatened To End Civil Service

The Democratic National Committee yesterday accused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of threatening to abolish the Civil Service system and of making the charge that 'all Civil Service employes are mediocre at their best."

Its statement is based on a conference the GOP presidential nominee had with the legislative committee of the New York State Veterans of Foreign Wars in Albany last February. The VFW was seeking Dewey's support for a bill to give promotions to State employes who had not had one for 10 years. According to the committee version of what happened, Dewey turned to Harold J. Burke, chairman of the VFW legislative committee, and said:

"Burke, you know as well as I do that all Civil Service employes are mediocre at their best. If I had my way the present Civil Service system in force in the national, State and local governments would not exist."

At this point, the committee reports, Dewey was reminded that Civil Service was a matter of law. It then accuses him of making this additional statement:

"Anyone who can't advance himself in 10 years should be fired. But the trouble is these people can't make a living in private industry and now they want promotions without taking examinations. I'll veto any such bill that comes to my desk.

"You'd have my paying those sons-of-seacooks for just breathing and it won't happen while I'm Governor. If I had my way I'd abolish Civil Service."

The committee says that Paul Lockwood, the Governor's secretary, suggested to the VFW conferees that they not repeat what Dewey had said to them.

However, these two points should be added: (1) that promotions in the New York State service are made on the basis of competitive tests, and (2) that Dewey, as Governor, did not abolish Civil Service or even approach it.

[The Republican National Committee, in a counterstatement, quoted Harold J. Burke, chairman of the VFW legislative committee for New York State, who acted as spokesman at the meeting with Dewey, as saying:

["Never in my presence did he (Dewey) make any statement disparaging to civil service employes, or to the effect that he would like to abolish the civil service."

[Clyde Lewis, Plattsburgh, N. Y., senior vice commander of the VFW, who also was present, also was quoted by Republican headquarters. He said that "Governor Dewey did not make any such statement: as a matter of fact, he commended civil service employes."

[In another statement issued at his home in Plattsburgh, Lewis denounced the Democratic story as "a damned lie."

[Lyall T. Beggs, national commander in chief of the VFW, another conferee, told the United Press in answer to questions that he "does not recall" hearing the statements attributed to Dewey.

[The Democratic release, identifying Lewis as a "Republican member" of the delegation, quoted him as saying after the talk with Dewey:

["Why, he talks like a tyrant."

[Lewis said in the GOP statement that quotation was "a plain lie . . . putting words into my mouth."—Editor's Note.]

STORY: This is one of those amazing stories which could only be pulled here by a bunch of straight-faced politicians:

The well-known sequel must be recalled first. It took place here recently when the GOP Congress, in effect, ordered Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus to be fired next February 1, "because he isn't an engineer."

Act 1 was buried deep in the Government's dusty files and forgotten about until a few days ago. It occurred in 1923. In that year another bloc of Republicans—the Harding gang—fired the then Reclamation Commissioner and you'd never guess the reason why—"because he was an engineer."

What a lot of fun the President and the Democrats could have had with that one if they had only known about it! The inconsistent Republicans don't know what they want in a Reclamation boss. They fire an engineer because he isn't an executive and they fire an executive because he isn't an engineer.

These are facts on the 1923 ouster—details which were accidently unearthed the other day: A. P. Davis, for whom the Davis Dam on the Colorado River was later named, was Reclamation Commissioner at the time. GOP leaders in Congress put the pressure on the then Interior Secretary to give Davis the ax, which he did—for the public reason that he was an engineer and not a businessman.

The Davis and Straus cases are strangely parallel in half a dozen respects, but perhaps none so striking as this—that both commissioners were stanch advocates of cheap public power and both were bitterly opposed by the power trusts.

PER DIEMS: Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee, yesterday set off a drive to raise the salaries of the Government's per diem workers—employes who are paid an hourly and daily rate.

He said the wages paid per diems had "generally lagged behind" the salaries of classified monthly and annual employes; that the salary discrepancy between the two groups should be wiped out. The chairman pointed out that the salaries of per diems are fixed by local wage boards; that Congress acts only on the salaries of classified and postal workers.

The legislator released his statement in his home State of Kansas, where he has urged the Army to lift the wages of per diems.

NOTES: The Comptroller General yesterday ruled only employes who are illegally fired after June 10 of this year are entitled to back pay when they are restored to their jobs. The back pay law went into effect on that date . . . Federal employment in the executive branch here jumped another 800 during August. The increase the Nation over was 18,200 . . . Harry V. Plummer, the oldest special delivery messenger, was retired yesterday from the City Postoffice after 30 years of service . . . The National Association of Retired Civil Employes will meet at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the New National Museum at 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

4 Boys Hunted In Attempt to Rape Girl, 16

Teen-Agers Flee In Club Coupe After Attack on Arlington Student

United States Park Police yesterday sought four 17-year-old boys who allegedly attempted to rape a 16-year-old high school girl during a five-hour trip between Arlington and Mount Vernon.

Warrants have been issued for the occupants of a dark blue or black 1947 Mercury club coupe, with two spotlights and two foglights, Virginia license 123-301, in which the four boys were believed to have escaped.

A fifth youth, who said he was with three of the others in the car before the alleged assaults took place, will be questioned today, according to police.

Sergt. Arthur Cook, who is investigating, said police know the names of the missing youths, all of whom were said to have police records.

Cook and Plainclothes Detective Charles P. Apfelbeck reported the incident as follows:

One of the youths phoned the girl about 9:30 p. m. and said he was calling for a boy whom the girl knew. He said the friend would be at the girl's home in Arlington in a few minutes and wanted to speak to her outside.

Shortly a boy whom she did not know called at her home in Arlington and said her friend was waiting in a car, which was parked in front. The girl went out to the car, but found it was empty.

The youth then forced her into the automobile, drove off and picked up three other boys a block away.

One of the four boys—the one police said they would interview today—said he became suspicious and asked to be dropped at an Alexandria restaurant.

He was driven to the restaurant and got out of the car. The others went in the car to a parking lot just below Mount Vernon, where all three tried to rape the girl.

The driver then headed back toward Alexandria and stopped at a gas station, where one of the three again attempted to assault her. Later, they stopped at a restaurant and one of the boys traded places with a youth in another car, who also attempted to rape the girl.

Finally the girl was taken home. She noted the license number of the car when she was let out about a block from her home.

She told police she did not know any of the boys, but could identify all of them.

Police said she had not been raped, but was bruised and frightened.

They said one of the youths later telephoned her home—before warrants had been issued yesterday—and said he would report to police in Alexandria. He is believed to have accompanied the three others in the getaway.

70 Reputed Jobs

Housebreaker Suspect Held In $10,000

Russell Leon Broadus is a connoisseur of liquor and a dresser of impeccable taste, police say.

And, they add, he is distinctive in his profession — housebreaking — with more than 70 jobs to his credit since last February.

Broadus

But Broadus was rumpled and unshaven when arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Cyril Lawrence on a charge of housebreaking.

Commissioner Lawrence set bond of $10,000 after detectives told him Broadus may be guilty of as many as 70 housebreakings in downtown office buildings and that he is on parole on a housebreaking conviction.

Detectives said Broadus told them he has broken into so many offices since his parole last February he "just can't remember them all."

Held for Grand Jury

Commissioner Lawrence ordered Broadus held for the grand jury.

According to police, Broadus has netted about $4000, plus assorted valuables, from his raids. Because of his neat attire, they said, he could enter an office building without arousing suspicion.

Once above the ground floor, police declared, Broadus would enter an office, either opening the door with a jimmy, or climbing through a transom.

For his own purposes, police said, Broadus was content with picking up whatever cash or stamps were available. On occasion, they added, he would filch jewelry and articles of women's apparel for his girl friends.

Once in awhile Broadus would come upon a bottle of his favorite brand of liquor.

Furniture Smashed

Then, they said, he would pause, and pour a few. But then, police said, he frequently would become "mean," and would take out his knife and cut the furniture, or, if the mood moved him, smash it against the wall.

Police said everything was going smoothly for Broadus until a passerby saw him at 11 p. m. Tuesday trying the door of a beauty parlor at 1114 H st. nw.

The passerby followed Broadus until he found two scout car policemen, Pvts. William J. Galar and Thomas Carpenter of the First Precinct. Broadus was arrested for attempted housebreaking and placed in the line-up.

The prisoner was singled out by Detective Sergts. Daniel Slattery and Ben Clarke of the general assignment squad, who thought he answered a description pieced together from building guards' reports.

Broadus admitted nothing. Police said they then went to his room where they found a .32-caliber revolver and several article of jewelry. Confronted with these, they said, he admitted the series of robberies.

Broadus is 35 and lives at 442 Q st. nw.

2 New Cases Of Polio Hike Total to 180

Two new polio cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday boosting the year's total to 180, compared with 42 for this date last year.

A 5-year-old girl from the 500 block of Kenyon st. nw., entered Children's Hospital Wednesday, and an 8-year-old girl from the 200 block of Dale dr., Silver Spring, was admitted to the same hospital the same day.

The new cases raised the District total to 100 and the total in nearby areas of Virginia and Maryland to 80.

The figure for the State of Virginia rose to 426 when one case was reported in Greene County and another in Augusta County.

Fear that the national incidence of polio may set an all-time record this year was expressed by Edgar Morris, chairman of the District of Columbia "March of Dimes."

He said on his return from the national conference of campaign chairmen at Atlanta, Ga., that "estimates now are that this year may set an all-time record . . . even exceeding the 27,363 total for 1916, the worst year in history."

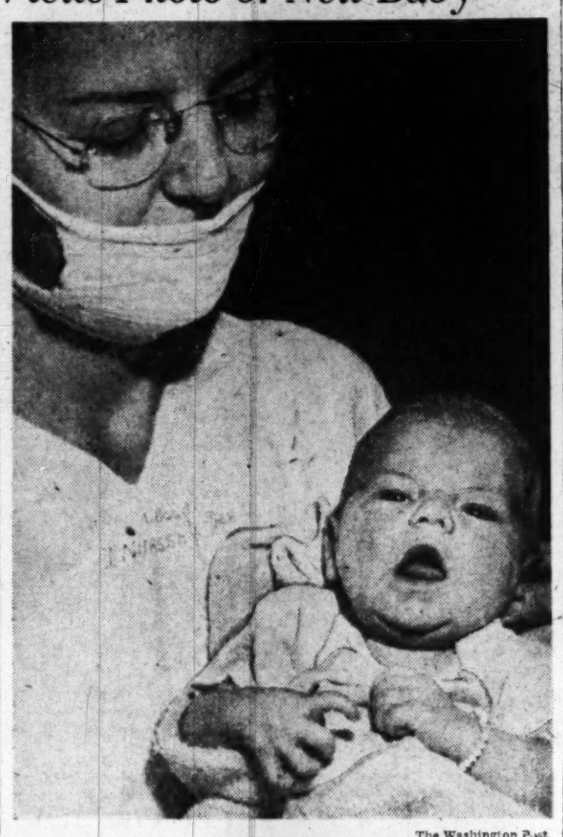
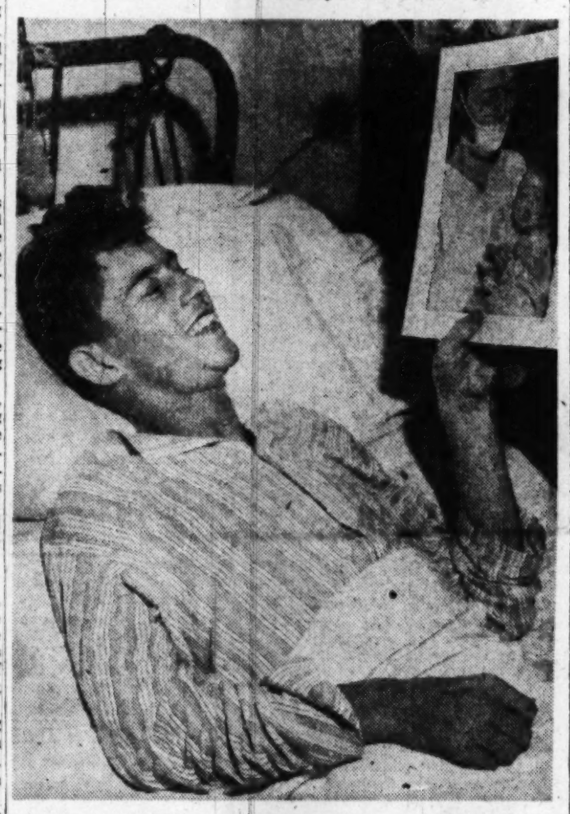
Young Father, Victim of Polio, Views Photo of New Baby



The Washington Post

Nurse Mildred Bernot holds baby Jeanne Carol Taylor



The Washington Post

James Taylor sees his daughter for the first time. He's looking at her in a copy of the same picture printed at top

By Walter Pulliam
Post Reporter

Twenty-one-year-old James Taylor, stricken with polio, lay in his bed at Providence Hospital last night and looked again and again at a photograph of his 3-day-old daughter.

"Gee whiz, she's a lulu," he said. "And a big girl, too—isn't she?"

The photograph, taken by The Washington Post, gave the stricken young mechanic—a father for the first time—his first "glimpse" of his 7 pound 3 ounce baby daughter born Monday night at Columbia Hospital across town.

"Just look at her," he called to nurses that strolled in and out of his room. "Why, she looks just like her mother and myself!"

Taylor, who was employed by Geophysical Instrument Co. in Arlington before he became ill, has been flat of his back in a hospital bed since August 3.

Monday, instead of pacing the maternity war corridor, he had "to sweat it out" in bed. And now, although he says he "would give a million dollars" to actually see his baby, doctors say that event is still a long way off.

"We had sort of wanted a boy," he confided, "but we don't mind a girl at all. In fact, I think my wife thought it would be a girl all along because she knitted this pink baby's cap and sent it to me as a good-luck piece."

The tiny cap, pink with a blue ribbon, is hanging on the crossbar of his hospital bedstead. He shows it to visitors now, along with the photograph.

"It didn't come off under the circumstances we had hoped for," his pretty, hazel-eyed, brunette wife, Mrs. Virginia Taylor, also 21, told a reporter at Columbia Hospital's maternity ward, where both she and the baby, Jeanne Carol, are "doing simply fine."

She added: "Really I'm glad we have a baby. I feel it will give him something to make him get well quicker."

The Washington Post sent a photographer to take a picture of the baby after the young father had expressed a wish he "could see what the baby looks like" to a friend who was visiting him.

The Taylors live at Naylor Gardens, 2814 31st st. se.

Navy Organizes Volunteer Reserve Research Unit

A Volunteer Naval Reserve Research Unit, open to qualified Naval Reserve scientists and technicians in several fields, has been organized at the Naval Research Laboratory, Anacostia, the Navy announced yesterday.

One of many to be organized throughout the United States, the unit here is open to inactive reserve officers and enlisted personnel, engaged in research which would make their services of value in event of mobilization.

Applications for membership in the research unit should be made to the Office of Naval Research, 17th and Constitution ave.

Fire-Fighting Stamp to Depict Riverdale Truck

The Riverdale (Md.) Fire Department said yesterday a specially designed fire truck, purchased last January, will be pictured on a new 3-cent stamp commemorating the 300th anniversary of volunteer fire fighting.

According to the department, a photograph of the truck was used as a model for the stamp. The stamp also will depict Gov. Peter Stuyvesant of New York, who is credited with organizing the country's first fire fighters, and a pioneer hand-operated pumper.

First issues of the stamp, authorized in a bill introduced by Representative J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware will be sold from the Dover, Del., postoffice October 4 in conjunction with the observance of National Fire Prevention Week.

University Gets $11,800

Federal Pay Rise Extension to City Might Increase Total to 19 Millions

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler yesterday spelled out the sad story of District finances as follows:

A total of nearly 14 million dollars will have to be cut from present budget requests for the new fiscal year unless new sources of revenue are found.

If the Federal pay raise is extended to 18,000 District employes—and District heads hope it will be—the anticipated deficit may exceed 19 million dollars.

Sales Tax Would Help

A 2 per cent sales tax—the revenue measure favored by the District government—would ease the situation by $7,500,000 during its first year of operation. With a sales tax (and a pay raise) the deficit still would be in excess of 11 million dollars unless drastic pruning is done.

Department heads asked for a total of $110,188,648 for the fiscal year 1950 which starts next July 1.

The anticipated income of $96,546,141, includes $80,951,455 from the general fund; $9,543,697 from the highway fund and $6,050,989 from the water fund.

At present the Commissioners, aided by Fowler and his assistants, are checking the individual budgets with department heads, preliminary to holding a public hearing on the budgets October 21. After that the budget will be sent to Capitol Hill and the President for final action.

The budget requests for the 1950 fiscal year exceed the current appropriations by $10,309,165.

Largest Boosts Sought

The largest boosts requested in operating expenses were in the public welfare, public schools, Health and Police departments, Fowler said. The largest percentage of increase was in the National Guard where a 450 per cent jump was requested.

The gross increase for personal services was $3,711,962, which included $1,076,613 for mandatory within-grade raises. An additional $1,668,229 was asked to provide 652 new positions.

A $13,875,705 boost was asked for capital outlay projects, including $6,507,005 to complete contract authorizations; $737,540 for furniture and equipment in projects already authorized; $4448 for utility items and transfers and $2183 for miscellaneous purposes.

A $6,516,618 jump in operating expenses of the various departments was attributed to increased prices, workload, replacement of worn equipment, addition of new facilities and repairs.

He's Got a Case

Pile Driver Victim Says He's Lucky

Johnny Fratantuono, 19, Water Department employe, thinks he's lucky.

But that is a matter of relativity. Johnny thinks he's lucky, not because a 4-ton piledriver toppled and fell on him Wednesday but because he escaped with only a partially paralyzed right leg.

Perhaps it is Johnn's past experiences that make him philosophical.

"When he was 2 years old I placed him in a rocker," his mother, Mrs. Paul Lagana, 433 7th st. sw., recalled yesterday. "The chair started to rock and the next minute something flew across the room. It was Johnny."

When he was 6, he was hit by a car. Cuts and bruises only.

About two years later, he was stricken with an infection of his right leg. Twice doctors gave up hope for his life. A priest gave the youth a Miraculous Medal, Mrs. Lagana said, and Johnny became well after 52 blood transfusions.

In another auto accident Johnny suffered a broken right leg. Recently he was hit by a streetcar, did a back-flip and landed a few inches from a plate glass window. Casualty Hospital attendants said they could find little to treat except the usual cuts and bruises.

Wednesday's mishap occurred when the pile driver struck a curb and tilted over on Johnny's right leg as the youth was working on a project at 2d and Bryant sts. nw.

Fund for Slain Policeman's Family Grows

A total of $738 was added last night to the fund for the family of Robert B. Harris, slain Alexandria policeman. The money was from box office receipts of a benefit show at the Virginia Theater, Alexandria.

Officials of the theater said, however, the total would be boosted considerably from ticket sales made in advance at drug stores and other business places in Alexandria. Contributions from organizations and private individuals passed the $5000 mark this week.

Meanwhile, the State of Virginia added a $500 reward to those already offered for capture of the person who killed Harris September 11 while the officer was going about his duties. The $500 brings the total reward offered to $2250.

Harris was survived by his wife and a 6-month-old son.

F. Byrne Austin Backed by ADA In Montgomery

Americans for Democratic Action in Montgomery County yesterday strongly indorsed the candidacy of F. Byrne Austin, the Democratic candidate opposing Congressman J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) in the November election.

In announcing support of Austin, the A. D. A. Chapter labeled Beal's voting record as "the worst of any Maryland Congressman." He was charged by the group with having "consistently voted with the reactionary leadership of his party in favor of special interest legislation."

J. Bond Smith, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Montgomery County, said the committee was "much gratified" by the announcement and efforts by the A. D. A. to defeat Beall would be "unified within our general party effort."

Central Buying Agency Voted In Alexandria

The Alexandria City Council last night agreed to set up a central purchasing agency for the city in an effort to simplify bookkeeping and to hold down expenses.

As recommended by the finance committee and approved by the council, the new agency will buy all city supplies and will be an independent office under the city manager.

The present procedure is for each department to do its own purchasing. Finance Committee Chairman R. Samuel Luckett said the new system, which was proposed by Councilman Leroy S. Bendheim, will save money by allowing the city to buy equipment and supplies in larger lots.

The council agreed to create the agency "as soon as possible." Luckett said this would probably mean January 1, when the new fiscal year begins.

Money must be appropriated in next year's budget, Luckett said, for office personnel and warehouse space. The council last night also:

1. Appointed Charles E. Tomlin to fill a vacancy on the city school board caused by the resignation of Claude N. Ballenger. Tomlin, 52, is executive head of the Patent Service Division of the United States Patent Office. He lives at 306 Mansion dr.

2. Authorized the electoral board, if the school board consents, to change the Fourth Ward voting place from Friendship Firehouse to the Lee School in the 1000 block Prince st.

3. Asked a board of viewers to reconsider the school board's request to close Mount Ida ave. between Commonwealth and Mount Vernon aves., to allow building of an addition to the Mount Vernon School. The council, on recommendation of the viewers, had refused this request at an earlier meeting.

Another for whom ceremonies will be held today is Pvt. Herbert C. Weaver, who was killed in the North African theater while serving with an artillery unit.

Private Weaver is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gladys Weaver, 803 North Capitol st. ne., a daughter, Barbara, a brother and two sisters.

The third to be reburied is Comdr. Malcolm P. Hanson. His widow lives at 4615 Langdrum la., Chevy Chase, Md.

World Communion Celebration to Start

Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, will begin the celebration of world communion Sunday with a special service tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

Members of the congregation will unite in the order for public confession preparatory to the Holy Communion. The pastor, Dr. L. Ralph Tabor, will lead the worship and the assistant pastor, the Rev. James M. Singer will preach on "Be of Good Cheer."

Coroner, Police Probe 2 Deaths At St. Elizabeths

The coroner's office and the Homicide Squad yesterday began an investigation of the early morning deaths of two women patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Both patients, Alice Johnson, 65, and Minnie L. Coleman, 27, died from injuries suffered at the hospital earlier in the year, according to police.

The former suffered a fractured hip when she was knocked down by another patient while standing in a doorway of Building Q on August 6, it was reported.

The latter was found unconscious on the porch of the second floor of Building Q last Monday. She was treated for a fractured skull. Police said they believe she had beaten her head against a brick wall on the porch.

Teddy Roosevelt's Widow Dies at 87

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, 87, widow of the twenty-sixth President died in the Roosevelt family home, Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, N. Y., shortly before 7 a. m. yesterday.

Only three widows of Presidents now survive—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt had been in poor health since fracturing a hip about 10 years ago. She died shortly before 7 a. m. in the family home, Sagamore Hills.

At her bedside were her surviving son, Archibald, and her daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby. Her stepdaughter, Mrs. Alice Longworth, and 14 grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be buried at her husband's side in Young's Memorial Cemetery a few miles from Sagamore Hill. Private funeral services will be held in Christ Episcopal Church.

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT
Dies at 87

Theodore Roosevelt married Edith Kermit Carow, a native of Norwich, Conn., in St. George's Church, London, in 1886 after the death of his first wife.

Mrs. Roosevelt lived to receive the news of the death of three of her four sons in war—Quentin in aerial combat in World War I, and Theodore, jr., and Kermit, in World II.

Although an ardent Republican, opposed to the presidential candidacy of her kinsman by marriage, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt was not publicly active in the party in recent years.

She became mistress of the White House when her husband succeeded to the Presidency after the assassination of William McKinley.

In the White House, where she remained until 1909, she accented domesticity.

Many persons early in the century revered a picture of her doing needlework in the Executive Mansion. It was an art in which all the women of her family excelled. She was honorary president of the Needleworkers Guild of America.

While her husband tackled the problems of the day with customary gusto, she quietly administered the household and reared her five children. Alice, the President's daughter by a previous marriage, was old enough to be a companion to her stepmother.

Perfect housekeeper as she was, Mrs. Roosevelt still enjoyed music and gayety and White House social events, during her stay there.

One of the most colorful of the parties was the one in which "Miss Alice" (Mrs. Longworth) made her debut. The elegance of the event and the graciousness of the hostess are still remembered by many older Washingtonians.

Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied each of her children upon their entrance into Washington public schools. She emphasized that no especial favors be shown them.

Her first impression of the White House was that it was gloomy, she told friends. To combat this, she sent word to the Roosevelt family home at Oyster Bay: "Send me as many children as you possibly can."

Soon the White House was in a turmoil with Alice, daughter of the President's first wife; Theodore, jr., Kermit, Ethel Carow, Quentin and Archibald.

She passed her latter years at Sagamore Hill, the rambling Victorian country house overloking Long Island Sound. The house was filled with mementoes of "Teddy"—his days in Washington, his foreign travels and hunting trips.

The slender, silver-haired "First Lady of Oyster Bay" entered the political arena several times during the 1930s, issuing statements in support of the Republican Party.

Widely traveled, she once said, "All my journeys begin and end with the ocean. I have salt water around my heart."

A spokesman for the family said services will be held "sometime Saturday."

Arthur W. Parsons

Athens, Greece, Sept. 30 (AP).—Arthur W. Parsons, 48, alternate United States delegate to the United Nations Special Commission on the Balkans (UNSCOB), died last night.

He had been in Greece since 1931, except for the period during the German occupation. He first came as an archeologist to work in Macedonia. He was named director of the American School of Classical Studies in 1941.

Parsons returned to the United States that same year and in 1943 went to Cairo as a special assistant to the American Ambassador to Greece. He served as a special adviser to Mark Ethridge, chief of the United States delegation on the first U. N. Balkan Commission.

He joined UNSCOB last winter. Parsons was the son of Edward Lamb Parsons, a retired Episcopal bishop of California.

R. D. Rifenburgh

Detroit, Sept. 30 (AP).—R. D. Rifenburgh, 52, who helped direct the movement of troops during the war, died today at his home here.

He was district manager in Detroit of the Association of American Railroads.

During the war he was assistant manager of the Military Transportation section of the AAF, with headquarters in Washington.

Dr. W. G. Clippinger

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dr. Walter Gillan Clippinger, former president of Otterbein College at Westerville, Ohio, and widely known minister and educator, died today.

Col. Stimson, First Woman Officer, Dead

Col. Julia Catherine Stimson, 67, first woman officer of the United States Army and superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps after World War I, died yesterday at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Col. Stimson

She was a first cousin of Henry L. Stimson, who has been both Secretary of War and Secretary of State.

Colonel Stimson headed the Red Cross nursing service in France during the first World War. She was stationed in Rouen, where she was in charge of more than 10,000 nurses. After the armistice, her title was changed to director of the nursing service of the AEF.

In 1919 she became superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps and dean of the Army School of Nursing. She was made a major when Congress admitted the corps to the Army in 1920. While in Washington, she lived at 1825 New Hampshire ave. nw., and had a summer home at 149 Mount Vernon blvd., Alexandria, Va.

She retired from the Army in 1937 and became president of the American Nurses Association.

Col. Stimson returned to the Army in World War II and became a one-woman recruiting service for the Surgeon General, barnstorming the country and persuading nurses to join the Army Nurse Corps. At the end of the war she again retired, this time with the rank of colonel.

At the time of her death, Colonel Stimson was a resident of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y.

She was a direct descendant of Josiah Bartlett, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and Elias Boudinot, first vice president of the Continental Congress.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Elbert A. Harvey of Duxbury, Mass.; Dr. Barbara B. Stimson of Poughkeepsie, and Prof. Dorothy Stimson of Goucher College, Baltimore, and a brother, Philip M. Stimson of New York City.

Thomas Armat Dies, Pioneer In Pictures

Thomas Armat, 81, inventor, who aided the growth of the motion picture industry from nickelodeon days, died yesterday at his home Greystone on the edge of Rock Creek Park.

Mr. Armat, a successful real estate operator, became interested in the infant film industry in the 1890s.

He invented the first practical projector and, in cooperation with Thomas Edison, it was marketed.

Mr. Armat operated the machine at the first public commercial showing of a motion picture. This event took place April 23, 1896 at Koster & Bial's Music Hall, New York City.

For his work in developing the film industry, Mr. Armat last March was awarded an "Oscar" by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Besides his widow, Mr. Armat is survived by two sons, Thomas Armat, jr. and Christopher Brooke Armat of Washington and a brother, Christopher Armat of Lakeland, Fla.

Funeral services will be private, at Mr. Armat's birthplace, Fredericksburg, Va.

Henry H. Rathbun

Des Moines, Sept. 30 (AP).—Henry H. Rathbun of New Hartford, N. Y., president of the Dairymen's League Association and a close political associate of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, died today. He was 57. Polk County Coroner A. E. Shaw said death apparently was due to a heart attack.

Rathbun was in Des Moines to organize an Iowa farm committee to support the Republican presidential ticket of Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren.

Rathbun also was president of the National Dairymen's Council.

Late in 1946, Rathbun, along with other league officers, was accused by the Federal Government of rigging butter prices on the New York commodity market. He pleaded guilty although he maintained the practice was "entirely legal."

Hope H. Barroll

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—Hope H. Barroll, jr., 53, executive president and general manager of radio station WFBR, died at his home here late last night.

A member of an old and socially prominent Maryland family, Barroll was well known in Maryland radio circles. He came to Baltimore in 1916 after attending Washington College at Chestertown, first entering the investment business.

Born in Chestertown, Md., Barroll has been on the WFBR staff for the past 15 years.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons, Hope H. Barroll 3d, 16, and Robert Maslin, Barroll, 9.

Alfredo Galli

New Orleans, Sept. 30 (AP).—Alfredo Galli, noted Italian portrait painter, died last night.

The 79-year-old artist was internationally known for his portraits of European nobility and prominent persons of two continents.

CO-WORKERS CARRY CASKET—Wearing Capital Transit uniforms, pallbearers carry the casket of Mrs. Harriet Mildred Smith from Chambers Funeral Home, 1400 Chapin st. nw. Mrs. Smith, a streetcar operator for four years, was buried yesterday in Washington National Cemetery. The women pallbearers are Elizabeth Mann, Mrs. Leah B. Wilson, Bernice Harding, Ethel Drake, Mrs. Martha Blanton and Mrs. Mary Small.

E. R. Ryan, Retired U. S. Official, Dies

Edgar Rogers Ryan, 64, retired Government executive officer, died yesterday of a heart attack in Orlando, Fla., while driving to Tampa.

Mr. Ryan and his wife, Louise, recently had left their farm at Cross Junction, Winchester, Va. to spend the winter in Florida.

A former resident of Washington and Calvert Hills, Md., Mr. Ryan retired three years ago after 34 years of service with the Government. He was assistant executive officer of the Civil Aeronautics Authority at the time of his retirement and was formerly assistant superintendent of rural mails, Postoffice Department.

For many years he had made his home at 1420 Webster st., nw. He moved to Cross Junction shortly after his retirement.

Born in Philadelphia, he was graduated from Temple University and began his career as a stenographer in the Postoffice Department.

Besides his wife, Mr. Ryan is survived by a brother, Gerald Ryan, 100 Dale dr., Silver Spring, Md., chief clerk of the administrative office, Commerce Department; and a sister, Mrs. Stanley L. Wolfe of Quakertown, Pa., formerly of Chevy Chase, Md.

Mr. Ryan's body will be brought to the Warner Pumphrey Funeral Home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Carrie S. Easton

Funeral services for Mrs. Carrie S. Easton, 70, widow of Harry S. Easton, who died September 23 at Montgomery County General Hospital, were held Saturday. Burial was in Friends Cemetery, Sandy Spring, Md.

Mrs. Easton, who lived in Sandy Spring for 50 years, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ethel E. Craver, 4027 13th st. nw., and Mrs. Elizebeth E. Wood, Sandy Spring, Md.; two sons, Kenneth O. Easton, Fairland, Md., and Harry L. Easton, Sandy Spring, Md.

Six Women Coworkers Serve As Mrs. Smith's Pallbearers

Wearing Capital Transit uniforms, silver-buttoned Navy blues and high-crowned caps, six women coworkers served as active pallbearers yesterday at funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Mildred Smith, 35, streetcar operator.

At the suggestion of Mrs. Smith's husband, Carl W. Smith, a bus driver, the women participated in services at Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin st. nw., and at the burial in Washington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Smith of 101 4th ave., Takoma Park, Md., died in Garfield Hospital Monday, three days after celebrating her thirty-fifth birthday.

The Smiths met, relatives said, as fellow streetcar operators, collecting checks at Capital Transit offices, E. Capitol and 14th sts. They were married in June, 1945.

A native of Fredericton, New Brunswick, Mrs. Smith came to Washington in 1939. In May, 1944, she was one of the original 70 women recruited as streetcar operators during the wartime manpower shortage. She was one of 10 remaining women operators.

Throughout her service with the company she worked on the Mount Pleasant line, and had an excellent safety record, E. C. Giddings, Capital Transit vice president said.

Beside her husband, she is survived by her father, Sterling G. Parent, sr.; three brothers, Earle, Jesse and Sterling Parent, jr., and two sisters, Miss Gertrude Parent, all of Fredericton, and Mrs. Hazel O'Neil, of Warrenton, Ore.

Wilkerson, Federal Judge, Is Dead at 79

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—James H. Wilkerson, 79, former senior judge of the United States District Court here, died today at his home in Glencoe.

Judge Wilkerson

In 1931 Judge Wilkerson sentenced Al Capone to Federal prison for 11 years and fined him $50,000 for income tax evasion.

Members of the jurist's family said he died in his sleep. He had been in ill health for three years. Survivors include his wife, Mary Roth Wilkerson, and a son, Conrad.

As a Federal attorney, Wilkerson won a 29-million-dollar anti-trust suit against Standard Oil Co. of Indiana in 1908, and broke a railroad strike with an injunction.

His injunction breaking the railroad strike in the early 1920's earned the hostility of labor. This opposition kept him from elevation to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals several years later, when railroad labor and the American Federation of Labor protested his appointment before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee. Wilkerson finally asked his name be withdrawn.

Henry H. Rathbun

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 30 (U.P.). Henry H. Rathbun, 60, New York farm backer of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, was found dead in his hotel room here today.

Polk County Coroner A. E. Shaw said death apparently was due to a heart attack.

Rathbun, of New Hartford, N. Y., came here Monday to help organize the Iowa Farm Committee for Dewey and Warren. He had planned to return home tonight.

He was president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association of New York and of the National Dairymen's Council.

Without Painful Backache
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bosox, Yanks Win, Now 1½ Games Behind Tribe

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—The civic unity of Boston has been put riotously asunder in a year when the Braves have won a pennant after 34 years in the league's ruck. Clear-cut above the din of home-town adulation of the Braves has come the loudly expressed hope of one group that the Braves will get their ears knocked off in the approaching World Series.

POVICH

It's the Red Sox who are wishing the Braves no luck at all, and are predicting with delight that Cleveland, or whoever wins the American League pennant, will smack the Braves down in four straight. The Red Sox bitterness toward the Braves isn't being at all disguised. When word was flashed that Jeff Heath, the Braves big hitter, had suffered a broken ankle yesterday and was out of the series, the Sox had just reached their dressing room.

"Now isn't that too bad?" said one important member of the Red Sox in high sarcasm. "What are we supposed to do, weep about what happens to those bums?" Another Red Sox was even more expressive. "They only think the ankle is broken, huh? I hope his leg is broken up to his neck. Serves 'em right."

IF THAT ALL sound macabre and overly vicious, the Red Sox think they have excuse for it. Until a week ago, there was no bitterness toward the Braves, who had clinched their pennant. The Red Six were still in a fight for theirs and were still leading the league when a Big Incident occurred.

The Red Sox were clustered around their radios, listening in on a broadcasters' interview with the victorious Braves on pennant night, when one by one they heard Heath and other Braves say: "We're pulling for Cleveland or the Yankees to beat out the Red Sox. It means more dough in our pockets to play the series in one of those big parks."

And so, the Red Sox say, the Braves started it. To hell with the Braves, became the Red Sox theme. The Braves were safely in, but the Sox could pull against them in the series. It isn't nice to hear that a gang of guys are pulling against you when you're in the biggest pennant fight of your life, when any day could bring disaster. They are hating the Braves loudly.

THE BRAVES CRIME, of course, was in speaking their thoughts, not in having them. A world series in Cleveland with its 80,000 capacity against Fenway Park's 34,000 could mean as much as $2000 extra in the pocket of each member of the Braves. Under the reversed circumstances, if the Red Sox already had their pennant in, they'd doubtless have had the same ideas.

The tragic injury of Heath can be moaned not only because of the rough personal blow to the big fellow who was fired by the Indians and was in disrepute as a hitter when he left them. Heath's eagerness to be playing against his former club in a world series is understandable enough. He was aching to hit a home run against the Indians. That, indeed, would be sweet to the feel.

But Heath's absence threatens to rob the series of much of its color. The Braves have no other big hitter except Bob Elliott, and the presence of the brawny-armed Heath, standing at the plate waggling his bat as if it were a toothpick, would have been a series scene in itself. The Bad Boy getting his chance.

PHYSICALLY, AT LEAST, he'd have been the biggest man in the series, and certain to play against the righthanders, Bob Feller and Bob Lemon. Heath's bigness may be best illustrated perhaps by the episode in Washington two seasons ago when he was being rewarded by a clothing store for hitting a home run over the right field wall. For the feat he was entitled to a suit of clothes.

He got notice to call for his suit, and when he did drop around to collect his prize, the clerks drew a bead on the broadest pair of shoulders in the world and threw up their hands. There was no suit in stock to fit Heath, or even come close. There was a compromise. Mrs. Heath walked out of the shop with a trim ladies suit.

It would be wonderful, incidentally, if the Red Sox did luck it out, or something, and wind up as the rivals of the Braves in the World Series. There have been too many business-like World Series anyway, in recent years. It would be nice to see a series wherein some guys are really mad at some other guys.

Vic Raschi Quells Late A's Rally in 9-7 Victory

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP).—The New York Yankees retained their slim stake in the American League flag race by outscrambling Connie Mack's Athletics, 9 to 7, in a rain-swept game at Shibe Park today.

When Vic Raschi, third Yankee pitcher in the ninth inning, stifled the last two Athletic batters with the bases loaded, it meant that the world champions still had an outside chance of winning the pennant they captured last year by a dozen games.

The figures tonight showed that Bucky Harris' club could sneak in by beating the Boston Red Sox in both their closing games in the Hub City Saturday and Sunday—providing the front-running Cleveland Indians drop their final three against Detroit. It was a thin hope.

A 6-0 Lead in Second

The Bombers came near blowing today's decision after they apparently had it wrapped up behind Lefty Ed Lopat's southpaw curves. They led 6-0 after two frames and went into the ninth with a comfortable 9-6 bulge, yet it took stout-hearted flinging by Raschi in the closing moments to avert disaster.

Lopat, going for his seventeenth victory of the year, had one away in the ninth when Don White beat out a rap to deep short. When Ferris Fain followed with a sharp shot to right field, Bucky Harris relieved the lefty and brought in Frank (Spec) Shea from the bullpen.

It nearly proved a fatal mistake. Shea, who had not worked since September 10 because of a lame arm, walked Hank Majeski on four straight pitches to fill the sacks and then ran up a count of 3-1 on Elmer Valo before he found himself yanked for Raschi.

Chapman, Rosar Fail

Vic's first toss was a ball, forcing in White with the run that made the score 9-7 and leaving the bases loaded with Athletics.

Then while the 1231 fans who had braved a steady rain and drizzle to be in at the kill pleaded for a hit, Sam Chapman swung vigorously at a third strike, and Buddy Rosar lifted an easy fly to right to end it.

Cubs End Home Slate By Blanking Reds, 1-0

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs ended their home season today by defeating Cincinnati, 1 to 0, in a lefthanded pitchers' duel between Cliff Chambers and Ken Raffensberger.

Chambers thus completed a weird season in which he won his first start from St. Louis in April, 6-2, then didn't triumph again until this, his final start.

Manna H., Field Horse Wins Laurel Opener

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Sept. 30.—Moving between horses coming into the stretch, Sandy Strand Stable's Manna H, an invader from New England, drove down the rail to a surprise triumph today in the thirtieth running of the $10,000 Capital Handicap as the opening of the 25-day meeting at the Laurel race course inaugurated Maryland's autumn season of thoroughbred sport.

Ridden by Jockey Jack Robertson and grouped in the mutuel field, Manna H caught the Brookfield Farm's favored Istan in the final furlong and moved along to win by a half length. Istan, who was carried out and bumped by the tiring Little Harp on reaching the home stretch, was easily second, two lengths before Mrs. O. L. Niberg's Irisen, who raced wide en roue to third money.

Little Harp, the second choice from the Shamrock Stable, who held a narrow lead into the stretch before he tired, was fourth, a length off Irisen. He was followed by Gain A'Foot of the field; Turbine, King Dorsett, Lanlast, the other fielder; Lookout Son, Oriole and Daily Dip.

Betting Goes Up

Given fair support by the 10,558 racegoers on the cloudy, humid afternoon, the field returned $14.80 straight. The day's mutuels handle approximated $700,000. Last autumn's first day produced only a $683,024 handle, but Laurel was conflicting with Garden State Park at that time.

Manna H, a 4-year-old Halcyon Gift gelding, earned $9420 in his triumph. He had won twice in his New England campaigning this season. In his Capital score, he carried 109 pounds over 6 furlongs in 1:13 3-5.

Istan, winner of seven '48 starts to merit favoritism, was first from the gate as the 11 sprint specialists splattered into action. But Little Harp, a noted mud-rumner, readily forged to the front under Ira Hanford's urging. King Dorsett and Irisen, the latter away on the outside, were right off the leaders—and Manna H had only one horse, Daily Dip, beaten down the backstretch.

While Little Harp held on grimly to a head lead, he couldn't shake off Istan, 3-year-old Heliopolis gelding, around the turn. On gaining the straightaway, Little Harp carried out the favorite. At this point, Manna H was rallying between horses and roaring to the leaders.

When Little Harp began to back up, Istan went to the front. However, Robertson sent the charging

Boston Beats Nats, 7-3, to Keep Faint Hope Alive

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Sept. 30.—The Red Sox held out again today against surrender of their vanishing pannant hopes with a second straight victory over the Nats but unabated are the funereal signs.

They threw Mel Parnell, unbeaten by the Washington club in his two seasons in the league, against the Nats and the slim southpay recorded of 7-3 win, but to doubtful avail.

The Red Sox are no farther from the maw of pennant failure, however, with the Cleveland Indians, idle today, holding a game-and-a-half lead and coming up to their final three games of the season.

Boston and the Yankees, still tied for second place, move into their crucial two-game series starting Saturday, but their pennant pursuit continues hopeless unless disaster overtakes the Indians. Cleveland must meet two defeats in three games with Detroit to permit even a pennant tie.

If the Yankees and Red Sox break even in their two remaining games, then even three defeats for Cleveland will bring the Indians no worse than a tie.

In Fenway Park today, 4998 bitter-enders watched the Red Sox tee off solidly against Early Wynn to run up a 7-2 lead for Parnell that kept the Sox in the race. Against Wynn, Sid Hudson and Milo Candini the Red Sox rapped out 15 hits in a display of the oft-told Boston power.

They crushed the Nats with a big five-run fifth inning, launched by the home run of Stan Spence, former Nat, into the right field seats, and packed five more hits into the inning before Hudson relieved the wavering Wynn. Goodman, Tebbetts, Pesky and Williams singled, DiMaggio inserted a double, and Hudson walked the fifth run in.

Wynn was clipped for five hits back in the second inning when the Red Sox took a 2-0 lead, with the damage stemmed at the outset by a double play on Goodman's grounder. In succession, Tebbetts, Parnell, DiMaggio and Pesky banged out hits.

One blow produced the Nats' first two runs against Parnell, who now holds four decisions over the Washington club in four starts. Ed Stewart dropped a home run into the short angle of the right-field bleachers with Tom McBride on base in the sixth.

They drove Parnell out of the box in the seventh when singles by Early, Kozar and McBride fetched a third run, but another left-hander, Earl Johnson, took over with two out and against him the Nats subsided like meek seventh-placers.

IN SHORT — Stan Spence, back in the good graces of Manager Joe McCarthy with his recent batting splurge, attained both acme and nadir in his two times at bat in the fifth inning. He hit a home run in his first appearance, and took a third strike with the bases filled next time up . . . Despite the forlorn position of the Red Sox, Fenway Park is sold out for the games with the Yankees on Saturday and Sunday . . . Joe Dobson, beaten by the Nats in the series opener here, will be Boston's first pitcher against the Yankees . . . Eddie Yost, promoted to fifth place in the Nats' batting order, wrecked a first-inning rally by drilling into a double play with the bases full . . . The Nats moved onto Philadelphia tonight, facing an off day before their final two games of the season . . . Most of the Washington players will scatter to their homes on Sunday night, but Manager Joe Kuhel will return to Washington for a 1949 contract talk with Clark Griffith.

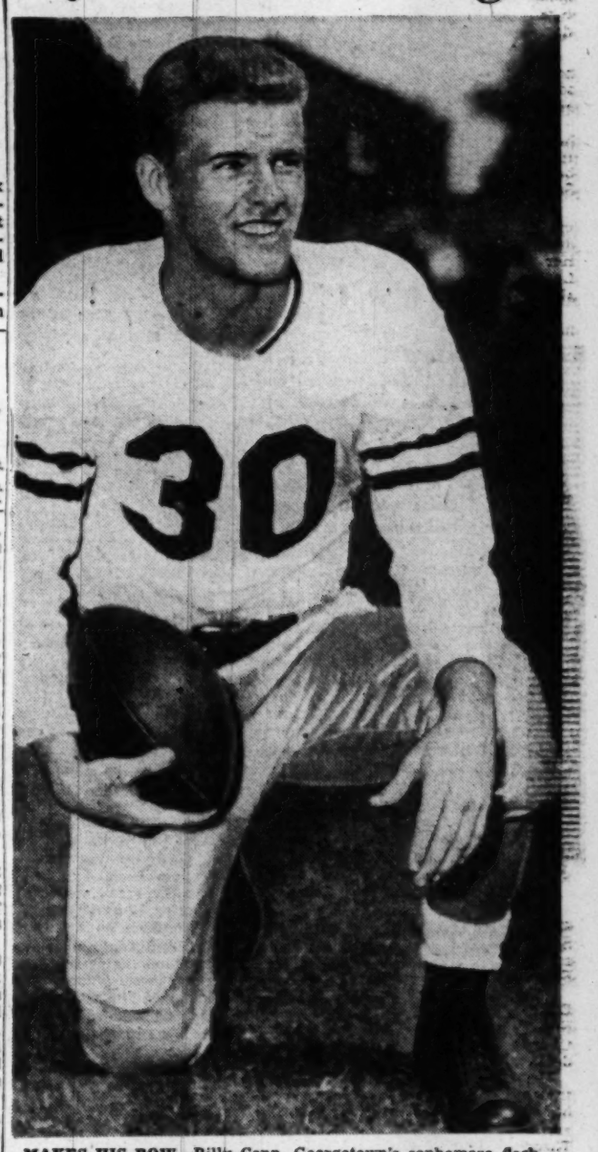
Hoyas, Eagles Clash Before 20,000 Tonight



MAKES HIS BOW—Billy Conn, Georgetown's sophomore flash, gives the home folks a chance to see him run against Boston College tonight at Griffith Stadium. The Jersey boy averaged almost eight yards a try against Holy Cross last week

Powerful Boston College 13-Point Choice 'In 'Must' Game for Georgetown at Stadium

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Although the football season's young, a grim Georgetown team reaches the crossroads at Griffith Stadium tonight, entertaining powerful Boston College before an anticipated 20,000 in the local big-time college opener.

Reason for the Hoyas' predicament is their top-heavy schedule which calls upon them to face three of their toughest foes in their first three games. The charges of Jack Hagerty flunked their opening test against Holy Cross, 18-7, and now find themselves encountering a team rated a 13-point favorite.

Eagles Swamped Deacs

Boston College breezed to a 26-9 victory over Wake Forest in its first game last week and Coach Denny Myers could have held the Deacons scoreless if he hadn't decided to let his subs see extensive action. As it turned out, Wake Forest scored all its points in the last three minutes on a safety, touchdown and extra point.

The big reason the New Englanders are heavily favored is Joe Diminick, a little guy. The 155-pounder from Kulpmont, Pa., reeled off 602 yards from scrimmage last season for a 6.2 average and demonstrated conclusively against Wake Forest that he's trickier than ever. Diminick gained 92 yards on rushes and picked up another 22 on pass reception.

Eagle backs who are equally reticent when it comes to being stopped at the line of scrimmage include Maurice Possant, Ed Songin, Bob Palladino and Al Canava. Boston's passing, done mostly by Ed Slasby and Ed Songin, is excellent. When Diminick and Possant aren't doubling as receivers, Ends Art Spinney and Albie Gould are fully capable of performing their offensive assignments. As a matter of fact, both scored against Wake Forest.

Coach Myers brought his squad into town last night and immediately herded them over to Griffith Stadium for a light workout. Because of heavy rain, the field was covered with canvas but the Eagles had ample room to limber up along the sidelines.

Except for the center spot, B. C. was in good shape. Big Ed Kennedy, 6-fot-6, 265-pounder, was put out of action in the Eagles' opener and Roy Delaney, second-stringer, was hurt in a pre-season drill. Bob Chouinard, 210-pound reserve, will have to carry the load.

With both lines averaging about 215 pounds, B. C. expects Tackles Ernie Stautner and Chet Lipka and Guards Dom Papaleo, Art Donovan and Tom Brennan to stand out.

The Hoya squad fully realizes how much the game means toward a succesful season and is determined to spring an upset. Georgetown hasn't beaten B. C. since 1930 and has won only two games of the 13-game series. The Hilltoppers hardly need any more incentive.

Postponements Lost

American League Clubs Must Close 1948 Schedule Sunday

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—American League President Will Harridge said today the pennant battle must be settled by next Sunday, regardless of whether any contender has a postponed game left unplayed.

Harridge said the league constitution provides that any postponements which cannot be played before the regular season ends, must be written off.

The problem was posed when rain threatened the New York Yankee-Athletic game today at Philadelphia. An open date tomorrow would permit the Yankees and Athletics to catch up on a possible postponement today.

Boston and New York, both idle tomorrow, clash in a throat-cutting pair at Boston Saturday and Sunday. Cleveland winds up its schedule in three games at home with Detroit.

A coin-tossing ceremony at the American League office last Friday set up this playoff program for a next Monday game if two teams tie and two games, Monday and Tuesday, if three teams deadlock:

If Boston and Cleveland tie, they will meet at Boston.

If New York and Cleveland tie, they will face at New York.

If Boston and New York tie, they will play off at New York.

Should all three share first place Sunday, Cleveland will face Boston Monday at Boston. The winner will then play host in its own park to New York for the pennant.

Pick-the-Winners Football Contest Begins Next Week

The Washington Post's 1948 Pick-the-Winners football contest will begin next week.

The contest will be conducted weekly on a basis similar to the 1947 contest in which more than a quarter of a million entries were received.

The winner each week will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 27, with an all-expenses-paid trip to the game for two persons. The weekly winner also will receive four (4) tickets to a major college or professional game in this area.

Contest rules and the games of October 9 on which you will pick the winners will be published in The Washington Post next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

London Doctor Insists European Athletes Used Stimulating Drugs in Olympic Games

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP).—A prominent London doctor said today that some continental European athletes during the summer Olympic Games were stimulated by drugs, much in the manner of race horses.

Dr. Christopher Woddard, director of the athletes' clinic at London's Middlesex Hospital, exonerated all British and American athletes.

When he was asked what specific events he referred to, Dr. Woodard replied "to sports in general and cycling in particular."

The 34-year old physician, an official medical adviser to the British Olympic team, first wrote of the drug-taking in a letter to the magazine "Cycling."

Today he told a reporter "I'm sick of this dirty business. It's time it came out."

"It is my own personal opinion that this drug-taking, by others, was a very large factor in Britain's not achieving Olympic or world honors this year."

Dr. Woodard said in his letter to "Cycling":

"I became very suspicious that some competitors were receiving artificial stimulants at the Olympic Games. However, I could not find definite proof of what I suspected, so at that time I kept an open mind on the subject.

"Two or three weeks later, however, I was able to see things at closer range at the world's cycling championships at Amsterdam, where I spent some of my time on the inside of the track."

"Very few people other than our own team knew who I was," Dr. Woodard's letter continued. "Imagine my surprise, therefore, when agarrulou s foreigner very surreptitiously tried to show me his pet concoction of strychnine, caffeine and benzedrine.

"One of our team came up to me while at Amsterdam and asked me why he should not take such drugs."

Dr. Woodard said he told the British athlete "nothing whatever justifies" it, but added: "I believe that our (British) boys were themselves under suspicion, but I am convinced that they have not fallen to the temptation."

Declaring that drug-taking before sporting events is "more widespread than people think," Dr. Woodard said:

"I've just visited Sweden and people there told me it was going on constantly.

"The only way to stop it," Dr. Woodard said, "is to medically examine athletes before events."

3 Interhigh Games on Slate Today

Anacostia, Central Top School Card

Central and Anacostia, the two favorites to win the Interhigh Football League championship, clash today at Anacostia.

This game, and one between Western and Wilson at Central Stadium, will reduce the four-team occupancy of first place to two.

Another Interhigh game in which Eastern is host to Coolidge, is also billed. All three league games start at 3:30 p. m.

Central, a dark horse before the season opened, exploded with a 20-0 victory over defending champion McKinley Tech, last week. Jimmy Pantos, Central's No. 1 back in 1947, was up to his old tricks as he rolled up 161 of Central's 185 yards.

The big Central line, sparked by 210-pound Tackle Fotis Karougatos and Center Gene Million, stopped the Tech running attack, and rushed the Tech passing into ineffectiveness.

Anacostia, the 1947 third-place team, won as expected, 13-0, over Coolidge. Jim Faulkner made a sparkling debut as a halfback for Anacostia, rolling up yardage on line smashes and scoring one touchdown. Jim was one of the league's best ends last year.

Though Western and Wilson are expected to fade out of the championship picture later, their game will probably attract more customers than the more important Central-Anacostia meeting.

Western and Wilson are neighbors in Northwest Washington, and both scored opening-game victories last Friday. Western rallied to defeat Roosevelt, 12-7, and Wilson overcame Eastern, 19-12. Originally scheduled for Western, the game was moved to Central, where the seating capacity is 7500.

Women's Championship

Mrs. George Bailey, jr., will meet Mrs. Charles Egenroad this morning for the women's championship of the Washington Golf and Country Club.

In the championship consolation flight, Mrs. Floyd Dennis plays Mrs. J. J. Corson for the title.

G.W.'s Punting Is the Least Of Its Worries

Virginia Military Institute will have a lot of kicks coming Saturday, and will get them from two of the best punters in the East.

The two boys with the strong toes are Bill Spangler and Johnny Shullenbarger, who'll play for George Washington against V. M. I. at Griffith Stadium.

Both boys have a 40 yards per kick season behind them, and they're both continuing their pace this year. The odd thing is that neither started out as a kicker, but turned to that specialty in emergencies.

When he was 10, Shullenbarger, a Washington native, injured his left foot while playing football with some neighborhood chums. As a result, four bones were removed from the foot, leaving it limp and practically useless.

Friend Helps Out

Doctors prescribed exercise for the hurt member, and in desperation, Johnny's family turned to an old friend, Otts Kriemelmeyer, a Recreation Department playground teacher.

Otts, a G. W. U. back in the early 1930's, took Johnny under his wing and taught him to punt with his right foot, and place his weight on the injured left.

By the time, Johnny reached Coolidge High School, he no longer favored the bad foot, and was booting the ball 45 yards. He developed into a fine high school player and paced Coolidge to the interhigh championship in 1943.

Johnny came to G. W. in 1946, and took over punting duties. In his freshman year, he averaged over 40 yards per try.

Last season, Johnny ran into scholastic difficulties and wasn't available. That's where Spangler enters the scene.

Bill came to G. W. with Coach Skip Stahley in 1946 from the San Diego Navy team. The San Luis Obispo, Calif., native quickly developed into Stahley's No. 1 backfield threat.

In 1947, with Shullenbarger indisposed, Stahley taught Spangler to punt, and the 190-pounder caught on quickly. During the last four games he averaged over 40 yards. Against Miami (Fla.) U., he got off a pair of punts for 65 and 78 yards.

Shully rejoined the team this season. In the opener against Wake Forest, G. W.'s new coach, Bo Rowland, used Shully on quick kicks, with Spangler booting from punt formation. Shully averaged 41 yards with five kicks, and Spangler, 42 with six.

There was no need for quick kicking against VPI last week so Spangler handled all six GW punts. Two went out on the Tech two and another on the eight. HERB HEFT

Sonny Boy West Batters Out 6-Round TKO Over Shapiro

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Sonny Boy West, Washington's aspiring lightweight hope, battered Maxie Shapiro for five rounds and was awarded a technical knockout when the veteran Bronx battler couldn't answer the bell for the sixth in the feature boxing match last night at Uline Arena.

There were no knockdowns in the scheduled 10-rounder but West was leading by a wide margin when it was stopped by Referee Marty Gallagher and Dr. Leon Gordon, Boxing Commission physician.

Shapiro had taken a bad beating around his left eye just before the end of the session. Dr. Gordon said that Shapiro had suffered a hemorrhage of the eye, and advised Gallagher to halt the bout.

West, at 134½ gave away a half pound to Shapiro, one-time conqueror of Champion Bob Montgomery. The crowd of 1272 watched West, a 3-1 favorite, tear out of his corner and swing five times as many punches as Shapiro though missing three of five.

The canny New Yorker wasn't in real trouble, however, until just before the end of the fifth when West pelted him with both hands near Maxie's corner.

The last preliminary before the main bout produced one of the fastest knockouts in local boxing history. Rocky Marciano, 179, of Brockton, Mass., caught Gil Cardione, 189, Puerto Rico, with a short left uppercut and knocked him cold in 36 seconds of the first round.

In the other bouts, Bert Wicks, 130, Washington, scored a TKO over Mose Herald, 132, Washington, in 2:27 of the third; Holly Mims, 156, former District A. A. U. champ, decisioned Julian Keene, 164, Washington, in a four; Bob Baldwin, 152, New York, won a six-round decision over Guillermo Pardo, 149, Mexico.

The gross gate was $3040.90; the net $2071.10.

Annapolis Police Look for 'Big Reds'

Annapolis, Sept. 30 (AP).—Annapolis police today were alerted to pick up any suspicious-looking characters roaming the streets at night with paint cans.

Desk Officer Norman Finkle said the Naval Academy had a tip that Cornell rooters might arrive before the Navy-Cornell football game in Baltimore Saturday and "start painting up the town."

"We know most of the Annapolis painters who have a right to carry paint cans," Finkle said, "and anyway, they wouldn't be out at night."

Cops Don't Appreciate Hoya School Spirit—Haul in Six

A horn-tootin' pregame celebration through downtown streets last night ended with six Georgetown University students charged with making unnecessary noise.

Police took the six and one other, a Catholic University student, to Third Precinct Station after stopping at 13th and F sts. nw. a string of 30 student-filled cars which were "pepping things up" for tonight's Georgetown-Boston College football game.

The Catholic University student, Robert Daniel Kiegan, 25, of New York City, was charged with driving 40 miles an hour and with failure to keep in line.

The GU students charged were Clarence M. McLaughlin, 21, of Rome, N. Y.; Henry D. Cross, 18, of Springfield, N. J.; Roy S. French, jr., 21, of New York City; Charles T. Fisher, 21, of Detroit; Martin M. Schneider, 21, of 6731 Glenbrook rd., Bethesda, and Felix Anthony, 24, of Providence, R. I. All forfeited $5 collateral.

Edwards Feels Chesty, Predicts 'Skins Will Whip Giants

Hogan, Haas, Webb Tie at 67 in Portland

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 30 (AP).—Favorite Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and two rivals shot five under par 67s today to share the first round lead of the 72-hole Portland Open golf tournament.

Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, a former national intercollegiate title holder now turned professional, and Gene Webb, Springfield, Mo., also toured the course in 67.

Hogan put together 34, 33, nine-hole scores which Webb had posted earlier in the day. Haas carded 32, 35. The Portland Country Club course plays to a par 35, 37—72.

The star field battered par despite a 6470-yard course softened by recent rains and gushy winds in the afternoon.

The three-under-par first nine turned in by Haas was a corking effort. He hit every green and knocked in good putts for the three birdies, getting pars on the rest. He would have been leading the field except for a one-over-par 6 on the eighteenth. It was the only hole on which he had trouble.

Charles Congdon of Tacoma, Wash., winner here last year and the current Canadian Open champion, came in with a respectable 70 but the two-under-par effort left him back. In between him and the pace setters were Ed Oliver, Seattle, 68; and Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., and Al Zimmerman, Portland, both with 69.

Bob Hamilton, playing out of Prince Georges Country Club in Landover, Md., was four strokes back with 35, 36—71. After firing a pair of 39s, Otto Greiner of Baltimore, Md., was 11 strokes off the pace with 78.

Coach Even Tells How it Can Happen

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Coach Turk Edwards, his pulse finally back to normal after the Hairbreadth Harry act in which his Redskins nosed out Pittsburgh in their opener, yesterday said the 'Skins will whip the New York Giants here Sunday.

He gave three reasons.

"First, we're not going to make the same line mistakes again," said burly Turk. "Our guards and tackles are going to charge in there hell-for-leather and let the trap plays fall where they may.

"Second, we're going to use the speed of our backs to more advantage. Bob Nussbaumer, for instance, should be going all the way around those ends instead of cutting in. Harry Gilmer, Dick Todd and Dan Sandifer can help him.

"Third, we've got rookie material to match any in the league, the Giants included. They don't worry us with their Conerly, Minisi, Swiacki, Gehrke and so on . . ."

You can call Edwards' last remark a bit of whistling in the dark but you must admit Washington's first-year players have looked good in their brief tryouts. There are 12 of them all together, playing with the 'Skins for the first time, although two of these have previous professional experience.

Halfback Howie Livingston was introduced to Washington the hard way, for the 'Skins—while he was a member of the Giants. Just last December, the Fullerton Junior College grad, a whiz at pass defense, stepped out of that role and scored twice with passes of 27 and 53 yards, helping the Giants to a 35-10 rout of Washington.

End Hal Crisler came to the 'Skins from the Boston Yanks. He was a flash in 1946, after one year at San Jose State and 18 months of service in the Pacific, but last season he started off with an injury that hampered his play all season.

Last Sunday he caught seven passes, good for 148 yards, the most important a 34-yard slant from Sam Baugh as the drive for a winning field goal was under way.

Of course, Gilmer is the prize rookie. The Alabama All-America is still treating a damaged leg, but on his few appearances last week he stood out. There was that 40-yard pass to Crisler, ending the first half. If he's half as good as his rooters claim, he'll be all Washington needs to counteract Conerly, Minisi, etc.

Halfback Dan Sandifer came to Washington direct from Louisiana State University, where he was the shining light in two North-South games. The first two times he touched a ball with the Redskins, he scored touchdowns in exhibitions. His big showing Sunday came as he tackled a Steeler pass receiver so hard there was a fumble. Sandifer himself recovered to start the 'Skins on their winning march.

Tackle Mike Roussos, the rookie from Pitt, distinguished himself by barging into a Steeler pass, causing another fumble and setting the stage for Doug Turley's 33-yard touchdown run . . . Right with Roussos at the time was Mike Katrishen, a 215-pound guard from Mississippi Southern . . . Fullback Ed Quirk, fresh out of Missouri, threw his 229 pounds around almost as well as Jim Castiglia . . . And on pass defense the Redskins were more than pleased with the work of Howard Hartley, halfback freshman out of Duke.

So far, such as Fullback John Henry Hollar, End Herb Shoener, Center Don Corbitt and Tackle Ed Stacco have seen limited service.

Mrs. Brough, Du Pont Win Doubles Title

Los Anegeles, Sept. 30 (AP).—Louise Brough and Margaret duPont swept through foreign competition today to win the women's doubles championship of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Tournament.

Miss Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. duPont of Wilmington, Del., swamped Nelly Landry of France and Sheila Summers of South Africa, 6—1, 6—2, in the only finals match of the day.

Parker of Pasadena, Calif., sailed through his quarterfinal match with Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6—2, 6—0, 6—2. Flam wasn't able to win his own service until the third set, when he held, briefly, a 2-1 game edge.

Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., polished off Vic Seixas of Philadelphia in the semifinals tomorrow.

In the semifinas tomorrow Schroeder will meet National Champion Richard Gonzales, Los Angeles, and Parker will oppose Eric Sturgess of South Africa. Gonzales beat Adrian Quist, Australia, yesterday and Sturgess beat Earl Cochell, San Francisco.

The Australian Davis Cup team of Colin Long and Adrian Quist won a quarter-final men's doubles match from Earl Cochell, San Francisco, and Tony Mottram of England, 6—4, 6—4, 6—0.

Helen Pastall, Los Angeles, defeated Louise Isaacs, Bakersfield, Calif., 6—2, 6—2.

In a men's doubles quarterfinal match, Frank Sedgman, Australia, and Eric Sturgess, South Africa, defeated Richard Gonzales, Los Angeles, and Hugh Stewart, Pasadent, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, 7—5.

Tatum's Bullies

Mighty Maryland Set to Romp Over Li'l Delaware Saturday

Mighty Maryland, after bullying Richmond, 19-0, in its opener, will attempt more of the same tactics Saturday night against little Delaware at Wilmington.

Surprising thing about that first game was Maryland's inability to score. The Terps rolled up 18 first downs to Richmond's eight and 372 yards from scrimmage to 103, but lacked scoring punch. It probably could be traced to Maryland's poor passing performance. With Vic Turyn throwing most, only two completions were recorded in 20 attempts.

It's a cinch that big Jim Tatum has worked to correct the opening flaws and the biggest worry he should have is keeping his boys from running up too big a score.

Whatever luster the game had was lost when Delaware was dumped unceremoniously last week by Penn Military College 13-7.

Last year the Terps walloped the Blue Hens, 43-19. Bill Cole, little All-America back, scored two of the Delaware touchdowns on a 90-yard kickoff return. Cole, who weighs only 155, racked up a 12.5 average in the seven times he toted the ball and will be on hand tomorrow night to make the Terps chase him.

Bernie Sniscak, halfback, and Tackle Chet Gierula are both sidelined with injuries but chances are, 11 Marylanders could beat Delaware. Starting backs will be Vic Turyn, Johnny Idzik, Jim LaRue and Harry Bonk with Tom Wingate and Fred Davis at the end positions.

Cubs Blank Cincy, 1 to 0

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs ended their home season today by defeating Cincinnati, 1 to 0, in a lefthanded pitchers' duel between Cliff Chambers and Ken Raffensberger.

Chambers thus completed a weird season in which he won his first start from St. Louis in April, 5-2, then didn't triumph again until this, his final start.

Mrs. Meckley Wins Senior U. S. Golf Title

Rye, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Robert B. Meckley of Washington, D. C., won the United States senior women's golf championship today with a 36-hole total of 170.

She finished three strokes ahead of Mrs. H. G. Dow of Rye, and five strokes in front of Mrs. Russell Hoffman of Old Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Holman were tied with 83s at the end of the first 18 holes.

The final round was played in a heavy rain which did away with any chances of low scores.

Mrs. Meckley had a 45, nine over women's par, on the first nine and a 42 on the back nine holes.

Mrs. Dow spoiled her chances of winning by three-putting four of the last five holes.

Mrs. Edward Shay of Fall River, Mass., tied Mrs. Holman for third place.

Last year's winner, Katherine Foster of Westerly, R. I., finished seventh with 87, 92—179.

C. U. Braces For Air Attack

Patuxent Naval Air Station is expected to stick to the airways tomorrow when it helps Catholic U. open its football season at Brookland, at 2:30.

End Coach Sam Fox, who scouted the Sailors, says they prefer passes to a ground attack and every man in the backfield can throw. Art Cieslik is the mainspring of Patuxent's offense, Fox says. He's a triple-threater and will give the Cards a busy afternoon. The C. U. scout couldn't pick out any special pass receiver because all looked good.

Patuxent also has a 250-ground guard, "Big" Smith, a 6-foot-5 individual, who may cause havoc in the line. He's fast for his size and particularly good on defense.

Patuxent's starting line-up is expected to include Ed Clements and White at end; Smith and Block, tackles; Bud Clements and Oldham, guards; McShane, center; Tedesco, quarterback; Cieslik Casperson, halfbacks, and Mobley, fullback.

Catholic U.'s squad had a light workout yesterday and was cheered at a pep rally last night in the gym.

49ers Tackle Rockets Tonight

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—San Francisco's undefeated 49ers, the hottest title prospectors in the All-America Conference, will seek their sixth straight league win against the once-victorious Chicago Rockets at Soldier Field tomorrow night.

Dobbs Paces Dons' 20-10 Win

Pick-the-Winners Football Contest Begins Next Week

The Washington Post's 1948 Pick-the-Winners football contest will begin next week.

The contest will be conducted weekly on a basis similar to the 1947 contest in which more than a quarter of a million entries were received.

The winner each week will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 27, with an all-expenses-paid trip to the game for two persons. The weekly winner also will receive four (4) tickets to a major college or professional game in this area.

Contest rules and the games of October 9 on which you will pick the winners will be published in The Washington Post next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Boudreau, Paige Face Operations

Cleveland, Sept. 30 (AP).—Manager-Shortstop Lou Boudreau and Pitcher Satchel Paige of the pennant-bound Cleveland Indians may have to undergo operations but not before the World Series, Team Physician Edward B. Castle, jr., revealed today.

"It may be advisable for Boudreau to submit to an operation after he is through playing for the year," Castle said. "There is a small mass above his groin. He was afraid it was hernia, but it's too high for that.

"Paige may be suffering from gall stones," Castle added. "If we find that such is the case, we may have to remove his gall bladder." Castle classed Boudreau's operation as minor but it was believed that an operation might end the veteran Paige's career.

Brissie Troubled By War Wound

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP).—Lefty Lou Brissie, brilliant rookie southpaw of the Philadelphia Athletics, was hospitalized today for treatment of an infection in his war-shattered left leg.

Brissie, who won 14 and lost 10 games for the fourth place A's this year, originally was scheduled to pitch against the New York Yankees today, but Dr. Illarion Gopadze, team physician, ordered the left-hander out of uniform.

Brissie's leg was shattered while serving with the Army during the war in Italy. He was almost left on the battlefield for dead but was picked up by stretcher bearers.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1948

Old Waterford Shows Its Handicrafts

MEMBERS of the Waterford Foundation prepare for the exhibit of work by artists and craftsmen of Loudoun County, which opens today and will continue through Sunday. Exhibits will be displayed in Waterford homes and in the school auditorium. From left to right are Mrs. S. Lee Luckett, Mrs. Fred Stabler, Mrs. R. J. McCray, Mrs. John Rust and Miss Eleanor M. AN expert at the spinning wheel is Mrs. Anna Hutchison of Hamilton, Va., who will demonstrate her craft in the auditorium. Mrs. Hutchison is 67, and says she has known how to operate her wheel since she was 10

Historic Virginia Town Opens Display of Crafts, Ancient Homes

By Don Olesen

TODAY the quiet, timeless Virginia town of Waterford opens its annual three-day exhibit of local handicrafts—and tests a plan to lift the community by its own economic bootstraps.

The exhibit means lovely, handmade braided and hooked rugs and quilts, and quaint, historic homes to the thousands of visitors who this weekend will pour into the dreaming Loudoun County town.

But to the some 300 exhibitors, handicrafts mean a new source of income to supplement the area's predominantly agricultural dollar.

The display, which ends Sunday evening, will be open from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily. In addition to the quilts and rugs, this year's exhibit will feature reproductions of early American kitchens in the original homes; displays of lamps and lampshades, of lawn furniture, and a demonstration of the nearly forgotten art of spinning.

In an old red barn in the center of town visitors can view a display of sketches, photographs, and paintings. At 4 p. m. Saturday and Sunday they can hear selections by the Waterford A Cappella Chorus, and watch the town's young people square dancing on the "church green." And they can tour some of Waterford's fine, eighteenth century homes—nearly unchanged through the years.

Admission to the entire exhibit will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Box lunches, put up by 16 womens' church and social groups, will be sold during the weekend for $1.25 each.

WATERFORD, itself, is a sort of one-way town. People who enter it, residents say, have a hard time leaving the well-preserved charm of a village which has changed little over nearly 200 years.

Even the ancient, one-way highway bridge guarding Waterford bears out the trend. No trains whistle through Waterford. No bus routes lead there. Nearest city is Leesburg, about 9 miles to the northwest.

Visitors who stroll down Waterford's "Butcher's Row" and "Main st" will find there the same homes, mill and Quaker Meeting House that stood in the eighteenth century.

Sharing the road with strollers, chances are, will be a sleeping dog or two, several mounted horses and possibly a stray chicken or two. In the distance will be the soft, hazy lift of the Blue Ridge foothills.

Waterford started growing along its "Kittocktin Creek" about 1732, sparked by a migration of Pennsylvania Quakers. Most of its architecture is that of the years of the first settlement. It grew about its one grist mill.

The Friends (or Fairfax, as it was called) Meeting House was built about 1761 and the Quakers met there regularly until 1929, when the meeting was "laid down"—discontinued—because of the death of most of the worshippers.

The town had a tavern, built about 1800 and still standing; a "weaving house" on Water st., once a tiny factory producing spreads and other household items, and a jail, built a century ago, and now unused.

Waterford residents tell of the time, about 1870, when a shrewish woman was jailed as a "common scold." Jailors let her sit in front of the stone jail during the day, locked her up at night.

TODAY, Waterford is predominately a residential town. It serves in only a minor way as a shopping center for area farmers, who largely patronize Leesburg. Many of its residents daily commute the 42 miles to Washington.

This lack of major industries—and isolation—pose a real economic problem to residents. Mrs. Thomas M. Cooley, one of the Waterford Foundation's directors, put it this way:

To build up these skills, the foundation is operating classes in manual training, lampshade-making, and rug-making. The classes are free—students pay cost prices for materials. Instructors receive no salary.

By this training, the foundation hopes "to raise our handicraft standards" to meet the requirements of the people who come to Waterford every year from as many as 30 States and Canada.

Typical of the spirit of Waterford is that of Mrs. Anna E. Hutchison, who at 67 operates a nearby boarding house, gets up at 4 a. m. to cook breakfast, milk her cow, feed the chickens, mow the lawn and tend her truck garden.

Her cellar bulges with home-canned foods. Her quilts win blue ribbons all over the State. This weekend, she'll demonstrate her hand-spinning talents to visitors at the exhibit.

With such spirit on tap, foundation backers feel their long-range economic experiment will be a success.

U. S. Members Entertain

Monetary Delegates Honored at Reception

THE UNITED STATES delegates to the Monetary Conference came in for their share of entertaining yesterday, when a reception for over 600 was held at the Wardman Park Hotel. Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder were joint hosts with Mr. and Mrs. William Clayton. The Secretary and Mr. Clayton serve as Governor and Alternate Governor representing the United States in the Bank and Fund.

Guests were received in the Continental Room of the Wardman Park Hotel after 6 o'clock. Masses of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums centered a long buffet table from which a variety of hors d'oeuvres were served.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson was a guest, and Eugene Meyer, first president of the World Bank, and Mrs. Meyer. Also, Acting Secretary of State, Robert A. Lovett, Paul G. Hoffman, head of ECA; Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John S. Graham, and Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. John E. Peurifoy.

All the Cabinet members and their wives were invited, as well as Little Cabinet members and diplomats who are attending the conference.

Camille Gutt, managing director of the Fund, who has proven himself indefatigable as a host, again entertained at a lunch and dinner in his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. His son, Etienne Gutt, was present for both parties.

At luncheon, Mr. Gutt's guests were Frank Coe, Secretary of the Bank and Fund; Rodrigo Gomez,

Minister Tells Church Group Of Red Dominated China

By Genevieve Reynolds

The Washington Council of Church Women concluded its thirtieth Missionary Institute yesterday with class periods dramatizing geographical frontiers and a discussion of "China in the Asia of Today" by Rev. Alfred Dixson Heininger.

In answer to a question, "Does Communism permit freedom of religion?" the Rev. Heininger told the some 300 women present, "Officially Communists say they believe in freedom of religion but their idea of freedom and ours differ. Actually, they do not grant freedom of worship except for their own doctrines.

"One pattern clearly emerges in Communist-dominated regions of China," he continued. "There is a progressively restrictive program toward Christianity. It isn't always just anti-Christianity but often antireligious."

He predicted that Christianity eventually will have to go underground in Communist-controlled China.

Sees Opportunity

The Rev. Heininger went on to point out that in Nationalist territory, "Christianity has a superb opportunity to flourish and take root in this civil war period."

During the fight against the Japanese the church identified itself with the suffering of the Chinese people and as a result now has new power and recognition, he said.

To another poser, "Is the Nationalist Government as corrupt as we have been led to believe here?" the speaker replied, "No. But in such a vast machinery of government you are bound to find some corruption. In China as in other countries there was a great moral sag during the war which naturally affected some government officials. But I have been told that since the reorganization of the Chinese government last April, the country

Food 'Know How' Shared

Gotham's Famed Chefs Cook for Food Editors

By Lucia Brown

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 30.—From the standpoint of cuisine it would be hard to find a better place for a food editors' conference than "Little Old New York." Coming from North Dakota, California, Massachusetts and points in between, 110 food editors are eating this week at places that are part of the glittering New York legend—Sherry's and the Waldorf, the Rainbow Room of Rockefeller Center and many others.

Since the newspaper food editors' conference has headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria, many events are held in its galaxy of beautiful rooms—the Sert, Palm Jade and Wedgewood Rooms and the Astor Gallery.

Early in the week we met Claidius Philipe, who has inherited the mantle of Oscar of the Waldorf. He is a young man in a morning suit, wearing a pale gray tie and an air of Parisian suavity. When he said he started his career at Paris' Hotel Crillon 25 years ago, food editors decided he must have been cradled behind the kitchen stove. He looks about 26, lays claim to 38.

The son of a famous French chef, Philipe came to this country in 1929 and joined the Waldorf as Oscar's assistant in 1931. He is married to a food editor, his wife serving in this capacity with Mademoiselle Magazine. Philipe's title is banquet and entertainment manager.

Waldorf cheese clafoutis, Lorraine quinche and lady fingers were the delicacies served us with champagne after a tour of the huge Waldorf kitchens. Philipe explained that the Waldorf likes to serve the first two hot as hors d'oeuvres. The recipe for clafoutis and the homemade lady fingers, as Philipe called them, follow. The quinche is much like the clafoutis, but has Swiss cheese and diced bacon instead of cream cheese and onion.

Bachelor Tells Ladies How to Get Attention At the Grocery Store

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AT A cocktail party the other evening a group of ladies were complaining about the tedious time wasted waiting for sales clerks at their favorite Connecticut ave. grocery. Lieut. Col. Herbert de Schinkel, the Swedish Air Attache, a bachelor and quite a card with the frailer sex, passing by with highball in hand, happened to overhear this not too dazzling conversational tidbit.

"Oh, I never wait a minute," he exclaimed. "It takes me nothing flat to do MY shopping!"

The ladies clustered around eagerly. How DO you do it?

Eating FRUIT?

"Sure. Fruit is always on open display. I just start eating, and by the second or third apple, plum, or whatever's in season—like magic a clerk pops up!"

Tea Situation in Hand

NOW we've proved the advantage of advertising in The Washington Post. Now we know how to move what's called "goods" with lightning rapidity. Wednesday this department published the vegetarian diet hostesses must provide if they entertain Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lady Cripps. China tea was the only stimulating liquid included. So, in the interests of Anglo-American relations we offered to donate a package of fine China tea, supposedly worth $25 (a present from Anthony Hyde, head of New York's Tea Bureau), to any hostess faced with the complex problem of dining without wining the Spartan Sir Stafford.

During the day our personal bell tolled more than half a dozen times. On the other end were females of unknown origin—all quivering on the brink of a Cripps party and all, apparently, stocked with nothing more elegant than tea balls.

The first few calls, we suspected, were of humorous origin—the ultimate one we knew was genuine—so the tea goes to a most attractive lady, with strict instructions to brew it with bland bottled water, since Washington's chlorinated potable ruins the delicate flavor of so lovely a tea.

Paintings to Rent

HAVE you a blank space over mantel? A depressing wallpaper which your landlady refuses to replace? If so, why not cover up or fill in with a cheerful painting, temporarily and at small cost? Mrs. Randolph Winslow, who paints under her maiden name, Marcella Comes, has no present wall space for about 30 of her paintings. All are beautifully framed, most have been exhibited recently and some have been awarded prizes. About 10 are "flower" pieces, some landscapes painted in the White Mountains; a few are nudes. She'll rent them out starting at $3 a month and up, according to size and quality. At the end of a month you can return the picture, get another or buy it on the installment plan. Just call Mrs. Winslow at Hobart 1465.

Marcella, incidentally, is just completing a series of portraits of debutantes. She's "done" Barbara Berry, Florence Walker, Evelyn Harman, Eleanor Bishop and is "finishing" Betsy Beal and Louise Hoover.

Palm Tree in Georgetown

DOES ANY "green-thumbed" Washington Post reader know the intricacies of raising a coconut palm in a Georgetown back yard? A while ago, at luncheon in Hawaii with the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific, Admiral and Mrs. De Witt Ramsay, we fell in love with a coconut a-sprout with foliage. None was available during our too short tarrying at Pearl Harbor, but, evidently, the Navy never forgets!

Thursday Admiral Ramsay, here briefly to see his ill mother, brought along a coconut palm in his plane. At present it is propped against the weeping willow in our handkerchief-sized garden, and is as yet unplanted. Should it be potted, fed vitamins, kept in the kitchen, placed in the bathroom, watered constantly or not at all, left to brave Georgetown breezes for a few more weeks—or should we knit a sweater for it?

Who knows? Any suggestions gratefully received.

Delegates Feted at Luncheon Cocktails

Executive Director of Mexico; S. G. McFarlane, Australian Alternate of the Bank; Guido Carli, Italian Director; Ambassador Norman Makin, Bank Governor; Raul Martinez-Ostos, Mexican Director; Hubert Ansiaux, Belgian Director; Roger Taymans, Belgian Counselor, and others.

Mr. Gutt's guests at dinner included the Dutch Ambassador and Mme. Van Kleffens, the British Ambassador and Lady Franks, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lady Cripps, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rolin, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rasminsky of Canada, and Mrs. G. Pisart of New York City.

An interesting group were entertained during the cocktail hour by Mr. and Mrs. Alexandre Cruger Paternotte de La Vaillee of the Belgian Embassy, their guests of honor being members of the Belgian delegation to the conference. Over a hundred were entertained. Mr. Paternotte is the son of the Belgian Ambassador to Canada.

During the luncheon hour the French Charge d'Affairs Armond Berard gave a stag party at his house on Albemarle street. The Secretary of Commerce, Charles Sawyer, was a guest as well as Wayne Chatfield, Taylor, Brent Spence, Garrison Norton and Frank A. Southard, jr., all United States delegates to the Monetary Conference.

Other guests at Mr. Berard's luncheon were members of the French delegation: Wilfrid Baumgartner, Pierre Calvert, Guillaume Guindey, Roger Hoppenot, Christian Valensi, and others.

Skating Club to Hold Open House

The eleventh successive season of the Washington Figure Skating Club will begin this evening at an open house at the club rink, Chevy Chase Ice Palace, from 6 to 8 o'clock. Members, former members and their guests are invited to attend.

Richard C. Queisser and other officers of the club will be on hand to extend greetings. Osborne Colson, former Canadian champion, will be at the club this year, and Miss Betty Lee Dent, well known skater, will be the new lady professional.

Skating sessions are at 12:20 Saturdays for beginners; at 6 to 8 Saturday evenings for teen-agers. A children's party will be held tomorrow from 6 to 8 o'clock. There will be skating and refreshments will be served.

Birth Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Philip May of Charleston, W. Va., are spending several weeks at the Shoreham.

Engagements of Interest to Washington

The engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Kathryn Swander, to John Crittenden Russell has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. David Clarence Swander of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Russell is the son of Mrs. John C. Russell of Fredericksburg and the late Mr. Russell of Louisville, Ky.

Miss Swander was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University where she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. She has her master's degree from the University of Wisconsin, and she is a director of student personnel at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia in Fredericksburg.

Mr. Russell is a graduate in civil engineering at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He has done construction work in this country and in South and Central American countries. Mr. Russell served in the Navy for three years in the Pacific, leaving with the rank of lieutenant commander. At present he is engaged in survey and construction work in Virginia.

The wedding is planned for late fall.

Mr. and Mrs. James I. MacKechnie of Port Jervis, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Ruth MacKechnie, to George K. Harris of Washington, son of Mrs. Fred Plourde and the late Merle Harris of Millinocket, Me.

Miss MacKechnie is employed by the Department of the Interior. Mr. Harris was recently discharged from the United States Navy.

Arlington League Favors Bond Issue

The Arlington League of Women Voters voted unanimously to support the proposed $4,750,000 bond issue to raise money for the Arlington schools. Action was taken at an executive board meeting Tuesday night and expressed the concerted opinion of the league's nine neighborhood groups.

A previous ballot on the subject in the individual neighborhood groups indorsed the bond measure.

To support its stand, the Arlington league also voted to mobilize public opinion for the local school bond issue in a forthcoming campaign.

Film Strips Tell Story of U. N. Activities

The Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace announces a new series of five cartoon filmstrips on the United Nations for release today.

The series, entitled "Your United Nations," has been designed to meet the need for new discussion program films on the growth of the U. N. and the achievements of its member agencies, with special reference to the manner in which these affect—and are affected by—the people of the United States.

Mrs. Dana Converse Backus, interim national chairman of the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace, in announcing this series said: "We decided that one of the most effective ways in which we could explain the work of the United Nations would be through the use of filmstrips. We feel that these filmstrips will be particularly useful to groups planning programs for United Nations Week, October 17-24."

Hadassah Units Will Convene For Training Institute

Mrs. Paul W. Aschner, chairman of the National Speakers Bureau of Hadassah, and Mrs. Arthur J. Rubel, national membership consultant for the organization, will conduct a two-day training institute for the Seaboard Region of Hadassah to be held in Washington, Mrs. Samuel Lubin, president of the region, has announced.

Mrs. Lubin will preside at the two-day regional meeting which will be held at the Jewish Community Center on October 6 and October 7, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Membership and fund-raising chairmen from Hadassah chapters in Maryland, the District of Columbia and nearby Virginia, have been invited to attend.

Mrs. Rubel will lead the membership seminar on October 6. Mrs. Rubel, who has been identified with the Zionist movement all her life, has the distinction of having been an active member of the Women's Zionist Club in Shanghai, China, where she spent the first two years of her married life. Mrs. Rubel has also worked actively in behalf of the Jewish National Fund and the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School.

Mrs. Aschner will conduct the session on leadership and fund-raising techniques on the second day of the institute. Prior to the meeting, she will be interviewed by Miss Mary Forman over Station WQQW at 9:45 a. m., October 7, on "The Role of Hadassah in Relation to the New State of Israel."

Bride, an Only Child, Spoiled by Parents, Alienates Her Husband's Family by Making Scene Over Her Mother-in-Law's Helpfulness

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A year ago my brother Van married Sue, an only child, now 21, several years his junior. She is thoroughly spoiled, her parents cater to her in everything, and even today don't let her walk alone the minute it is dark.

My folks remodeled a home for them, granting all her desires, furnishing the home completely with the best of furniture (at her insistence), regardless of cost so long as she was happy, thereby making Van happy. Also she received a beautiful diamond ring she chose herself; and she pays no rent.

A month ago she walked into my mother's home where others were present (not members of the family) and made a disgusting scene, raving and shouting grievances at mother. Her own mother had warned us that she has an ungovernable temper.

It seems that my mother had called a shop about a table that needed repair and used Van's name instead of Sue's; also that several times she had sent over food that Van likes and had requested; and Sue made it plain that she didn't like the food, that it makes her sick. But in the same breath she complained that "not enough" was sent over, just enough for Van, and then she screamed that she'd thrown out the food.

Husband's Sister Caught in Middle

VAN was hardly able to quiet her, but he took her home, as father requested, and later to a medical doctor; but I said he should have taken her to a psychiatrist. I wasn't present when the scene took place, and Van thinks I should call on Sue, hear her side of the story, and mediate; but I can't see what there is to mediate.

I have told Van that I won't enter his house until Sue apologizes to mother, but he says my attitude is too rigid, that Sue is very nervous and should be forgiven. I claim she is too young to be so nervous, that she is simply neurotic; and that she is old enough to realize that in this world we have to grow up and bear responsibility for our actions.

She has very little to do all day; her mother cooks dinner for them and most of the time sends over lunch, too, and whatever her mother says goes. My parents feel very badly, father at having spent so much money on a home where he's not even welcome, and mother at having dirt thrown on her needlessly. Please give us perspective on the situation. D. N.

Bride Has Cause to Blow Her Top

DEAR D. N.: Van and Sue, in their house of marriage, are luckless victims of mom-mothers, who are fighting for possession and rule of the newlywed pair as if they were a couple of rag dolls.

The spoiling process is each mom's method of trying to keep her darling infantile, and replace the severed umbilical cord with cable-holds of dependency and gratitude, and thus make sure that said darling shall never develop the strength or desire to try used for any fruit pie. On the other hand, have leeks and onion finely sliced and smothered in a little butter, also the cream cheese well blended. Boil milk, mix with eggs, strain and mix altogether with cheese, onion and leeks. Season to taste. Fill pie plate and cook in medium hot oven for 35 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

WALDORF LADY FINGERS

5 egg yolks
¾ cup granulated sugar
5 egg whites
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon vanilla extract.

Beat the yolks with sugar, add vanilla, then add egg whites, beaten stiff. Fold in the flour. Press in finger shape through a plain tube on paper. Bake at 400 degrees. This recipe makes 30 cakes.

EARLIER in the week, a smaller group of us was entertained at a gourmet dinner hosted by a baby food company in the Drake Room on 56th st. at Park ave. This is a spot that has become famous among New Yorkers for its buffet luncheons, as well as for such dishes as steak Diane. This was made for us by Nino, the maitre d'hotel, who created the dish and named it for his small daughter.

He made it at a side table as we ate our first course, Nova Scotia salmon with a sprinkling of lemon. An artist at the chafing dish, Nino first put sweet butter in the pan, adding a good sprinkling of chopped chives to it and ½ teaspoon mustard. He stirred it with a fork constantly, as chives burn easily.

Steaks used had once been an inch thick, but they were pounded with a cleaver until very thin —about ¼ inch. The side was rubbed well with olive oil and sprinkled with salt and freshly ground black pepper. When sauce was delicately browned and bubbling, the steak went into the pan and the other side received the same oil treatment. Steaks were turned and cooked only 2 or 3 minutes then a dash of lemon juice and worcestershire was added. Served on hot plates, they were butter-tender and marvelously flavored.

A DINNER in the Rainbow Room of the Rockefeller Center was one of the high points of the week. Here, from a balcony 65 stories above the ground we had a bird's eye view of the Star-Spangled City.

The traditional gourmet food that is one of our heritages from the "Gay Nineties" was the theme of this dinner. We were greeted by no less a person than mustachioed Grover Whalen, the former Mayor who has become a symbol of New York. Because New York is celebrating its golden anniversary this autumn as a city of five teeming boroughs, the dinner was tuned to that celebration of 50 years ago and today.

Earl McAusland, editor of Gourmet Magazine, planned the menu for the dinner which was given by a large frozen food company. It was typical of those which made Delmonicos famous—the same sort of food Diamond Jim Brady ate in the Gay Nineties, but about half the portions.

Each course was accompanied by an appropriate wine. First came consomme garni au broccoli, a soup lightly topped with bits of broccoli. Palomino sherry accompanied it. The fish course was filet of sole a la Marguery, a dish including oysters, shrimp and fish, baked in a sauce and accompanied by dry sauterne. The entree was caneton en casserole printaniere—roast duck with vegetables—served with wild rice and vin rose.

Orange halves cut in scallops and filled with orange sherbet were also a delicious accompaniment for the duck. Asparagus salad followed. Lights were turned out for the bringing in of the dessert. It was bavarois creme in molds carried in on blocks of ice with a tiny light in the center of each. Pink champagne was served with the strawberry dessert. Quick-frozen fruits and vegetables were used in making all these "gay nineties" dishes. The recipe for the succulent entree follows:

CANETON EN CASSEROLE PRINTANIERE

1 duckling
⅓ cup brandy
2 cups claret wine
⅓ cup chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup cold water
2 tablespoons flour
Peas and carrots

Cut duckling in quarters. Remove fat. Arrange on rack in roasting pan and roast in hot oven (400° Fahrenheit) 30 minutes, or until well browned.

Pour off drippings, reserving ¼ cup. Remove rack from pan. Combine reserved ¼ cup drippings, brandy, claret wine, onions, parsley, salt, pepper and sliced mushrooms and pour over duckling. Reduce heat to 375° Fahrenheit and continue roasting, covered, 1½ hours longer or until duckling is very tender, basting frequently with sauce. Remove duckling and keep hot.

Add cold water to flour and stir until smooth. Add to liquid in pan, stirring vigorously. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened. Add additional salt to taste.

Meanwhile, boil peas and carrots in the usual way. Drain and season with butter, salt and pepper. Place duckling on hot platter, cover with sauce, and sprinkle with additional chopped parsley. Top with peas and carrots. This recipe makes four servings.

GOURMET SPECIAL—Caneton en Casserole Printaniere with wild rice

What to Serve . .

Chopped prunes combined with pecans and brown sugar makes a delicious filling for baked pears or apples. Serve with whipped evaporated milk or cream.

Fillets of flounder are extra crisp when dipped in cornmeal before frying. Serve them with mashed potatoes dusted with paprika, green peas, and apple or peach chutney.

Mary Haworth's Mail

break out—as a chick from its shell—from the "safety" of mom's smother-love.

Since Van and Sue married, each mother has been trying to beat the other at her long-time game, so as to take the fledgling in-law under her benevolent despot rule if possible, by offering best inducements to hearken and cleave to "me",—and each father has been involved willy-nilly in this ruinous affray as mom's ally, to reinforce her purpose with his buying power and yes-ma'am attitudes.

Small wonder, then, that Sue is distrait. To be caught in that crossfire helplessly, right under the guns day after day, would drive any person of incipient spirit almost crazy. And very likely she blew up at your mother because she was incited by her mom to do so; but even so, it is just as likely that in reading the riot act to your mother, she was unconsciously blasting her mom's velvet-gloved suffocating "protectorate" too.

Matriarch Dominance Is Ruining Marriage

YOU DON'T make much sense in claiming that Sue is "too young to be so nervous, that she is simply neurotic." High tension frustration, which is to say nervousness, is synonymous with neurosis: a subjective condition (or affliction) of desperately conflicted emotional drives, occasioned by psychologically damaging misrule in early life.

Again you don't make sense in piously proclaiming that Sue is "old enough to realize that in this world we have to grow up and bear responsibility for our actions," when the whole burden of your story is to the effect that her parents haven't given her a chance to do that; and when, obviously, neither set of parents (notably the mothers) is willing to release Van and Sue to a life of their own, hardships included, even now.

Such is my slant on the situation; and Van's attitude seems the sanest of the lot. If you wish to act on the side of the right, use your influence to induce him and Sue to consult a psychiatrist jointly, for advice on getting reborn, psychologically, from matriarch dominance.

Ask Anne

How to Remove Picture Stains

Could you tell me how I can get the stain from my bath room fixtures? They have a rusty appearance and so far everything I have tried has failed. B. B.H.

Sometimes such stains can be removed by rubbing with household cleansing powder or this powder moistened with kerosene or carbon tetrachloride. Or, you could use one of the commercial rust removing preparations on the market. These can be purchased in hardware and department stores where household supplies are sold.

Can you recommend either an exclusively French recipe cookbook or a good continental one with directions in English?

M. B. C.

"Cordon Bleu" by D. N. Lucas is a French recipe book which is available here in English translation.

I would like very much to obtain a recipe for sweet grape wine, made from Concord grapes. The kind I have reference to is the sacramental wine used by the Jewish people on their holidays. Do you suppose that one of your readers could furnish me with the recipe?

J. A.

I have not been able to find a recipe for sweet sacramental wine, but from the book "Guide to Wine, Spirits and Beers" by Harold J. Grosman (published by Charles Scribner's Son's, New York) I obtained this informaton: "To be used in a synagogue wine must be made according to Rabbinical Law and must be pure, natural wine, unmixed, sweet and sound. It may be either red or white wine. If it becomes sour or has impurities from the lees it cannot be used." Mr. Grosman continues, "Homemade Passover wine is being replaced to a large extent by strictly supervised modern wineries, which meet all the requirements of religious law. This wine is made primarily from Concord grapes grown in the Central and Eastern States which seem to fit in with the need for a mellow, rich wine."

Does any Ask Anne reader have a recipe for sacramental wine which she would share with J. A.?

I would like to know how to clean a shower curtain which has become spattered with hard water and is cloudy looking.

F. L. W.

Spread the shower curtain on a flat surface and sponge it with a cloth moistened with vinegar. This will remove the soap scum, then go over the curtain with clear water to rinse well. Hang to dry.

Will you tell me where I can get the material and instructions for making shell jewelry?

A. K. H.

There is a hobby shop on 12th st. which sells shell jewelry kits including general instructions for making. Call them at National 7922.

Women Decide on 'Moving Day'

Chicago, Ill.—The National Furniture Warehousemen's Association has produced a few statistics to help American husbands remember how important their wives are.

Housewives, the Association reveals, make most of the important decisions in about 90 per cent of the family moving jobs.

Employers or landlords may start the ball rolling in getting families to leave one house for another, or even one city for another, but the women carry on through the details of wrapping and packing of furniture and other household possessions.

The association notes with a degree of satisfaction that housewives are coming to rely more and more on warehouse personnel for complete handling of moving jobs.

In approximately 85 per cent of the instances where goods are placed in storage, women of the various households involved are inspirations for the decisions made.

The warehousing group explains that it does not mean to imply that husbands are left out of the moving and storage pictures entirely. As titular heads of families, the men are generally taken into the planning on a consulting basis.

On the Town

PHIL WAYNE and his orchestra have been at the Carlton Hotel in the Congo Room only a few weeks, but they seem to have caught on already. We don't know much about the technicalities of music, but a party at our table the other night who does sez, "It's just right for dinner music."

Phil had an early start in the music business. After a tenure as somewhat of a child prodigy in the classics, he got a job with a jazz band at a tender 16. He couldn't play a bit of jazz and has always maintained that the orchestra leader hired him "just for kicks." Kicks or no, he did well, or as well as any musician could do in those days when $1.50 a night plus dinner and drinks was considered half way out of this world. That, of course was B. P. Before Petrillo.

Shortly after, Phil began to study arranging. After a lot of study he finally did an arrangement of "Avalon" for Jimmy Luceford (remember that one?) and was on his way. Phil arranged for this band and that and eventually found himself in the Army in 1942.

Being a musician he was, of course, attached to a combat outfit and it was some time before his talents were discovered. In rapid succession he wrote and scored the music for the Army's "What's Cooking" became musical director for Camp Cooke, worked with a lot of Hollywood stars and found himself on the outside of the Army looking in. He toured the country with Arthur Warren's orchestra for a couple of years and then headed back to New York, his home, for a job at the Stage Door Canteen, where he was discovered by the William Morris agency. They signed him to a three-year contract and he was on his way. That was almost two years ago and since then Phil and the boys have played the Martinique Club, the Sheraton Belvedere in Baltimore and last year he was in the Congo Room for 24 weeks. This time he's here for an indefinite stay.

The Casino Royal gets downright exotic with Tahja, a Buddhist dancer. According to Bob Preble, she does an ancient religious dance to a god of sacrifice. Tahja is very much on the exotic side and her dance held the audience's attention very well.

Dick Bain, who's played a couple of times with Fred Waring, flips from the classics to pop stuff on his harmonica with a gratifying amount of ability.

The Winnie Hovler dancers do both an Indian routine and one from the Far East. The Redhead sez: "Haven't we seen that Indian number there for the past two weeks?" Red, you're so right; Come, come, Winnie, Variety is the spice of life.

EVE LORELE and Singer Helen Aimee head the Balalaika's new revue that opened last night. Eve has been touring London, Paris and Australia the past few years and has come over here to introduce some new numbers. A couple of their names are "Tunisia" and "African Tribal Dance."

Helen Aimee concentrates on South American and Parisian songs. They both fit in with the change of names at the Balalaika. It's now the Continental Balalaika, you know.

The Crossroads has opened the Doles Dickens Quintet. The boys did well when they played the Kavakos and should drag as many people out there. With them comes a continuous music policy. Speaking of the Crossroads, vocalist Betty Madigan may be in more luck than she knows while she sings with Ralph Hawkins. Not too long ago he had a vocalist called Betty Jane Greer. Betty is now in Hollywood, contract in hand, as Jane Greer. Ralph has had a lot of luck losing singers to bright new careers.

MRS. HAROLD FERRIN

Miss Moorhead Becomes Bride

The marriage of Miss Jean Moorhead to Harold Ferrin took place yesterday at the Sixth Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Franklin F. Fowler officiating. The bride, a professional singer, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot T. Moorhead of this city. Mr. Ferrin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ferrin of Ventnor, N. J. He is conductor of an orchestra.

After a wedding trip the newlyweds will return to Atlantic City, where they are filling an engagement at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall Hotel.

Entertain Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Campbell entertained Tuesday night at a dinner at Normandy Farms for Carlos Ons Cottelo and Jose Brunet of Montevideo, Uruguay. Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Donovan were also guests. Mr. Campbell is head of the Foreign Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

A cocktail party was given before the dinner at the home of the host and hostess.

One on the Aisle—

The FBI Detours 'Crooked Mile'

By Richard L. Coe

THE WARNER'S "Walk a Crooked Mile" is as close to the headlines as a movie can get. With the indestructible Dennis O'Keefe as an FBI agent, it recounts how the G-Men broke up a red ring that had secured atomic secrets through a top-ranking American scientist.

This incredibly timely story purports to be the FBI and Scotland Yard at work. The technique is that semidocumentary style which suggests that what is being shown is fact. The foreword implies that its material is at least semiofficial. The whole picture conveys the idea that in any presumed battle between the FBI and the scientists, the scientists are the guilty party. A scientist, in fact, is the villain of the picture.

Now, if this isn't a propaganda movie, I don't know what is. The realistic tone with which Producer Edward Small has presented his story is bound to convince a good many people that the scientists can't be trusted.

With this in mind, after seeing it, I discussed Mr. Small's picture with an FBI official yesterday afternoon. I find that the FBI had nothing whatever to do with the making of his pseudo documentary. More than that, the law-enforcing agency had been at some pains to have nothing whatever to do with this picture.

I also learned that both the FBI and England's Scotland Yard had succeeded in keeping Mr. Small from his original plan to call his picture "The FBI Versus Scotland Yard." While the screen play shows the two organizations working effectively together and makes much of the importance of international cooperation, the original title, which does not fit the story, betrays the sensationalism by which the producer sought to capitalize on his film.

Now, in the course of the film—the usual chase yarn in which the law eventually breaks down the spy ring—you find both the FBI man (O'Keefe) and the Scotland Yard chap (Louis Hayward) passing up some pretty obvious clews. You find another FBI man falling down on his job in failing to follow up one of many suspects, a clergyman. You find both the FBI and the Scotland Yard boys left uncovered by the Justice Department organization. You find the sort of bumbling situations that created, rather than build, plot. In short, you don't wonder that the FBI officially wanted no part of this pseudo adventure, however it may be tailored to current events.

All of which brings us to the misuse being made of the semi-documentary style, an inevitable reaction from the complete unreality of much Hollywood product. Now that the fact film has become an accepted Hollywood technique, its essential honesty is being corrupted just as other facts of modern life have been distorted in another direction.

And inevitably it follows that however much the film industry may profess to scorn the propaganda films, now that the tools for them are so easily at hand, the propaganda film is inescapably a part of the American picture industry. Here in "Walk a Crooked Mile" (which title also means nothing) we have seen a film purported to be official—despite the strongest denials of association by the agency concerned.

It is a paradox that its implied lesson is to the credit of the agency and, across the land, it undoubtedly will influence vast support of the FBI, although at the same time it makes the G-Men uncomfortably oafish.

"Walk a Crooked Mile" is but one more example of the enormous power that can be wielded by a man whose paramount thought is to turn a fast buck.

"WALK A CROOKED MILE." Columbia release of an Edward Small production. Screen play by George Bruce from a story by Bertram Millhauser. Photographer, George Robinson. Narration by Dick Hadley. Directed by Gordon Douglas. At the Warner.

TY-POWERED IRISH: Tyrone Power and Anne Baxter enjoy an understanding moment in the Capitol's screen whimsey, "The Luck of the Irish"

Fact and Fantasy Fail to lend In Film About Luck of Irish

By Orval Hopkins

GOVERNOR DEWEY scored a solid hit and a clean miss in one sentence of a speech delivered in Los Angeles recently, I find by paying close attention to a newsreel now at the Capitol theater. In one half of the glowing construction Governor Dewey says that with movies we could get the facts about the United States across to Russia. Right on, Governor. In the other half he says the movies are always amusing, as sad a boot as any Nat ever booted.

Take "The Luck of the Irish," which stars Tyrone Power and Anne Baxter and which opened yesterday at the Capitol. Fantasy is fantasy, I always say, and fact fact, and when you go combining the two all you get is a lot of puzzled looks.

The film is about a writer who runs across a leprechaun and a pretty girl in Ireland, and in this part of it Power delivers the first of a series of puzzled looks. Power, the writer, soon flies back to New York and takes one of those ulcer-nurturing jobs fronting for a man who wants to run for the Senate. Arrived in New York, he encounters not only the leprechaun but also the Irish lass, well played by Anne Baxter. A conflict of principles between him and the politician is made manifest at the outset and thus it's only a matter of time before he's shuffled off the horrid coil of gold and is back in Ireland with his friend, his leprechaun and his Irish bride.

The spectacle of a man permitting himself to be bought and then finding he didn't want to be bought at all is interesting enough. I suppose, if a little overworked in the movies. But the introduction of an Irish elf, and a rather large Irish elf at that, is almost totally irrelevant, a fact which stands out rather baldly in this film. One can forgive the unlikely meetings between Power and Miss Baxter—after all, you got to have some romance—on the strength of a pleasing performance by the latter, if for no other reason.

Power is without question one of the handsomest men in the world and he's got a real big-league puzzled look. Cecil Kellaway plays the gnome, and I thought he looked a little embarrassed about the whole thing. Lee J. Cobb is big and convincing as the man who wants to be Senator. J. M. Kerrigan plays an Irishman of the ould sod, as he's forever doing, and speaks with a brogue almost unintelligible.

Buster West and Lucille Page head the Capitol stage bill and I liked Buster's old soft-shoe act. The astounding thing about the live show, however, is a man named Hammond, or rather the trained birds he has with him. The birds perform some of the most incredible and amusing tricks I have seen. Fred Roner is also on the stage and he'll bear watching. He's a pickpocket. The Mack Triplets, three Washington girls, sing some songs. They're lovely girls, but a bit arch for my taste. Helen Denizon does a sprightly dance to open the show and Paul Chapman handles several vocals with Sam Jack Kaufman's band.

"THE LUCK OF THE IRISH." Twentieth Century-Fox release produced by Fred Kohlmar. Screen play by Phillip Dunne from a novel by Guy and Constance Jones. Music by Cyril Mockridge. Photography by Joe La Shelle. Directed by Henry Koster. At the Capitol.

Permanent Antifreeze Short Again

Lest motorists be lulled into complacency by mild weather, the American Automobile Association served notice yesterday that some types of anti-freeze will again be in short supply this year.

A spot check of dealers by The Washington Post yesterday showed that "permanent" types of anti-freeze—very scarce last year—are far more obtainable now, but dealers say there will still be not enough to meet the demand when cold weather hits here.

Another factor not likely to cool temperatures is that rising price levels have reached anti-freeze this year, with price boosts ranging from 25 cents to 85 cents a gallon.

Glycol Type Up

One popular "permanent," or "glycol type" brand has increased from $2.65 a gallon to $3.50, another is up from $2.65 to $3.25, and a methanol base anti-freeze has been increased from $1 to $1.25 a gallon.

Last year, there was a sufficient amount of cheaper "alcohol-type" anti-freeze in this area to supply motorists, and this supply is expected to be similarly ample this year.

One anti-freeze distributor said that "so far this year we've delivered over twice as much anti-freeze as we had in any year since 1940—and that's in the 'permanent' type. You find that with more money around there's a much heavier demand for this more expensive kind."

Another distributor said, "We have about three times as much 'permanent' type as we had last year—but last year we had hardly any."

Several dealers said that many motorists placed anti-freeze orders during the summer, to be sure of delivery. A few distributors said they expected to have ample supplies for "all regular customers."

Alcohol, rated a good antifreeze, although it boils off in warm weather and requires replacement, sells for $1.35 to $2 a gallon.

The AAA warned motorists against buying antifreeze with a salt or petroleum base, which can do "irreparable damage" to motor and cooling systems. "Expensive motor repair bills can be avoided," said an AAA official, "by carefully reading the label on the anti-freeze container, and by obtaining needed supplies early in the season."

Health Detectives Bring in Syphilis Contacts for Cures

The clew often is as fragmentary as "a nice-looking fellow with an Indian head tattooed on the back of his left hand."

So statistics released by the department's VD bureau—in connection with its current VD control drive—reveal:

Sixty-five per cent of those listed as contacts by persons under treatment at clinics for syphilis are located and persuaded to be tested.

And 55 per cent of those tested as a result of contact investigation are found to have the disease.

1300 New Cases Treated

The result: 1300 of the 4300 new syphilis cases discovered last year were brought to treatment by the investigation staff of Dr. A. Truxton Morgan, epidemiologist and chief of "health detectives" for the VD bureau.

Trained interviewers factfully persuade each syphilis patient at clinics to list names and addresses of contacts during the patient's period of infection. This information is confidential, the patient is assured; not even the contact will learn who gave his or her name.

Public Health nurses call on contacts who are readily located, and arrange for a clinic examination.

But often patients do not know names or addresses of contacts; can only describe them as a man with a tattooed hand. These must be tracked down by one of 11 college-graduate health sleuths employed by the VD bureau.

20 Contacts Sometimes

The health detectives—who must combine courage and diplomacy, imagination and persistence—may scour a neighborhood for days, even weeks, to find a suspect, convince him he owes himself as well as the community an obligation to be tested and, if necessary, treated.

Usually, suspects see the light of reason.

The average number of contacts named by individual patients is 1.8 persons. But 10 to 20 contacts a patient is not unusual, reports Dr. Morgan. The record to date is 28 listed by an admitted homosexual.

Most cases are concentrated in a relatively few "poor" sections of the city, Dr. Morgan finds. Heaviest concentration, he says, is in census tracts 47-50, the vicinity of Polk Health Center, 7th and P sts. nw.—an area bounded by North Capitol st., Massachusetts and Florida aves. and 13th st. nw. Other concentrations are in tract 78, the outlying Benning rd. ne. section; tracts 32-34, 46, and 83-86, in the Northeast area; 59-60, 63 and 72 in the Southwest.

Unfortunately, the VD bureau does not have sufficient staff or funds to use the contact dragnet method in gonorrhea cases, three times as numerous as syphilis. Instead, gonorrhea patients are given referral cards to forward personally to recent contacts. This system brings in 20 to 25 per cent of contacts—about 70 per cent of whom are found to be infected.

South American Publishers Guests At Press Club

A group of 12 South American newspaper and magazine publishers, here in connection with publication of a Sunday magazine supplement to be circulated in their countries, yesterday were luncheon guests of the National Press Club.

Following the Press Club affair the visitors were entertained at the Pan American Union.

The proposed Sunday supplement, printed in four-colors, is designed to "not only tell the story of the United States to the other Americas," but also to show "those other Americas some aspects of themselves."

Never Mind 'Who'; Just Tell Us 'How'

I see the local newspapers are still publishing a weekly list of the people who get their traffic tickets fixed.

Personally, I think they'd be a lot more helpful if they'd omit the list and just tell us how one goes about getting ON the darn thing.

$1 NUMBER GAME

Dr. Victor E. Watkins strolled out of the Westchester Apartments the other day and noticed a car parked at the curb. It bore strange license plates.

There was one letter, followed by a series of digits. Beneath, in small letters, were the words, "United States of America." The color scheme was black and white.

Dr. Watkins reacted just as I did when I saw one of these tags a few weeks ago. First he mused, "Must be a Government car," and then he did a double take and told himself: "Nope—guess again. Government tags aren't black and white; they're red, white and blue. And they say 'U. S. Government,' not 'United States of America'."

A couple of telephone calls solved the mystery. Cars bearing such license plates are from an American zone of occupation overseas.

The letter indicates the general area in which the car is registered. The Provost Marshal in each sector issues the regulations, which usually require safety inspection, "5 and 10" insurance, and the checking of the motor number against the bill of sale. Just like back home.

The big difference is that the fee for such license plates is $1.

OLD ENOUGH

That radio jingle about "Washington's oldest Ford dealers" recently moved me to wonder just how old these fellows Hill & Tibbitts really are.

It turns out that, physically, they're only about half as old as I feel. But Bill Hill goes along with the gag well enough to reply:

"We're old enough to remember taking horses and mules in trade on Model T's."

And who'd have thought, back in those days when horses were much more plentiful than new cars, that we'd live to see the same situation prevail again?

What a wonderful opportunity to tell my favorite Ford joke. I can't resist.

A prankster decided to test Henry's ingenuity, and shipped off to the factory a hunk of tin roof from a demolished building. By return mail came the factory's verdict:

"Your car is in worse shape than any we've ever seen, and it's going to take at least two weeks to put it back in running order again."

UNHEARD OF!

Earl Wilson, saloon editor of the New York Post, did time at Ohio State University during the years when I was also an undergraduate during that period, and lived in an apartment directly above a member of the faculty.

The professor was fond of poker and Beethoven recordings, and frequently invited his cronies in to play both, until 8 a. m.

When Caniff finally rebelled and complained to the school authorities, it was on the grounds that the professor's conduct was most unorthodox.

He was keeping the students awake.

ANTI-FREEZE ADVICE LEAVES ME COLD

I see we're being urged to buy our anti-freeze early, before the supply runs out.

What I can't understand is this: If everybody follows that advice and buys early, won't the supply run out that much faster?

I'm reminded of the fellow who would never walk up the three flights of stairs to his apartment—he'd always run. Asked why, he explained: "I want to get to the top before I get tired."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK. — Nathaniel Benchley tells this story of his father, the late Robert Benchley, who, after his debut as a movie actor, was introduced to a Frenchman who spoke no English. Benchley spoke little French, and heard the gesticulating Frenchman refer to the enigmatic eyes and the warmth of spirit apparent to the beholder. The modest Benchley thanked him and protested, "Oh, no, no." The Frenchman continued, pointed to his lips and face and spoke of a soul full of laughter and the glow of the quizzical smile. "Oh, no, no. I'm not that good," Benchley assured him, almost blushing . . . Then the Frenchman spoke of the saintly benignity and the majesty apparent, and Benchley also heard him mention "La Gioconda"—which made him realize that the Frenchman wasn't speaking of Benchley's appearance on a movie screen, but of Leonardo Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa."

At a Hollywood party one night Benchley participated in a game of musical chairs with 15 other people. Suddenly he decided he needed some fresh air, slipped out quietly and returned a half hour later—to discover that the same game still was being played, with the same number of chairs and players, who went round and round unaware that there no longer was the one extra person necessary for playing this game.

At the opening of "Town House," which George S. Kaufman directed, one of his friends told of Kaufman's nervousness at openings. At the end of the first act of "My Sister Eileen," which Kaufman directed, the audience applauded. They laughed and applauded throughout the second act. And at the final curtain they laughed, cheered, whistled and called for curtain after curtain. "It's a hit," Kaufman was told . . . "Is it?" he shrugged. "I wish I had your confidence."

Joe DiMaggio will go to South Dakota after the season ends, to play an exhibition game and hunt pheasants . . . Sid Silvers, who was Phil Baker's "Stooge in the Box" 20 years ago, has returned to his employ. He'll write Baker's radio show, "Everybody Wins" . . . For the first time in history television sets will be in a mail-order catalogue. Alden's of Chicago will carry the listings.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Aides 'Spiked' Rosenman

By Drew Pearson

While Governor Dewey's campaign train operates with clockwork precision, even to the exact timing of the moment when Paul Lockwood takes the Dewey manuscript up to the rostrum, President Truman's train does not. It's much more helter-skelter, hit and miss, hot and human. Some of the jealousies and backbiting of the palace guard are all too obvious.

CLIFFORD

For instance, the President did not know until the last minute that Judge Sam Rosenman of New York wasn't going to be on his special train. Shortly before leaving Washington Truman asked his aides:

"What's happened to Sam? He promised to help out during the campaign. Why isn't he here?"

Speech-Writer Clark Clifford gave a noncommittal answer.

"I guess Sam doesn't have time for us any more," he said.

Real fact, however, was that Rosenman did not run out on Truman. He was ready and willing to go on the trip, but others around Truman didn't want him.

It was Rosenman who helped prepare the President's acceptance speech at the Philadelphia convention, probably the greatest Truman ever delivered. Rosenman also had a hand in the message to the special Congress, has advised Truman to do more ad-libbing, told him to lay off the civil rights issue during the campaign. "It has already done enough damage to the party," Rosenman cautioned.

However, Clark Clifford, Truman's other chief ghost writer, and John Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, who is jealous of anyone with too much presidential influence, haven't been fond of Rosenman. Somehow or other it was arranged that he not be invited on the campaign train.

Note—Bob Sherwood, famed playwright, who ghosted many of FDR's speeches, felt differently about working for Truman. Unlike Rosenman, he sidestepped a suggestion that he travel on the train.

GOP Draft Record

The President gave a veiled hint of this in his California speech in which he told how, when a Senator, he had offered his services to Chief of Staff Marshall in any capacity. Truman also took a left-handed crack at those who sought farm deferments and remarked that none of the men around him had sought draft exemption.

Behind this speech was the advice of various Trumanites to give the all-out facts on Governor Dewey's farm deferment, at a time when he was not in public office but was practicing law in New York.

Truman's advisers also wanted him to call the roll of the four men on the Dewey brain trust, and point out that though of draft age, none saw war service.

That was what was behind the President's reference to his own war record in California.

Blue and Gray Entente

Here are some more reactions to the recent meeting of Service Club leaders in Montgomery, Ala., to discuss better understanding between the North and South and to erect a Blue and Gray memorial to that understanding.

Harold P. Nutter, vice president of Lions: "There were three or four colored people attending the conference, only one of them participating. There didn't seem to be any doubt but that both colored and white people realize their own problem and are much less resigned to continue along present lines in Alabama. Much has been done by the white people to promote better education and health facilities . . . I believe these meetings should be of a little longer duration. The questions were getting to the interesting stage when we adjourned."

Robert C. Keenan, Civitan International: "The building program for schools for Negroes in Montgomery appears to be consuming the entire current budget of all building construction. A school board official frankly stated that he felt this concentration on schools for Negroes justified because of prior neglect.

"It was hard to escape the conclusion that Southerners need to understand that the North too has its problems—economic, social, and political; different in kind but just as serious as those of the South. Immigration of vast numbers of rural dwellers into crowded urban centers—at a time when little housing is available—produces a serious tension which puts a strain on our vaunted Northern impartiality.

"If this conference and many others similar to it, will break down the tendency to think not as Southerners or Northerners or Easterners or Westerners, but as Americans, the Blue and Gray Association may become the cradle of a great idea—one country without regional prejudices."

Note—The Montgomery meeting of the Blue and Gray Association was inspired by the idea that we need to do more understanding and less criticising on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line. The Blue and Gray is now engaged in raising funds to build a memorial to North-South understanding.

Inside fact is that Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, wartime boss of the atomic bomb project, was of little help to the House Un-American Activities Committee when it summoned him behind closed doors to tell what he knew about atomic spies.

The probing Congressmen tried every trick to wangle information out of him, even invited him to speak off the record. But Groves sidestepped all hot questions by reading the President's directive that no officer, active or reserve, may give confidential information to Congress.

No words will do

You are the only dream I have . . . When skies are blue or gray . . . And you are all the loving thoughts . . . That fill my every day . . . You are a certain part of me . . . In everything I do . . . And every grain of glory is . . . A compliment to you . . . Your eyes reflect the friendly gleam . . . Of all the stars above . . . and every word you whisper, dear . . . Is like a song of love . . . Oh, I could go on praising you . . . As long as I am here . . . And it would never be enough . . . To make my meaning clear . . . Because the love I have for you . . . Is boundless as the sea . . . And I could not begin to tell . . . How much you mean to me.
